HOUSE ALL SET TO VOTE O. K. ON TAX ACT TODAY

Leaders Confident It Will Be Signed.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—The tax reduction bill is scheduled for final approval by congress tomorrow when the house by an overwhelming majority will approve the report of the conference committee of the two chambers.

The senate having adopted the conference report yesterday, the bill will be sent to the President after the house acts. Mr. Coolidge is expected to sign the measure within the next week or ten days.

The radical Republican group in the house would have liked the conferees to approve the full publicity of tax returns and the corporation tax amendments of the senate bill. The opposition of this group in the senate yesterday netted only four votes on this issue and the radicals in the house realize that they have no chance to force the rejection of the conference report.

Radicals Claim Credit.

As a matter of fact the radicals claim credit for many features of the bill as it now stands and as indicated in yesterday's debate they would vote to pass the bill over the President's veto if the issue were between this measure and existing law.

President Coolidge will receive the bill by the middle of the week. Before acting upon it he will ask the treasury for a report on its effect on revenues and whether on the whole it represents an improvement over existing law. The President, having no further opportunity to persuade congress to accept his views is no longer using the original Mellon plan as a basis for comparison, but wants to know how it compares with the present law in relieving the tax payers of present burdens, in facilitating the administration of the tax system, and in providing for the necessary revenues.

Improvement Over Present Law.

The President already has been given the opinion of a number of members of congress who were Mellon plan supporters that the bill should be signed as representing an improvement over present law. The Mellon plan advocates in congress, as well as other Republicans who did not favor the plan in its entirety, appear to be practically unanimous in believing that there is not the slightest doubt but that the President will sign the bill.

The opinion that the President will sign the bill has been strengthened by admission contained in the latest treasury estimates that the measure will not produce any such deficit as was claimed in advance of the passage of the soldiers' bonus law. While Secretary Mellon has made no statement with reference to the latest estimates furnished by Joseph S. McCoy, treasury actuary, to Representative Green [Rep., Iowa], chairman of the house ways and means committee, and to Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, it is assumed the secretary will use these estimates in his report to the President. The estimates make it appear that the President could scarcely justify a veto on the ground of excessive loss of revenue.

Surplus Instead of Deficit.

Instead of a deficit of $100,000,000, as it was first claimed would result from the new bill, not taking into consideration the soldiers' bonus or other expenditures outside the budget, Mr. McCoy's figures show a surplus of $138,000,000 for the fiscal year 1925. Mr. McCoy, in making this estimate, said that to this surplus should be added whatever back taxes are collected. The back taxes collected have run some years into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The original estimate of the cost of the bonus law for the fiscal year 1925 was $152,500,000, but this may be reduced somewhat. At the maximum figure this would wipe out the $138,000,000 surplus and leave a deficit of $13,600,000 which presumably would be more than taken care of by revenues from back taxes. The back taxes, according to some of the estimates by members of congress, might be sufficient not only to care for this amount but also would nearly, if not quite, provide for other expenditures outside the budget such as salary increases for postal employes. These additional expenditures outside the budget may run as high as $100,000,000.

Enough to Finance Bonus.

Included in the latest McCoy estimates also is a statement that the surplus at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, 1924, will be $364,000,000 instead of $329,000,000 as was

Believing the Franks kidnaper and slayer may have carried out his suicide threat, the lieutenant sent Policemen William Dailey, Albert Johnson, and Peter Conlan on the run. They burst into the room just as some one was saying: "I call."

Five shirt sleeved men were seated around a table on which stood piles of poker chips and a couple of pints.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Rita De Acosta Lydig announced tonight the breaking of her engagement to the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension. It was due, her announcement said, to the refusal of Bishop William T. Manning, diocesan head of the Protestant Episcopal church, to sanction the performance of the marriage ceremony because Mrs. Lydig is a divorcée.

The announcement was made through the society editor of a New York morning newspaper, who said Mrs. Lydig had requested him to circulate the information for her.

Here is Mrs. Lydig's announcement: "Mrs. De Acosta Lydig of the Hotel Chatham last night announced that her engagement to the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, has been broken, owing to the refusal of Bishop Manning to give his consent to a marriage in the Protestant Episcopal church."

Mrs. Lydig Refuses Comment.

When an attempt was made to communicate with Mrs. Lydig at 930 Park avenue it was said she would not come to the telephone and that she wished to add nothing to the formal announcement.

Dr. Grant, briefly interviewed in the rectory of the church, was almost as uncommunicative. "I have nothing to say," was his first remark.

"One may presume that in such a case the lady's announcement must stand without comment—is that what one is to understand?" Dr. Grant was asked.

"I fancy that is it," said Dr. Grant.

Betrothal Announced in 1921.

The announcement that Mrs. Lydig and Dr. Grant were to wed was made on Aug. 5, 1921, when the rector was 61 years old and his fiancée was 42. Almost before society had recovered from its surprise the romance was beset with difficulties. The rector and his bishop had already clashed over Dr. Grant's liberal ecclesiastical tendencies, and now found themselves in disagreement on the propriety of the marriage being celebrated by a Protestant Episcopal clergyman.

On Sept. 16, 1921, it was definitely learned that Dr. Manning had made a ruling that no clergyman over whom he was able to exert control—in other words, no clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal faith in this diocese—would be allowed to perform the marriage ceremony.

Based on Canon of Church.

Bishop Manning's action was based on canon 42 of the constitution and canons of the Protestant Episcopal church, a provision of which reads:

"No minister shall solemnize the marriage of any person who has been or is the husband or wife of any other person then living, from whom he or she has been divorced for any cause arising after marriage. But this canon shall not be held to apply to the innocent party in a divorce for adultery."

Mrs. Lydig obtained a decree of divorce from Maj. Lydig, her second husband, in 1918 in Paris, on the ground of incompatibility.

JUDGE DENIES VOLSTEAD ACT PADLOCK RIGHT

Injunction Use Held Unconstitutional.

Sections of the Volstead act permitting courts to padlock buildings by injunction on the assumption that violations of the liquor laws will be repeated on the premises are held unconstitutional in a recent decision by Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough in the United States District court at Omaha, Neb.

J. W. WOODROUGH.

The decision is regarded by some students of the law and constitution as the most important court ruling affecting personal liberties since the famous Dred Scott case in which slavery was held to be constitutional.

Judge Woodrough held that enforcement of the Volstead act by injunction violated the constitutional rights of the individual to trial by jury.

The prohibition law, he contends, cannot confer this power of trial and judgment on a judge. To do so, he declares, would revive the old English Court of Star Chamber.

Facts Cited as Basis.

Judge Woodrough's decision disposed of a bill to abate a liquor nuisance and for an injunction after the defendants had pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition laws and had been punished.

The defendants, a man named William Mayer and his wife, had made and sold wine on the premises which they occupied as a home. They were arrested by prohibition agents with a search warrant, who seized and removed the liquor.

A few days after they pleaded guilty the petition for an injunction to padlock the place was filed. It was admitted that there was no competent evidence of any other infraction of the law or of any threat on the part of either of the defendants to repeat any violation.

The defendants, both past middle age, maintained that the selling of the wine had been a criminal act, for which they had been punished, and that the seizure of the liquor had been an abatement of the nuisance, so that no nuisance existed any longer which could be abated by equity, and that any action of a court of equity in closing the premises would be an additional punishment imposed without trial by jury.

Court's Argument Unfolded.

In holding the act unconstitutional Judge Woodrough said:

"As it seems clear that no equity jurisdiction would exist in the absence of a statute, it is necessary to ascertain the true intent of congress as to the particular provisions under consideration. Was it the intention of congress that injunctions and 'padlock' orders should issue and security be exacted in cases where there is no testimony to show and no evidence of nuisances existing or that nuisances will be continued?

"To get at the true intent of the act, it seems to me to be necessary to consider both of the sections which cover the matter of injunctions and equity powers in the suppression of the liquor traffic. In section 23 of the act the courts of equity are given power to issue perpetual injunctions against individuals who have within sixty days prior to the commencement of suit against them been guilty of what is called 'bootlegging' in the marginal notation of the statute.

Law Covers "Intention."

"It is specifically provided that it need not be shown that the offenders are bootleggers at the time of the suit or hearing, but it is sufficient to show that they have been bootlegging within sixty day of the time that the bill is filed. After injunction is issued against them, they may summarily be tried for contempt, whenever they are accused of any of the large number of criminal offenses that are included in so called 'bootlegging' in the marginal notation of the statutes at large.

"Opposite these provisions there appear the words, 'Intention inferred from violation,' and I am satisfied that the notation has exactly hit upon the cardinal idea of this law, which is that the equity courts may infer that a man intends to continue bootlegging if he has been recently guilty of it.

"Such being obviously the thought and meaning of section 23, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that no different or contrary purpose was in-

Martin Tells How Mirages Wreck Plane

Bellingham, Wash., May 25.—[Special.]—Mirages among the Aleutian island and on the Alaskan peninsula, which he followed without suspecting the dangers that lurked beyond the pale of these atmospheric illusions, were chief factors contributing to the wreck of the flagplane Seattle on the rugged slopes of a bleak, unnamed elevation on April 30.

This was the explanation given by Maj. Frederick L. Martin, American world flight commander, who arrived here today aboard the Pacific American Fisheries steamer Catherine D. from Port Moller, Alaska. With Maj. Martin was his mechanician, Sergt. Alva R. Harvey. Maj. Martin said his route from Chignik on the morning of April 30 was first altered when he encountered a mirage twenty minutes after his departure.

Subsequent mirages occurred at frequent intervals thereafter, he said, until, at about 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon, realizing that he had been misled by the phenomena, he swung his plane south in an effort to reach the Pacific ocean and crashed against the mountain at an elevation of approximately 1,500 feet above sea level.

Mountain Suddenly Looms Up.

The flight from Chignik had been north until the flagplane had crossed the Alaskan peninsula into the Bering sea side of the islands, he said. When he became aware of the fact that he had attempted to find a landing place in a mirage which had deceived his eyes for several minutes, the Seattle was turned south. Having swung a lengthy arc in turning back, the plane was elevated to cross a range of crags that were barely visible through heavy fog and mists. In the gloom of one of these heavy banks, he said, the side of the mountain suddenly loomed before him.

"It would be impossible to state with accuracy the amount of time that elapsed between the moment that I first saw the mountain before us and the time of striking," Maj. Martin continued. "It was all in an instant. The plane struck, although I had elevated it as much as was possible by human effort in that brief space. The fact that we were soaring slightly upward when the crash came is, perhaps, the one thing which saved us from death."

Praises Sergt. Harvey.

Accounts of their wanderings on the ice bound peninsula after finally abandoning the wrecked plane two days later, the hardships and sufferings increased by a steadily diminishing supply of concentrated foods, and the narrow escape from death by snow blindness under the arctic sun until they were picked up by three native women and two men on the south shore of Moller bay, ten days later were also narrated by the flyers.

"Had it not been for Sergt. Harvey I do not believe we would be here receiving the welcome of friends today," Maj. Martin said. "Besides being the best man I have ever flown with Harvey is, beyond any doubt, a real he-man. He proved his stuff during the ten days that we wandered. There was never a mumble of discontent. He was always cheerful, and when our hopes of reaching aid were lowest, the night of May 6, it was Harvey whom I inwardly thanked for our few comforts.

"We were camped in the meager shelter of a canyon in a clump of snow laden brush. Beds were made with wild grass piled on the snow and a fire, the first good one we had had since leaving the wrecked plane, afforded us warmth, which permitted us about four hours' sleep, at intervals."

Kills Grouse With Pistol.

Sergt. Harvey told of killing ptarmigan with a .45 Colt's automatic. He killed two and Maj. Martin shot another, although with difficulty, as both men had suffered with their eyes and ammunition was scarce. They had only two clips of shells, he said. The ptarmigan constituted their only food

DISAPPEARS ON SAME DAY NEAR KIDNAPING SPOT

Paths from School Must Have Met.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Accounts of the disappearance of Gertrude Barker, 17 year old student of St. Xavier's academy, led the police to believe last night she may have been kidnaped jointly with Robert Franks last Wednesday.

She has been missing since the time Robert, the 14 year old boy killed by his abductors, was last seen alive at Ellis avenue and 49th street. Her usual course from the school to her home at 4866 Blackstone avenue would have taken her past the kidnaping corner; she left St. Xavier's at 49th and Cottage Grove avenue about 5 p. m. Wednesday—the same time Robert left his school at 4731 Ellis avenue, homeward bound—and from that time the girl has been listed as "missing."

Girl Also Kidnaped?

Miss Barker would have walked two blocks when she reached 49th and Ellis avenue, Robert a block and a half to the same corner, the girl's aunt, Miss Gertrude Kelly, told the police last night. The time and place where the two disappeared were identical. Miss Barker's aunt fears that Gertrude might have been a chance witness to the seizure of Robert, and was therefore taken along by the kidnapers.

This apprehension was readily entertained by the detectives and assistant state's attorneys engaged yesterday in seeking a solution of the Franks murder mystery.

Floral Wreath Clew.

Sending of a floral wreath to the Franks home by a man giving the name of George Johnson, the same name appended to the letter demanding $10,000 ransom for Robert, had sent the investigation on a new tangent.

When the assembled detectives and state's lawyers learned of the injection of the strong possibility that Gertrude was in the clutches of the slayers of Robert there was a hurried change of tactics in an effort to prevent harm to the girl if, as is feared, she has not already suffered such harm.

There were other circumstances to bear out the belief Gertrude set her foot into the network of the plot, and was taken along to prevent her ever identifying Robert's kidnapers.

New Drive Under Way.

So convincing were these circumstances that intensified efforts to apprehend the plotters were launched last night. Every agency of crime detection, every citizen, every boy, girl and all the mechanical and scientific aids were called upon for assistance. The entire city and country is to be called upon for help today.

As the facts stood out last night under the scrutiny of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, his four chief aids, Milton D. Smith, Bert A. Cronson, John Sbarbaro, and Joseph P. Savage, Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes, Detective Captain William Schoemaker, Lieut. Michael Grady, and the pick of the detective force, Sergts. Charles Egan, Philip Carroll, William Crot, and Frank Johnson, they are:

Robert Franks, son of Jacob Franks, retired millionaire, student at the Harvard private school, failed to return home Wednesday night. An immediate search was begun for he had been often warned to be home not later than 5 p. m.

Called by Phone.

At 9 o'clock that night his mother was notified by telephone that he was being held for ransom. It was later determined that he was dead before that time. The next day a typewritten letter informed the boy's father that $10,000 was required to preserve Robert's life, that his captors would kill him if the demand was not met or if instructions were not obeyed.

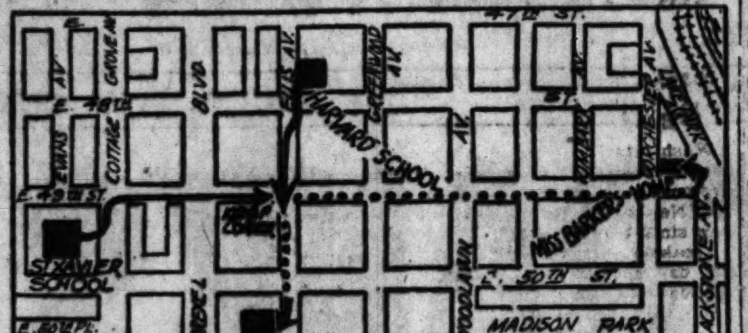
The father was notified by phone to go to Ross' drug store, 1163 East 63d street, but before he could get started he learned his son was dead. Two telephone calls were made to the drug store to inquire if Mr. Franks had arrived.

The murder caused the launching of an unprecedented police and state's attorney investigation. It was learned by Coroner Oscar Wolff that Robert had been smothered to death, the presumption being that a hand was held over his mouth to prevent outcry, and that it stilled his voice forever. Then came a tracing of the boy's movements.

How Franks Banished.

Irvin Hartman, 5117 Ellis avenue, son of the millionaire furniture man, a fellow student of Robert, said Robert was just ahead of him walking south on Ellis avenue, and had reached the southwest corner of 49th street when he, Irvin, stopped to look at some tulips. A moment or two later he looked ahead again and Robert was out of sight.

WHERE KIDNAPING TRAILS MET?



Miss Gertrude Barker, a 17 year old student at St. Xavier's academy, 49th street and Cottage Grove avenue, disappeared Wednesday afternoon on her way home from the academy to the home of her aunt, Miss Gertrude Kelly, 4846 Blackstone avenue. Her path homeward, as shown by the above diagram, might have crossed that of Robert Franks, just before or when he was being seized in 49th street. Miss Barker's aunt fears her niece might have been a witness to the Franks kidnaping, and was seized also by the captors of Robert Franks, to prevent her informing on them.

An old gray, dirty, Winton automobile was just leaving the curb opposite where Robert had been when last seen by him, Irvin said. He saw nothing else unusual.

Then Philip Van Devoorde, a chauffeur for Miss Agnes Fay, reported he had seen the same car standing near the Harvard school for two successive nights, Tuesday and Wednesday, about 5 p. m. on each occasion. Two men were in the machine, he said.

Saw Woman in Car.

That verified Irvin Hartman's statement, establishing almost to a certainty that Robert had been whisked away in the Winton car with two men. Later, Mrs. Alfred Anderson, 11248 Parnell avenue, said she had seen an automobile of the same description at 113th and Michigan avenue Wednesday night about 8 p. m.

"An excited woman" was in the automobile, she said, as well as an excited man and a bundle in the rear that might have been a huddled human form. That gave rise to the theory that perhaps a woman was among the kidnapers.

Last night that statement had a new significance. The "excited woman" might very probably have been Gertrude Barker.

William Lucht, 839 East 40th street, an employé of the assessors' office and a voluntary witness last night, said he had seen two human forms on the floor of a Winton automobile that was passing a street car on which he was a passenger Wednesday night at Cottage Grove and 67th street. He thought both were male, but it was believed likely he couldn't distinguish whether one was Miss Barker, the other Robert Franks.

Car Easily Recognized.

The significance of the Winton automobile, named by all, police said, is because of the scarcity of machines of that make and their peculiar shape that renders them readily distinguishable to any one familiar with automobiles.

Another man, Stanley Miner, 4755 Lake Park avenue, found by Lieut. Grady, said he had seen an old dirty gray Winton at Lake Park avenue and 48th street at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday, but he was unable to tell who or what was in it.

When it was established that Miss Barker had left her school about 5 p. m. Wednesday and that she would walk east on 49th street past Ellis avenue to her home on Blackstone avenue, the police admitted having grave fears. When they stopped to consider for a few minutes, they regarded the girl's disappearance as quite possibly due to her arrival on the scene when one of the men was in the act of grabbing Robert.

They learned her home is in Yakima, Wash., and that she has a sweetheart and a mother there; that she came here last January to go to school, and has no boy friends here with whom she might have eloped. Her aunt, a trained nurse and with whom she made her home, said only once since she had been here had she been out with a boy.

Any other theories to account for her disappearance were dropped. The time, place, and circumstances were concluded to make positive the belief she was seized by the kidnapers, who, because of late actions supposedly by one of them, are either insane or super-criminals.

Send Out Descriptions.

The floral piece sent to the Franks funeral yesterday added to that thought.

A complete description of the sender was obtained, as well as a description of the automobile he drove.

Taking no chances, Lieut. Michael Grady immediately broadcast and ordered the apprehension of a man and an automobile of the following descriptions:

THE MAN—Age, 30 to 32; height, 5 feet 11; weight, 150 pounds; build, slender; smooth shaven, light complexion (not absolutely certain); wearing horn rimmed glasses; clad in a dark top coat, blanket style with squares on the back, and a light gray telescope hat.

THE AUTOMOBILE—A large, dark touring car with a green light on each running board and nickel plated headlights.

That is the description furnished by W. Laube, florist, 365 East 43d street, who on Saturday night at 10:15 p. m. made up the wreath, which is of tiger lilies.

"Death in Family."

The man came in as Laube was about to close his store. He said a friend had just sustained a death in the family—"hard luck" he called it, and he wanted to show his sympathy. Mr. Laube said he reached for a booklet showing various designs, but the purchaser said he knew just what he wanted, something for $10, and he described the wreath that was eventually sent.

"First he said to me: 'Attach a card saying sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson,'" Mr. Laube told Assistant State's Attorney Milton D. Smith, Joseph Savage and Bert Cronson who had sent for him to come to the county building. "Then he said to leave of the Mrs. and to just attach the name of Mr. Johnson. He didn't mention the name of the family to whom the flowers were to be sent, just the address, 5052 Ellis avenue. I didn't connect the address with the death of the Franks boy.

"This afternoon, when my delivery boy came back and told me that address was the Franks house, I said to him: 'If I had only known I could have held the buyer for the police last night.'"

Car Parked Nearby.

The automobile was parked just beyond the store, the florist said, and he had a good look at it as his customer stepped into it but owing to lighting conditions Laube was unable to state the make or color of the car.

The man, however, he knew by sight, and could pick him out of a million persons any time, Laube asserted. He had frequently seen this person in restaurants in the neighborhood, he volunteered, whereupon a canvass was made of all such places in the vicinity, waiters and all employés being given the description. The man remained unidentified all night, nevertheless.

The bravado of the deed was inexplicable to the chiefs of the investigation, who were conducting a hearing all day and night.

May Be Kidnaping Crank.

The fact that he gave the name George Johnson, that he wore horn rimmed glasses, that he sent his "sympathy" were, in one opinion, strong indications that he was the same person who wrote the almost scholarly letter demanding $10,000 from Jacob Franks, the same person who telephoned Mrs. Franks that her boy was alive and well, when in reality he was dead, the same person who seized Robert as he left the Harvard private school homeward bound, the same person who in covering the boy's mouth and nose to prevent an outcry inadvertently, perhaps, killed him.

He may also have been the same person who wrote to Chief of Police Collins that he was the murderer and that he was going to commit suicide, although the main belief is that the author of this letter was a "bug" with a letter writing mania.

Clean Bill for Faculty.

Twenty persons were questioned in the prosecutor's office during the afternoon, most being connected in some way with the Harvard school, which young Franks attended. The net proceeds of this was the elimination from all suspicion, practically, of the three instructors that have been so thoroughly investigated—Walter Wilson, Richard P. Williams, and Mott Kirk Mitchell.

Wilson was to have been released from custody. Mr. and Mrs. George D. Chase, at whose home Wilson was a boarder, and Miss Florence Quigg, a sister-in-law of Mr. Chase, all stated that Wilson was at home from 3:15 p. m. to 9 p. m. the evening Robert was kidnaped and murdered. That bore out his own statements.

The reason he had not been released much sooner was the fact that the telephone call to Mrs. Franks, telling of the kidnaping of her son, was received about 9 p. m., the inference being that Wilson might have been outside his home at the time and might have been the caller. His perfect record, his irreproachable character, his habits, and everything else concerning him discounted that possibility, however.

Hears Their Voices.

Percy Van De Bogert, druggist's assistant, listened to the voices of Wilson, Williams, and Mitchell. It was he who answered the telephone when the caller asked for Mr. Franks at the drug store to which he had been directed to go with $10,000. Van De Bogert said none of the voices was that of his caller.

Mrs. Mitchell and two servants of the Mitchell family were questioned at great length by the prosecutors. Williams was requestioned for the seventh or eighth time. It was decided to absolve the three instructors of complicity or further suspicion, but there was found only one slight drawback.

This was the theory that some one connected with the school must have suggested the possibilities of holding Robert Franks for ransom. Much thought had been given to the question: Why was Robert Franks, a 14 year old boy, singled out by the kidnapers?

Experienced detectives said it would have been much simpler to have kidnaped a young child, one who would not be able to identify his captors or tell where he had been held prisoner. There are many such in that same neighborhood, sons and daughters of parents wealthier than the Franks, it was pointed out.

Aside from the inquiry in the state's attorney's office, other activity centered in trying to trace the kidnap letter typewriter, hunting the owner of the horn rimmed glasses found near the boy's body, and seeking the owner of the dirty old gray Winton automobile, or the car itself. Then came the floral piece clew.

The original theory that the boy was the victim of a moron was all but dropped. To a lesser extent, so was the theory that the crime might have been induced by bitter enmity to the boy's father. This, despite the letter of Saturday abusing Jacob Franks and threatening the life of his daughter, Josephine, 17 years old, who is still under police guard.

It is now regarded as a piece of cold-blooded, well planned, kidnaping for ransom, presumably by criminals whose expectations were blasted by the struggle of the boy that ended in his death.

STILL TRACE SPECTACLES

Another effort will be made by the police today to trace the ownership of the pair of spectacles found in the swamp near the body of young Robert Franks. One optician yesterday declared the spectacles were of a type which has not been on the market for more than three months.

The fact that the temples are in perfect alignment and that the outer faces of the lenses bear no scratches—caused by laying the glasses down on a desk or table—shows that they either had not been worn much or were purchased within the last week or two.

No manufacturer's mark can be found on the frames. One optician expressed the opinion they were of a brand known as the Newport. In any event, nearly all frames made of zylonite are manufactured in the east and there are probably fifty opticians in Chicago who handle them.

Hope to Trace Frame.

The only hope the police have is that it may be found that not many lenses of the same kind have been ordered with a similar type of frame. If this is the case, the prescription for the glasses may be traced in the records of some local optical store. One thing which favors the police is the fact that lenses of the type of those found cannot be obtained without a prescription.

Lenses—Toric; diameter of 40 millimeters; plus 50 cylinder type with an axis of 90; pupillary distance of 64 millimeters.

Frames—Newport zylonite of the short skull fit, vest pocket type; skull fit 4¾ inches between temples; curved short hook temples with rivet hinges and square corners; bridge, 1-16 inch up and 1-16 inch out.

The glasses cost between $10 and $15. They were made for a person suffering from simple hyperopic astigmatism. This does not mean that the wearer's vision was in any way impaired; that he or she was necessarily squint eyed.

"The narrowness of the bows or temples would indicate the glasses were made for a woman or a man with an extremely narrow head," said one optician. "The prescription is not an uncommon one. It is one given persons suffering from simple astigmatism or astigmatic farsightedness. The lenses are of a convex cylindrical type, also a common pattern. The only hope is that not many of these lenses have been fitted to a frame of this particular pattern."

SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICE IS HELD FOR FRANKS BOY

Mother Composed After Her Final Good-By.

BY MAURINE WATKINS.

"I will lift up mine eyes to the hills"—

But her mother heart lay buried behind the marble slab with its words of gold: "1909—Robert Franks—1924."

For yesterday afternoon while police were following every clew that might lead to the capture of the kidnapers who murdered the young son of the millionaire, Jacob Franks, last Wednesday, a simple funeral service was held at the home at 5052 Ellis avenue. Then, guarded by six motorcycle police, the body was taken to the Jacobs mausoleum at Rosehill cemetery.

His Schoolmates Attend.

Only relatives, a few close friends, and twenty of Robert's schoolmates from the Harvard private school were admitted at the house, where grief is mingled with horror and fear—for the life of the daughter, Josephine, has also been threatened.

The hushed groups here and there did not talk of the tragedy, but their eyes were all fixed on the lodestone of their thoughts, the little white coffin in the library. There before the fireplace where he used to dream, it stood, covered with a blanket of crimson rosebuds. The mantel was hidden with crescents of lilies of the valley and orchids, circles of roses and mignonette and bouquets of peonies. Sheaves of lilies and baskets of old fashioned garden flowers banked the walls.

The service was conducted by Elwood A. Emory, first reader, and Maybelle B. Armstrong, second reader, of the Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist. The Twenty-third Psalm was read, another passage of scripture, and the room with him—three hours before, Lord's Prayer with spiritual interpretation from Science and Health. Glenn Drake, soloist from the same church, sang "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," and "O, Gentle Presence."

Mother Sits Dazed.

Mrs. Franks, who has been frantic with anxiety and grief since her son's disappearance last Wednesday, sat in a dazed quiet throughout the reading of the words meant for comfort. She had told her son good-by—alone in the and she made no effort to look again in the flower covered casket.

But as she passed a group of school boys clustered on the stairway she paused and ran her hands hungrily over their faces. Some with the round features of childhood, others slim in adolescence—and four days ago her son had been with them!

Eight of them served as pallbearers—Maurice Gresham, John Coleman, Justin Cohen, Robert Ascher, Louis Nèw, William Schuyler, Sidney Eppenstein, and Max Welheimer. As they carried the casket slowly out to the hearse, Mr. and Mrs. Franks and 17 year old daughter, Josephine, left by a side entrance to escape the photographers and crowd who had gathered at the front. They were escorted by one of the guard stationed at the home as a result of threats made since the murder of the boy. A dozen policemen were in front of the house to regulate the crowd of two or three hundred, who had gathered to see the procession, and the departure was made with quiet dignity.

Flower Strewn Path.

Twenty-five cars carried the friends to the cemetery. A velvet carpet was laid from the road to the mausoleum, and flowers were strewn on each side. The crowd separated quietly to make way for the casket—still covered with flowers—and stood with bared heads while it was placed inside.

Mr. Emory again read from the scriptures, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills," and offered prayer. Mrs. Franks, assisted by Josephine and her brother, stood for a long time at the door looking down at the coffin where her boy lay. Then they put aside the blanket of crimson buds and placed the slab: "1909—Robert Franks—1924."

She trembled, turned away, and went back to the car, where she gave way to her grief in pitiful little moans and sobs. Her daughter, a pretty, dark eyed girl, tried to comfort her, and so did her husband, though he, too, was on the verge of breaking down.

Slowly the procession turned back to town.

'PRESIDENT' GARVEY TELLS PLAN FOR HIS REPUBLIC OF BLACKS

Boston, Mass., May 25.—[Special.]—Plans for establishment of a black republic in Africa, containing new and greater Bostons, which are to be built in the Liberian jungles within a year, were announced today by Marcus Garvey, president general of the Universal Negro Improvement association and provisional president of Africa, at a meeting under auspices of the local division of the organization.

For more than an hour the audience of Negroes, who filled every seat in the auditorium, wept, laughed, and shouted while Garvey, at liberty under $25,000 bail pending an appeal from a sentence of five years to Atlanta for fraud, painted a stirring word picture of a mighty Negro nation which shall stand on even terms with the white and yellow peoples of the world.

Following a musical and speaking program a collection was taken toward a fund of $1,500,000.

City's Greeks Celebrate Declaration of Republic

Chicago Greeks packed the Garrick theater yesterday to celebrate the declaration of the Greek republic April 13. P. S. Lambros, editor of the Greek Star, said he has urged the new Hellenic government to proclaim this day a national holiday similar in character to the American Thanksgiving day.

"FIGHT PACIFISM," ITALIANS CRY AS MEMORIAL

Pledge Loyalty to U. S. in Any Cause.

The ninth aniversary of Italy's entrance in the world war was commemorated at the 122d Field Artillery armory yesterday by 3,000 citizens of Italian blood. The gathering furnished a stirring contrast to recent pacifist utterings and outcries, for a group of medal decorated veterans of the Italian army stood shoulder to shoulder with American doughboys and pledged themselves to uphold the United States in any cause.

Cheers greeted Judge Bernard P. Barasa when he said: "Rebel against this wave of pacifism sweeping our country. Get in the front ranks as you did only a few short years ago and fight it with the same grim determination with which you fought the enemy then."

Fired by Speeches.

There were fiery talks by black shirted Fascisti, crippled veterans, and leaders in civil life. Among the speakers were Italian Consul Leopoldo Zunini, Vice Consul Dall-Agnol, Sergt. Jake Alex, 131st Infantry hero; Lieut. Franco Baroni-Donati of the Royal Italian army; former Judge A. N. Gualano, Dr. Joseph Castruccio, Italy's war ace, and Miss Fredericka Blankner, Chicago's only woman Fascist.

Yesterday, too, was a day of memorial services with numerous Chicago churches and patriotic organizations. Ulysses S. Grant post, G. A. R., held services in Memorial hall at the public library for civil war veterans who died since last Decoration day.

Legion at Services.

The North Shore post of the American Legion held services at Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr and Kenmore avenues, where the pastor, the Rev. William S. Carpenter, "fighting chaplain of the 89th division," made his last appearance before leaving for a White Hall, Ill., pastorate.

Gold star mothers and fathers decorated heroes' graves in many of the cemeteries. At Mount Carmel cemetery a firing squad and color guard composed entirely of Medal of Honor and Distinguished Service Cross wearers honored the memory of William F. Linskey, a D. S. C. comrade killed in action at Hamel, Belgium, July 4, 1918, while with the 33d division.

SOLDIERS ARREST 45 LARKIN MEN IN DUBLIN RAID

DUBLIN, May 25.—[By the Associated Press.]—Free State soldiers today seized the famous Liberty hall and arrested forty-five followers of James Larkin, the labor agitator, who was said to have taken forcible possession of the hall on Saturday from the official wing of the Transport Workers' union, and to have collected subscriptions from members who came to pay their dues.

The troops were withdrawn later on orders from Gen. Murphy, commander in chief of the Dublin Metropolitan police, whereupon Larkin and members of his party again rushed into the hall. Larkin in a speech declared that despite all opposition he would stick by the workers.

A majority of those arrested were members of the "Citizen Army," which fought during Easter week in 1916, under James Connolly, "commandant general of the Irish republican army"

GIRL, 17, MISSING; FEAR HER VICTIM OF FRANKS PLOT

Path May Have Crossed That of Dead Boy.

Gertrude Barker, 17 year old student in St. Xavier's academy, 49th street and Cottage Grove avenue, disappeared on the way from the academy to the home of her aunt, Miss Gertrude Kelly, 4846 Blackstone avenue, late Wednesday afternoon.

The girl, who usually walked to her home, left the school shortly before 5 o'clock Wednesday and was last seen near Ellis avenue, on 49th street, walking east.

Miss Kelly, a graduate nurse, alarmed over the continued absence of the girl, yesterday asked police to redouble their attempts to locate her niece. The girl came to Chicago from her home in Yakima, Wash., last January and was a comparative stranger in Chicago, her aunt said.

An Outdoor Girl.

"Gertrude was always a girl of irreproachable tastes," Miss Kelly said last night. "She preferred her home and her books to the school friends she had made. She loved to fish and ride, and expected to take up horseback riding as soon as the weather got warmer and her school closed.

"I feel sure something untoward has happened to her. She always walked home from school, and would have been on 49th street just about the time that poor little Franks boy was kidnaped. I have talked to the school authorities, and they said she left for home shortly before 5 o'clock. Coming over 49th street, she would have been very near Ellis avenue, and I am afraid she saw those terrible kidnapers, and they abducted her also, fearing she might tell the police the license number of their automobile."

How She Was Dressed.

When she left St. Xavier's school Gertrude Barker was wearing a blue serge box plaited dress, with white collar and cuffs. She wore a small black hat, brown shoes, and brown silk stockings, and a gray-green sports coat.

Since coming to Chicago Miss Kelly said her niece had made few friends outside of her classmates. Last April 26 she attended a school dance in the Congress hotel, Miss Kelly said. Dan Collins, a nephew of Miss Agnes O'Brien, general manager of the Mme. Barnett dressmaking shop in the Hyde Park district and a lifelong friend of Miss Kelly, took Gertrude to her first and only Chicago dance.

Met No New Boys.

When she returned from the dance, Gertrude told her aunt that none of the couples "traded" dances, and that she had not met any new boy friends. Since that time, Miss Kelly said, the girl had preferred remaining at home of an evening, but had several times accompanied her to a nearby theater.

A sister of Gertrude's mother, Mrs. Minnie B. Horning of Evanston, called at the Kelly home yesterday, but was unable to throw any light on the mystery. Aside from several schoolmates of the missing girl who remember seeing her start east in 49th street, no witnesses have been found who were able to help the police trace her closer to her home.

"NATION UNITED OVER GRAVES OF GRAY AND BLUE"

Praise to Confederate Dead by Coolidge.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Unstinted tribute to the Confederate dead was paid today by Calvin Coolidge, the first New Englander to become President since the civil war.

Speaking at the Confederate memorial day exercises at Arlington, Mr. Coolidge looked across the green slopes where the Confederate and Union dead sleep almost side by side and declared "a mightier force than ever followed Grant or Lee has leveled both their hosts, raised up a united nation, and made us all partakers of a new glory."

The chief executive previously had turned to the few remaining veterans in gray, seated just before him, and to their sons and daughters and, with a reminder that "time has softened, discretion has changed" the bitterness of conflict between North and South, said:

"Your country respects you for cherishing the memory of those who wore the gray. You respect others who cherish the memory of those who wore the blue. In that mutual respect may there be a firmer friendship and a stronger and more glorious union."

Confederates a Religious Army.

Addressing those met to honor the Confederate dead as "my fellow countrymen," the President spoke as follows:

"If I am correctly informed by history it is fitting that the Sabbath should be your memorial day. This follows from the belief that except for the forces of Oliver Cromwell, no army was ever more thoroughly religious than that which was commanded by Gen. Lee. Moreover, these ceremonies necessarily are expressive of a hope and a belief that rise above the things of this life.

"It was Lincoln who pointed out that both sides prayed to the same God. When that is the case, it is only a matter of time when each will seek a common end. We can now see clearly what that end is. It is the maintenance of our American form of government, of our American institutions, and of our American ideals, beneath a common flag, under the blessings of Almighty God.

America's Destination.

"It was for this purpose that this nation was brought forth. Our whole course of history has been proceeding in that direction. Out of a common experience, made more enduring by a common sacrifice, we have reached a common conclusion.

"On this day we pause in memory of those who made their sacrifice in one way. In a few days we shall pause again in memory of those who made their sacrifice in another way. They were all Americans, all contending for what they believed were their rights. On many a battlefield they sleep side by side. Here, in a place which is set aside for the resting place of those who have performed military duty, both make their final bivouac. But their country lives.

"When I delivered the address dedicating the great monument to Gen. Grant in the city of Washington, Gen. Carr was present with others of his comrades and responded for the Confederacy with a most appropriate tribute. He has lately passed away, one of the last of a talented and gallant corps of officers.

Tribute to Silent Throng.

"To the memory of him whom I had seen, and heard, and knew, as the representative of that now silent throng, whom I did not know, I now offer my tribute. We know that it is Providence that would have it so. We see and we obey. A mightier force than ever followed Grant or Lee has leveled both their hosts, raised up a united nation, and made us all partakers of a new glory.

"It is not for us to forget the past but to remember it, that we may profit by it. But it is gone; we cannot change it. We must put our emphasis on the present and put into effect the lessons the past has taught us. All about us sleep those of many different beliefs, and many divergent actions. But America claims them all. Her flag floats over them. Her government protects them. They all rest in the same divine peace."

SLEEP SICKNESS MAY END FRENCH ARMY OF BLACKS

Ask if Germany Will Give Up Secret Vaccine.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, May 25.—Will Germany demand as a price for the secret of the cure for sleeping sickness the return of all or part of her former African colonies.

Despite denials by the German government of such a plan many Frenchmen are asking this question. News has just been received of the completion of a series of successful experiences by the German savants, Prof. Kleine, and Dr. Fisher, who spent two years in Rhodesia and the Belgian Congo. They used a vaccine, for which the formula was found in the laboratories of Bayer at Elberfield.

France is worried because her African colonies—including the recent war acquisitions—are being so rapidly depopulated by sleeping sickness that Gen. Mangin's plan to train black troops and then fetch them to the Rhine maybe soon be obsolete. The British colonies in Equatorial Africa are also scourged by the sleeping plague and dozens of cases have recently appeared in London itself.

Called "Bayer 205."

"Bayer 205," is the name of the vaccine the Germans invented—so called because it resulted in the two hundred and fifth experiment. The ingredients of this secret compound are jealously guarded and the London and Paris laboratories are unable to discover it. Experiments were first made in Elberfield on rats and then the savants proceeded to Africa and tried the vaccine on cattle and men.

Two hundred natives who were suffering from the various phases of sleeping sickness were inoculated.

In the initial phase when the blood has been infected by the sting of the dreaded tse-tse fly there is no exterior sign. The second phase is marked by the swelling of the glands, apathy, torpidness, and the gradual softening of the brain. Only two patients failed to respond to the vaccine and cure, but they were treated when in the last stages of the disease.

"Price of New Colonies."

"We possess in this vaccine a new colonial empire," Prof. Kleine said in announcing the successful tests of the vaccine. "From the researches made in the name of science we can obtain conclusions of political interest." Prof. Kleine also said. "We now possess an instrument for bargaining negotiations which will permit us to regain our colonies."

From the way Gen. Jan Smuts and the Belgians welcomed the German savants to their territories for experiments it is believed that the respective governments may soon be ready to exchange part or all the territories seized from Germany after the war for the secret vaccine.

French Colony Decreases Fast.

The French are alarmed by the reports from the government colonies by M. Bruel, who estimated the population of French equatorial Africa at 5,000,000 in 1924, and 3,500,000 in 1925. Investigations showed of the 1,660 deaths in one district 778 were due to sleeping sickness and the deaths for the entire colony from sleeping sickness average from 30 to 49 per cent. The birth rate result due to sleeping sickness epidemic has fallen in some places to 25 per cent.

TRIAL FLIGHTS OF U. S. ZEP MAY BE MADE IN JUNE

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 25.—[By the Associated Press.]—The dirigible airship ZR-3, which is being constructed here for the United States navy, will make six trial flights before starting for Lakehurst, N. J., according to an announcement made here today. The date for the initial flight has not been set. The motors are being tried out daily with the propellers in place.

"Answering the many questions daily addressed to us regarding the trial flights of the ZR-3, we are in a position to announce that the difficulties which were disclosed in the earlier tests of the motors now fortunately have been remedied. In view of this we now can reckon upon delivery and installation of the motors possibly late in June. With the completion of the motor installation the airship can be filled with gas in a few days and then will be prepared for undertaking trial flights. The precise date for the inflation and the testing of the airship, however, is quite impossible to predict at the present time."

30,000 LAYMEN HEAR MUNDELEIN BLESS ST. MARY'S

Calls Hines' Chapel Heart of Institution.

Cold winds, heavy skies, and muddy roads did not keep 30,000 people from going to Area, Ill., yesterday afternoon to see Cardinal Mundelein give his blessing to "the heart of the church's workshop," when he layed the cornerstone of the chapel at St. Mary of the Lake seminary.

"The seminary is the workshop of the church, where the faithful are sending their boys to become workers for the church, and the chapel is the heart of the seminary," said Cardinal Mundelein, and about that thought was his address. He blessed the altar site and the four corners of the new chapel.

That chapel was erected to the memory of Edward Hines of the Fourth machine gun battalion of the Second division, who died in France during the war. It is built by his father, Edward F. Hines, millionaire lumberman.

Robert Hines, brother of the late Edward, knelt and was made a member of the papal household, of the Sword and Cape, and about his neck was placed by Cardinal Mundelein a gold chain to designate his papal duties as keeper of the chain of the papal household. This is an honor never before given a layman of Chicago and granted but few times in the United States.

The grounds of the seminary were bright with the colors of women's hats, and boys and men climbed into trees and on to buildings to see the ceremonies. Cars lined the roads for three miles east, and when the two and a half hours of ceremonies were closed there were still trains and automobiles depositing hundreds at the gates.

Services Are Elaborate.

The cornerstone ceremonies started at 3 o'clock, with Cardinal Mundelein officiating. The first act was the blessing of the site of the main altar. The seminary choir of fifty voices sang the responses. During the services the deacons of honor were the Right Rev. Mgrs. P. J. McDonnell, rector of St. Mel's church, and Francis A. Rempe, rector of St. Clement's church. The assistant priest to the cardinal in the service was the Right Rev. Mgr. Francis Clement Kelley, D. D., president of the Church Extension society.

The deacon of the services was Mgr. Thomas Bona, rector of St. Mary's of Perpetual Help church.

The Rev. William R. Robinson, Jesuit lecturer and president of St. Louis university, gave the sermon.

"Education," he said, "is the development of the man. If the country could accept education, it would be for the welfare of the world and the country."

The scene upon the floor and foundations of the new chapel, which for the day became a giant altar, was a colorful one. The temporary altar where high mass was said, was banked with ferns, palms, and crimson carnations, contrasting with the black and white of the chanting acolytes, the purples of the robes of the monsignori, and the gold and white and cardinal red of the high churchmen's vestments.

Inscribe Corner Stone.

The ceremonies closed with a benediction and blessing from Cardinal Mundelein, pronounced from the central altar where he had read high mass earlier in the day, and among the benches and even out into the muddy trampled lawns of the seminary monks, nuns, students, men, women, children knelt and bowed their heads to the papal blessing.

On the corner stone, left cemented into the place by a trowel in the hands of the cardinal, are the words: "This corner stone of the University of St. Mary's of the Lake was laid by the Most Reverend George William Mundelein, third archbishop of Chicago, under whose administration and fostering protection the university was built this year of our Lord, 1924." The inscription is in Latin.

The other dignitaries who assisted Cardinal Mundelein in the ceremonies were the Right Rev. Francis A. Purcell, D. D., the Very Rev. D. J. Dunne, D. D., and the Right Rev. Edward F. Hoban, D. D.

Among the prominent laymen who attended the ceremonies were Charles H. Markham, Daniel McCann, Mathew Raven, John Nering, Edward Hines, Joseph McCarthy, Dr. Eugene Clancy, Jerome J. Crowley, John F. Tyrell, James Kearns, and John O'Hern.

JUDGE DENIES VOLSTEAD ACT PADLOCK RIGHT

Holds Injunction Use Unconstitutional.

Extraordinary Power Given.

"The defendant here having admittedly used his home to sell liquor heretofore, the purpose of the provision evidently is to empower the court to infer that he is likely to, or probably would, do the same again; and to prevent it an injunction should issue and securities be exacted, or he be evicted from his home and the same closed for a year. It does not seem possible to ascribe any other meaning to the express words of section 22:

"'It shall not be necesary for the court to find the property involved was being unlawfully used as aforesaid at the time of the hearing.'

"Those words reflect the same thought that is expressed in almost the same way in section 23, and that is that the proof of past offending is all the evidence required to set the powers of the equity court in motion. Accordingly, the case of the government here is rested squarely on the language of the statute itself, and the government, conceding that there is now no nuisance, and conceding that there is no proof of any unlawful act since the arrest and confiscation of the liquor and appliances, asks for enforcement of the equity provisions as they stand. It seems clear to me that, if the law is valid, the jurisdiction invoked would exist, and the cause should proceed.

"'In the case at bar the statute says that, because the defendant has on previous occasions violated the liquor law, the court may issue an injunction against him, and this must be because of the inference that there is probability and likelihood that he will do so again. This is oftentimes not an unreasonable supposition. Experience certainly shows that men who have been guilty of bootlegging, even after they have been punished criminally, do engage in the offenses again. The same is unfortunately true, however, as to almost any other criminal practice. . . .

"Obviously, it would greatly simplify criminal procedure if all persons whom the chancellor deems guilty of criminal offenses could thereafter be laid under injunctive process, and all subsequent accusations against them could be dealt with by the chancellor, instead of by the tedious, uncertain, costly, and laborious process of jury trials.

"There is nothing new about this idea, and up to a short time before the constitution of the United States was adopted there was undoubtedly a strong and aggressive party in the English parliament still urging and insisting upon a revival of the powers of the court of star chamber.

"That court proceeded in criminal causes without any of those restraints that hamper and retard the law courts in their jury trials, and was especially concerned with the suppression of treason and sedition. . . .

"But there is reason to believe that the simple declaration, 'All crimes shall be tried by jury,' was incorporated in the constitution of the United States with a very determined purpose to absolutely prevent any court of criminal jurisdiction like that of the star chamber court ever coming into existence in this country.

"But, if equity courts, as such, may function for the suppression of crime, as provided in this statute, if such courts may, without a jury, inquire into alleged crimes against the liquor law, and may issue their injunctions because they find that in the past such crimes have been committed, and may thereafter punish for contempt, it would seem that all of the important powers of the court of star chamber are assumed in this indirect way.

"In the case at bar the court is asked to inquire, without a jury, whether the defendant, some time previous to the institution of the suit, made and sold liquor. If the chancellor is satisfied that he did, this law says that the chancellor may evict the defendant from his home, and close up his home for a year, thereby imposing upon him an indeterminate but absolute penalty.

The court may not know the exact extent to which a residence property will be damaged and deteriorated in this city, if left vacant and unoccupied for a year, but it may take judicial notice that such damage might be greater than a sum equivalent to the reasonable value of its use. In addition to this indeterminate penalty, the court is asked to enjoin the defendant perpetually from committing further crimes against the liquor law. There is no scintilla of evidence that he would commit such crimes without the injunction, except the inference that he probably will offend again, because he offended in the past.

If, to suppress the liquor traffic, this power can be conferred upon equity courts, it can also be conferred to suppress the drug traffic and I can see no very sound reason why it could not be used to suppress any crime in the calendar of crimes. If it can be so used, then the constitutional provision that all crimes shall be tried by jury would have no force ex propria vigore, but only by grace of congress.

Constitution Overridden.

We would have jury trials where congress permits, but we need have none where a procedure by injunctions is provided for. The fact is the limitation of equity powers is so fundamentally a part of the equity system that the equity system cannot exist in disregard of those limitations. The court of equity may, in certain cases, abate existing nuisances, even though the nuisance is made up of criminal acts, and where it is proven that nuisances will continue unles enjoined, equity may issue injunctions, but there is the natural and necessary limit of equity powers. When it is sought to confer powers upon a court of equity contrary to these limitations, the attempt must fail, because neither directly nor indirectly can the constitutional safeguards against one man power in criminal cases be erased.

Up to Supreme Court.

"It seems to me of great importance that the constitutional question which is directly involved in this case should be presented promptly to the Supreme court of the United States. It might be possible to determine this case adversely to the government in the same way that some analogous cases have been decided in the state courts. It would doubtless be competent for me to decide, as has been done by the state courts of Iowa, with the approval of the Supreme court, that in the exercise of a sound discretion I ought not to proceed further with the inquiry in this case. As a chancellor I could very conscientiously say that this old man, who sits before me with his wife, is not likely to traffic in liquors again in his home.

Court's Power Exceeded.

"In fact, on the trial of the criminal case, I received strong assurance to that effect from both the husband and the wife. But there is squarely involved the question of power that is important. Has the chancellor the power to evict him from his home and close it up for a year? Has the chancellor the power to judge this man? Can the chancellor in the future judge between him and his accusers?

"I feel it my duty to put the decision of this case upon the constitutional provision, and to decide, as the ground of dismissal of the case, that the act which attempts to confer such powers on the chancellor is contrary to the constitutional requirement that the trial of all crimes shall be by jury, and hence is null and void, as applied to the case at bar.

"All of the provisions concerning the issuance of injunctions to suppress the liquor traffic are not involved in this case. Whether or not the act is valid in so far as it provides for the abatement of nuisances existing at the time of the trial or nuisances that are impending or shown by competent evidence to be threatened, all of those questions must remain open until raised in cases in which they are involved."

RUSSIA MAY PAY SOME DEBTS IF GIVEN BIG LOAN

Asks for $250,000,000 at 6 Per Cent.

MOSCOW, May 25.—[By the Associated Press.]—In a notable speech at the annual convention of the communist party today, M. Zinovieff, chairman of the executive committee of the third internationale, made an exhaustive review of Russia's international position and the existing international situation.

M. Zinovieff indicated that under certain condition Russia was willing to pay part of her international obligations, provided she was given a loan of half a billion gold rubles [$250,000,000] at 6 per cent.

"Among the loans recently obtained by foreign countries, Japan's was the most favorable," he said. "She received half a billion gold rubles from the United States at 7 per cent. Russia would agree to a similar loan if the interest were lower. The soviet republic possesses greater commercial and political stability than Japan because Japan has suffered from recent earthquakes. It must be borne in mind that while we refuse to pay the old czarist debts we shall observe fully our obligations regarding our own debts."

Would Narrow Concession Field.

Discussing soviet Russia's policy on concessions, M. Zinovieff said the concession field should be greatly narrowed and that the granting of rights in the Baku and Grosnyi oil fields could not now be entertained.

"The most advantageous concessions for us," he went on, "are those out of which both parties derive equal advantages, such, for instance, as the Sinclair concession. But this kind of concession demands great capital, and foreign concessionaires do not readily respond with large capital. We are obliged, therefore, to give concessions to companies in which private capital and the soviet state jointly participate. On these lines we have already granted fifty-five concessions, including 6,500,000 acres of forest for development by Russian, Dutch, Norwegian, German, and British mixed companies."

Considering 1,000 Private Projects.

While M. Zinovieff urged that the soviet should sharply limit the number of concessions to foreigners and show the world an example of Russia's own ability to develop and exploit its own natural resources, he surprised his hearers by telling them that the state already had under consideration nearly 1,000 projects which were to be exploited by foreign firms.

Turning to private trading and the new economic policy, M. Zinovieff admitted that in the matter of Russia's trade investment private capital controlled 64 per cent, while the state and coöperative organizations controlled only 36 per cent.

"It is our aim to reverse these figures," he added. "I am sure it can be accomplished, but it would be a mistake to go to extremities.

"It is not true that we intend to abolish free private trading and the new economic policy. Our real object is to limit the activities of private capital by giving government support to state and coöperative organizations. We must watch with greater vigilance the bourgeois elements, which possess a greater vitality and which are growing in towns, as well as in villages. We have thrown the bourgeoisie from the fifth story, but it has risen to its feet."

Communists Have 600,000 Members.

The total membership of the communist party is 600,000, including 128,000 workmen admitted to full membership last month. This announcement was made by M. Staling, member of the executive committee.

Forty-six per cent of the total membership consists of workmen; 26 per cent, peasants; 20 per cent, clerks and government employés; and the remainder, women.

The membership of the Young Communists organizations increased to 570,000, of which 41 per cent is of the working class. The trade union membership reached a total of 5,000,000 this year, while pioneer organizations of young children number 160,000.

HUGHES BLOCKS RED AGITATORS ON WAY TO U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

RIGA, May 25.—Nicholas Solovay, archbishop of the "living church" of Russia, has arrived in Riga and, accompanied by two priests of the living church, is en route to the United States.

The three Russian priests hoped to reach Springfield, Mass., in time to attend the annual conference of the church now proceeding. The American government, however, carefully investigated the character of the travelers. They wish to make propaganda in America for the recognition of the soviet government and in addition to collect money for the living church.

The American officials report that because the Russian living church is closely connected with the third internationale and also the soviet government that it is likely that the priests will not receive the visas.

Eleven Sensible Recommendations for traffic relief

Activity in the City Council might well be initiated toward putting into effect some of the recommendations of the Western Society of Engineers for improving transportation and traffic conditions throughout the city.

Eleven of these recommendations are so self-evidently advantageous to the general safety and convenience of the public that every citizen, whether motor car owner or not, ought to write his or her alderman endorsing them.

In regard to street improvement it has been recommended [1] that important through streets be opened up and widened; [2] that the produce market be removed from South Water Street; [3] that separate street and railroad grades be constructed where traffic requires; [4] that the paving of arterial streets in the outskirts of the city be completed.

And it has further been suggested [5] that loading zones for street cars on congested streets be provided; [6] that pavements be widened at loading points of busses; [7] that the height of the crown of streets be reduced to facilitate the full use of streets; [8] that additional uniform automatic signal lights be installed at congested intersections; [9] that provision be made for additional parking space in the vicinity of the loop district; [10] that terminal loops and switchbacks of street cars in the loop district be reduced; [11] that bridges over the Chicago River be fixed instead of open.

Some of these things will take time to accomplish. But many of them can be put into effect at once. This Association believes that concerted demand for them by all of the public is the sure way to secure them. What do you think?

Your suggestions for improvement in vehicle operation and traffic conditions are invited.

OUR PERILOUS NAVAL WEAKNESS.

Representative Fred Britten of Illinois, one of the stanchest friends of the American navy in congress, asked Secretary Wilbur for a downright statement as to the condition of the fleet. The secretary has replied with what ought to be a staggering confession to Americans. It is true as charged that the navy is not where they thought it was. The naval ratio has not been maintained. The fleet is not in the position it should be with respect to Great Britain and Japan.

It required the intervention of a private citizen to develop this exposure. Some citizens were uneasy, knowing the habits of congress, but William B. Shearer, a naval inventor and once an expert in the navy department, revealed the progressive deterioration of the American naval force and said it with facts.

Mr. Shearer said that with all elements of power considered the ratio was not America 5, Great Britain 5, and Japan 3, as fixed by agreement, but Great Britain 5, Japan 3, and America 1. Secretary Wilbur in reply gives substantial confirmation. He puts the ratio now at 5-4-3, with America in second place, but admits that this does not consider bases or merchant auxiliaries. With all factors considered we suspect that Mr. Shearer's estimate is dangerously right.

When the Washington agreement was signed we knew that Great Britain and Japan would maintain the strength apportioned to them. Even the labor government of Great Britain would not neglect the navy, and there was no possibility of Japan doing so. We have proceeded to carry out the destruction provided for. The magnificent ships in all stages of construction are lost. Then we have thrown away our rights under the treaty and have thrown away our defenses.

Secretary Wilbur says that in cruisers and light cruisers we are last in a 5-3-1 ratio.

Our submarine situation "is deplorable."

Thirteen of our eighteen front line ships are out of date and need complete remodeling and overhauling.

Our available oil supply would last about a month in war.

In aviation we are first in science and poor in practice.

The ships haven't enough men.

It is plain that to send that fleet into action is to invite disaster. With Great Britain our skies are clear. They probably will remain so during the period of the treaty, but no sensible nation interprets its future by the skies of a day, and any one who thinks that our relations with Japan are untroubled is an optimistic lunatic.

We may escape the "grave consequences" of which we were warned. President Coolidge may sign the exclusion act and nothing come of it, but we have taken two steps toward trouble, one in asserting our right to determine the character of our population, the other in weakening the first line of defense and inviting a provoked nation to retaliate because it thinks it is safe to do so.

Could there be greater folly? A person announces that he is going into dangerous country, that he intends there to assert all his rights and guard all his possessions, and he goes, throwing his weapons away. That's what we're doing. We need a keeper.

Mr. Wilbur puts the responsibility on congress. That is all right, but why did it require the activity of a private citizen to give the public the facts and to develop public opinion? Did Mr. Shearer also have to inform the navy department. There was once an assistant secretary of the navy whose son now has the same position who would have raised the roof if this situation had developed. Theodore Roosevelt or some one else would have been out of office before thirteen out of eighteen first line battleships became unfit to be sent into action.

Congress will neglect the navy whenever it gets a chance. Mr. Wilbur says it not only cut the department estimates but it sliced the budget allowances. Japan and Great Britain are building to their limit where permitted by the treaty. Our ship workers are knocking down ships. Japan is growing strong in submarines. Look at the nests of islands in the far Pacific and you'll see the wisdom. Our "deplorable" subs can submerge. Then it's a question whether they come up again.

We advise congress to remedy our naval weakness and do it mighty quickly. It had better put a bolt on the front door and do it before it is too late. If pacifists want a war they'll get it, and congress will give it to them by dancing the war dance in its night shirt.

We are against war and we think we know how to avoid it. It is by not wanting it and by being strong enough to keep the other fellow from wanting it. Then there is peace and it is the only sure peace there is.

It is the peace of decent behavior and respected power. We are not crazy enough to think that peace endures in the tolerance of people who do not like us.

THE SENATE ON WHEELER.

Last week fifty-five senators voted that Senator Wheeler of Montana was not guilty of accepting money to represent a client before the interior department contrary to law as charged in a federal indictment pending against him in Montana. Five voted against the resolution. The rest of the senate did not vote.

While partisan and personal considerations played some part on both sides of this controversy, it is obviously unjust to charge Senator Sterling, who led the opposition, with cowardice. On the contrary, it took courage to stand against the strong tendency of senators to clear their colleagues of any charge whatsoever.

Meanwhile Senator Wheeler has profited by the decision of the senate, which was rendered him by senators of both parties, among them such leading Republicans as Senators Pepper and Borah. The abstentions, however, were also conspicuous and not unexplainable, for the facts remain that Wheeler was employed by oil interests before he became a senator; that after he became a senator he was one of the leading prosecutors in the investigation exposing oil interests presumably competitors of his former clients; that since his own relations became subject of inquiry and discussion he has been the beneficiary of a senatorial inquiry which forced premature disclosure of evidence in the hands of the prosecution instituted against him.

The senator from Idaho assures us that the senator from Montana has had nothing proved against him during the inquiry. Maybe so, but we'll say that as a he-Calpurnia the senator from Montana is a failure up to date. As an innocent victim of a dastardly partisan plot to ruin his fair name Mr. Wheeler would look better if his own methods of inquiry were not so fresh in the public mind, his exploiting of innuendo, violent inference, suspicion, and scandal; his ruthless efforts to rouse mob psychology to the point of political lynching; his disregard of other men's reputation.

AMERICAN WOMEN AND PACIFISM.

Our club editor, Miss Webber, attending the annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, reports that applause greeted the recommendation of the president, Mrs. George T. Palmer, that clubs observe due caution in joining ostensible peace organizations and against being carried away by peace-at-any-price talk, which is a cloak for sedition.

May we hope this sensible warning and the approval with which it was received testify to an awakening among normal women to the interrelation of revolutionary radicalism of all varieties, foreign propaganda and pacifism? Once that interrelation is realized the widely organized pacifist movement, which has of late come conspicuously to the surface in several of the evangelical churches and in the colleges, will meet proper resistance. Confusion of thought will be done with and well meaning organizations will escape the danger of giving support to demoralizing influences the nature and ends of which the American public is only beginning to suspect.

The peace movement in America long antedates the world war, and, though, as it proceeded, it developed an extremist fringe and some sinister foreign influences, it was during the war and since that its most mischievous characteristics have appeared. We saw how enemy propaganda allied itself at once with pacifism and radicalism to weaken the country in its war effort, and while conditions have changed in some degree, the foreign influence in our pacifist movement is still clear. The representative of the German youths' peace movement, speaking at the pacifist conference at the University of Chicago, called the campaign of foreign pacifists "an invasion of the United States," and her description was far more significant than she probably intended. The United States is suffering from a most powerful, persistent, and many sided invasion of foreign interests. This invasion is directed against our traditional international policy, against our institutions and principles, against the organization of the nation's defense. It is at work to involve us in European political entanglements, through the gate of the league or otherwise, to stimulate partisanship in European quarrels, to obscure our sense of self-preservation and national interest, to obstruct the maintenance of our defenses and discredit our patriotism.

This is indeed an invasion, a mischief more likely to be victorious than an armed invasion, for it is more insidious, and, therefore, less likely to be combated. Already we see in the churches and colleges the extent of its advance. The tendency of organizations, inexperienced and uninformed as most of us in America are as to European conditions and methods, to accept at face value appeals on lofty altruistic grounds, is also apparent. American woman, with her ideals of service, her pity and generosity, is naturally receptive to such appeals, and, possessed of the vote, can register her emotion in the policy and upon the fate of her country as never before.

This is to be welcomed, provided always it is directed by intelligent consideration of realities. American women's duty and interest to protect our birthright are identical with American men's. It is theirs to help defend the fireside and keep our strong and long-proved roof over our heads. If they are wise they will look this self-styled peace movement in the face. They will ask how it is that the most pacific power on earth is being exhorted by alien emissaries to be peaceful, to put by its time tried policies, foreign and home, and to retrace the steps of our forefathers, who wisely and beneficently left the old world to be free from its immemorial strife and free to follow a new destiny.

Although America threatens and oppresses no one, our pacifists tell us that we dare not be strong lest we abuse our strength. Whether honestly confessed, or, as in most cases, evaded, that is a policy of nonresistance. Quibbles and sophistries should not deceive us. Pacifism works for an America too weak to enforce its right or defend its existence. Normal, clear eyed American womanhood can no more adopt such a doctrine than American manhood. It is the duty of both to refuse to adopt it in the sophistical guise of a false altruism.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN UNIVERSITY ASSURED.

[Illinois State Register.]

Reports received today from the various groups engaged in the praiseworthy cause of raising funds to guarantee the establishment of the Abraham Lincoln university in Springfield give conclusive proof that their efforts will be crowned with success.

It means a triumph for Springfield. It is epochal. It is the city's most wonderful tribute to Lincoln. It is suggestive of the fine character and constructive purpose of the manhood and the womanhood of the capital city of Illinois.

It is now not a question whether you can afford to help this cause, but—

In view of the momentous character of this endeavor and the dividends this university will pay in development of our city and its future citizens, CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO HELP?

COMPULSORY ATHLETICS.

THIS morning's paper (the morning on which this is being written) carried a picture of President Coolidge throwing a baseball. If this picture is evidence, Cal got his training as a baseball pitcher on the cellar champion team of the girls' league. When I saw it I decided not to vote for Cal, not being an admirer of baseball as played by girls. Then I took up a copy of "Nation's Health" and read there an article by H. R. Curtis, on compulsory athletics. When I read it I got back on the fence again. Cal still has a chance, maybe only a Chinaman's chance, to get my vote.

Curtis says baseball as played by the girls is a more wholesome game than the game as men play it. In the men's game the pitcher works very hard, the catcher almost as hard, but the balance of the players are loafers. They do not get enough exercise to keep in condition. When they are in the field, the basemen and fielders have nothing to do, and when they have their inning eight of the nine at any given moment have no other occupation except chewing gum and gossiping. Unless they take outside exercise a fielder or baseman is too short winded to run bases.

Not so in a girls' game. The pitcher may hit the third baseman when she tries to put them over and all the hit balls may be fouls, but every player is in the game all the time. Curtis uses girls' baseball as a text for an article on compulsory athletics. In his opinion, one trouble with us in athletics is that we follow the policy of letting or having the other fellow do it.

Athletics should be compulsory in every school, college, and university. Every pupil should be required to play some game. Columbia requires baseball, basketball, football, tennis, and volley ball. As I understand it, no student is required to play all these games, but every student is required to develop a certain degree of capability in playing some one on the list.

Curtis would have competitive games take the place of gymnasium work as it is now done in school. These games should have hours set apart for them on the day's schedule. Each student should be graded on his work in some one or more competitive games.

It is found that 90 per cent of the exercise older people get is walking. Therefore, walking should form part of the schedule for students in schools, colleges, and universities. Every high school should have at least ten acres of ground around it in order that there may be ample room for games. What matters is that this requirement will force many high schools to be located in the outskirts of town? Every school child should walk at least one mile to get to school. The necessary walking to and from school is excellent exercise and badly needed.

WHY ANKLE SWELLS.

F. writes: Will you give a few causes for swelling in the ankles? I have just returned from a trip and did considerable walking.

REPLY.

Among the causes are kidney disease, heart disease, liver disease, pressure on a large vein in the pelvis.

In some cases this symptom occurs without any cause that can be determined.

BUTTERMILK SUBSTITUTE.

P. M. writes: Will sweet milk with the cream taken off and left to sour and thicken, whipped with an egg beater, give the same results as buttermilk?

REPLY.

It will.

WATER ON THE KNEE.

E. L. writes:

1. Cause of "water on the knee"?
2. Can it be cured and what is the usual method?

REPLY.

1. A mild inflammation of the membrane of the joint is known as water on the knee. It is caused by injury, by tuberculosis, and other mild infections.
2. Yes. By light treatment, diathermy, massage, by treatment in a cast, and by operation.

HEMIC MURMUR.

G. D. writes: What is a hemic murmur? My daughter is bothered with it. Is it serious? What is the remedy for it? It doesn't seem to bother but one or two days a month.

REPLY.

A hemic murmur is a sound made by the blood in passing through the heart, which sound is not caused by any deformity of the heart. The most frequent cause is anemia.

More sunshine, more good meat, good bread, and good vegetables, and more exercise in the open air is the usual cure for a hemic murmur.

RAW EGGS AS FOOD.

K. K. writes:

1. Is it harmful to use raw eggs?
2. Also, raw apples?

REPLY.

1. No, assuming that you do not eat an excessive amount.
2. No, assuming they are cleaned well or peeled.

CLEARING THE ALLEY.

Chicago, May 18.—[Friend of the People.]—A building was recently constructed in the 7400 block of Cottage Grove avenue and a large amount of refuse and excavated sand was dumped into the alley. The alley was paved not long ago, but it is not possible to get through it now with this obstruction of building material.

Notice has been served on the contractor to remove the debris from the alley and the notice has been complied with.

A FELINE NEIGHBORHOOD.

Chicago, May 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have lived in this neighborhood for thirty-two years and when I first came here it was nothing but a prairie. Our lot is 125 feet square. We planted trees and shrubs and vines and hedges and put water out for the wild birds and we have always had birds come and build their nests around here. Not long ago a family moved in next door, and soon after some idiot gave them a cat. Now this old cat climbs trees and has other cats around which scare away the birds. I told the owner of the cat I would shoot it if it did not stay off my place. 1. Can I do this legally? I claim my home is my castle and that I can shoot anything but an Irishman that comes on my premises. 2. Can a lower element of families around here get away with keeping a dozen cats at a time? What is Chicago coming to, to allow this?

DOWER RIGHTS.

Chicago, May 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A girl who owns her own home marries. Does her husband have any right to it or can she will it to whom she pleases? Or can she sell it and use the income as she pleases? What I want to know is if he has any interest in it at all or if it is entirely independent of him?

Her husband would acquire a dower right, which means one-third life interest, if he survives her.

WASHINGTON. — Gen. Grant reported that his army on the twenty-third advanced to the North Anna river, where he was violently attacked by Lee's forces. The enemy was repulsed with heavy losses, and is falling back. Other official dispatches say Burnside, Warren, and Hancock are pushing forward after the retreating rebels.

HEADQUARTERS, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.—[By TRIBUNE Correspondent.]—In a battle on the twenty-fourth we captured 1,000 prisoners. The Union army is united in a continuous line, Gen. Warren holding the right wing, Burnside the center, and Hancock the left. Grant's flanking movement of the last two days turns the enemy from its formidable position at Spotsylvania and give us command of a direct route to Richmond.

WASHINGTON. — Gen. Butler reported that Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, with a force of cavalry, infantry and artillery, attacked his post at Wilson's wharf on the James river and was repulsed.

Beveridge; superintendent of public instruction, Newton Bateman, and congressman at large, S. W. Moulton.

WE HAVE READ and read about Tommy Gibbons' fight next Saturday with Georges Carpentier, and somehow we don't seem to be able to pump up any enthusiasm over it. They've both been licked by Col. Dempsey, the eminent riveter, so that a victory by Tommy or Georges will not establish either France or America as the leading nation. We can't see any difference between the two except that Tommy wears a 16½ collar, and Georges wears a 16¾ collar. The only thing that we can see that will be settled by the fight is whether a man who wears a 16½ collar can lick a man wearing a 16¾ collar. We keep worrying over this, and maybe by next Saturday we may be able to get excited about it.

Rhl: I missed your poem, "And No One Put a Veto on That," which was read right out loud in congress and which you so delicately referred to in Friday's Line. Also missed your singing of "Oh Pardon Me." I am utterly bereft. However, I am naturally and by training and habit kind of heart and disinclined to bring pain and discomfort to the auditory world by tempting you to again sing your mellifluous madrigal, but I would like to get and read the poem, which you admit caused congress to pass the bonus over the President's veto. I am not a subscriber to the Congressional Record, so please send me a copy.

She admires Harold Bell Wright as a novelist, Edgar Guest as a poet, Dr. Frank Crane as a moralist, and Gene Stratton-Porter as a teacher of natural history in easy lessons. Naturally such a person would not appreciate the American Mercury, which strives to present the truth—naked and unadorned.

Ordinarily I'm not sentimental, but, while you're telling, would you mind passing it to her that she's a dear?

DEEDEE.

ONE DAY, on the edge of Nuremberg in Germany, we went through the torture chamber of a mediaeval castle and looked with horror at the iron maiden, a contrivance of iron shaped like a woman and filled with sharp spikes. In the good old days the front part of the case was opened, the victim placed inside, and the door carefully but thoroughly shut.

WHENEVER we happen to think of the men who murdered the little Franks boy we are rather inclined to believe that the ancient gentlemen who sometimes sentenced criminals to the fervid embrace of the iron maiden really had the right idea.

NEIGHBORHOOD SAFETY COUNCILS.

Chicago, May 16.—Since the publication of my safety letter in THE TRIBUNE last fall, and the incorporation of the same in an order to the police department by Mayor Dever, I have received a great many letters and suggestions from automobile owners and others who, like myself, are appalled by the continuous killing of small children upon our streets.

To me the horror is magnified because, from the vantage point of an insurance underwriter and adjuster, I have been able to analyze many of these unfortunate accidents, and the result of my investigation discloses the fact that half of these deaths could easily have been prevented.

As a further result of my investigation I have evolved a safety plan which I shall present herein, and which you may offer to the mayor and his safety commission for their consideration. This plan does not deal with downtown congestion or boulevard traffic. It is intended to protect the little children who use the streets for a playground, fifty or more of whose lives will be snuffed out between this date and next Christmas unless something is done to prevent it.

Children are injured and killed by automobiles in the neighborhoods in which they live. Consequently any practical or successful plan of accident prevention must be centered there.

I propose the organization of neighborhood safety councils throughout the city.

As to method and application, there are many persons and organizations better trained and equipped to outline a program than myself. However, I present a few tentative suggestions:

The initiative can be taken by the commissioner of public welfare, working in coöperation with the board of education. Notices can be printed and given to each pupil, asking the parents to attend a meeting in the school building on the following evening, called for the purpose of organizing a neighborhood safety council the object of which is to reduce the number of automobile accidents in the neighborhood.

These councils should be composed of both men and women, and of persons who own cars and also those who do not. Make them representative and increase their prestige with both car owners and pedestrians. Let the citizens select their own council, which must be nonpolitical in order to be effective and to endure.

In addition to the organization of councils in each school district there must be a central bureau, or clearing house, somewhere in the loop other than in the city hall. Assuming that the neighborhood safety councils and the central bureau are ready to function, let us consider procedure.

Every grammar and high school pupil will be given the names and addresses of the persons comprising the neighborhood safety council, with instructions to give the same to their parents.

Whenever an automobile is driven at a speed, or in such a way as to endanger the lives of small children playing in the street or about the parkways, the children themselves, the residents of the neighborhood, or passersby who may witness the reckless driving, should take the license number of the car and immediately deliver it in person, or mail it to a council member, or turn it in to the school teacher the next morning. Copies of all neighborhood reports should be sent to the central bureau for indexing and filing.

If the offender lives in the neighborhood, and a second report of reckless driving near small children is received, the driver will receive a letter from the council, politely requesting him to give the same degree of consideration to the safety of the children in the neighborhood that he rightfully expects another driver to accord his kiddies.

If the reckless driver lives in another section of the city, the complaint will be sent to the central bureau, and from there will be forwarded to the safety council of the neighborhood where the driver lives, and they will act upon the matter.

Where chauffeurs fail to use proper care the employers will be notified and asked to coöperate.

Probably less than 5 per cent of our drivers are habitually reckless or careless or get drunk, but no safety crusade can be effective or efficient until the undesirable drivers, who pollute by example, are found out, properly classified, and in some way curbed or eliminated.

Ninety-five per cent of our drivers are law abiding or, at the very worst, violate our traffic ordinances or laws unthinkingly. They are amenable to reason and will heartily coöperate in a real serious, determined safety crusade.

As to what action will be taken in the cases of repeaters or incorrigibles, those who ignore their neighbors' requests for coöperation in making the neighborhood safer for the children, that can be determined by agreement between the central bureau, the police authorities, the city and state license bureaus, and the insurance companies. Revocation of licenses, cancellation of policies, and other measures can be adopted which will compel the violators to obey the law and not jeopardize the lives of small children.

If all the organizations that have enrolled in Mayor Dever's safety campaign will take hold of this matter and put thought and time and pep and money into it, there will be happy childish laughter in many Chicago homes next winter which otherwise would be devoid of cheer.

Let us dedicate ourselves and our very best efforts to child conservation.

WHY POPPIES!

Chicago, May 20.—I wish to inquire in the columns of your very worthy paper why the people of Chicago are again to be asked to buy poppies that are made by German labor (as last year) and by sweatshop and Japanese labor this year.

I think it would be more to the liking of our people to be asked to buy a flower made in this country by well paid and clean labor.

A reply to this note would be appreciated.

PRESBYTERIANS LIKELY TO OUST BAPTIST PASTOR

Moderator Hints at Action on Dr. Fosdick.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 25.—[Special.]—An attempt to oust Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick from the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church of New York by action of the Presbyterian general assembly seems certain, according to statements made today by Dr. Clarence E. MacArtney, moderator of the assembly, who was elected on an anti-Fosdick platform.

Another matter that claimed the attention of the clergymen today was the announcement that Dr. Thornton Whaling, moderator of the southern assembly, would be present Tuesday. This led to discussion of a reunion of the Presbyterian churches north and south.

Dr. MacArtney expressed the opinion that the general assembly had the power to order the First church of New York to sever instanter the connection of the church with Dr. Fosdick, who is a Baptist minister preaching regularly in its pulpit.

"The right of the general assembly to exercise to order the outsing of Dr. Fosdick is plainly in the constitution," Dr. MacArtney said. "We consider the carrying out this matter of more importance than the Philadelphia overture."

Majority With Moderator.

While Dr. MacArtney did not expressly say that the general assembly would decide on the ouster of Dr. Fosdick, yet his emphasis of the right of the general assembly to act and his statement of the importance of the subject was taken as evidence that having the majority of the general assembly in sympathy with him such action will be taken.

William Jennings Bryan, it was stated, prevented the decision to carry the matter to the Presbyteries by a statement that if the committee so reported he would bring in a minority report in opposition. Fighting the subject out on the floor of the assembly seems to be the only alternative.

John Willis Baer, a former moderator and the commissioner who seconded the nomination of Dr. Charles R. Erdman for the moderatorship, said he did not believe the general assembly had the power to order the ouster of Dr. Fosdick against the consent of the First church or the New York Presbytery.

Visitors Occupy Pulpits.

Both fundamentalists and modernists spoke in the pulpits of several denominations today.

Mr. MacArtney, fundamentalist moderator, preached in the Westminister Presbyterian church. Dr. William P. Merrill, a modernist, preached in the Fountain Street Baptist church, where the business sessions of the general assembly are held. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, one of the liberal who have been under fire, preached in the Park Congregational church. Mr. Bryan spoke morning and evening. Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, spoke at a popular gathering at 4 o'clock on "Law and Order" in the Fountain Street Baptist church.

Dr. Coffin made one of the pleas for unity in which he predicted a possible split in the denomination if either fundamentalists or modernists persisted in pushing their claims too far.

Sees Peril to Churches.

"There is no concealing the peril of the breaking up of the existing Protestant church organization," Dr. Coffin said. "Should the conservative element insist by ecclesiastical legislation upon interpretations which would constrain the consciences of the liberal or should they make restrictions which would impede them in their work for the Kingdom of Christ, there will undoubtedly be serious secession or open rebellion.

"If there were a realignment of Protestant denominations on the basis of agreement in points raised in the current doctrinal discussion, it would not be many years before some other questions would rend both groups into conflicting parties."

FIVE NEW BISHOPS CONSECRATED BY METHODISTS

Springfield, Mass., May 25.—Five new bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church were consecrated at special ceremonies held in the municipal auditorium today.

They were the Rev. Wallace Elias Brown, pastor of University church, Syracuse, N. Y.; the Rev. Dr. Titus Lowe, secretary of the board of foreign missions, New York City; the Rev. Dr. George Richmond Grose, president of De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind.; the Rev. Dr. Brenton T. Badley of Calcutta, India, executive secretary of the Centenary mission in India, and the Rev. Dr. George Amos Miller, superintendent of the Central American mission, Panama City, Panama.

BISHOP'S TRIAL TO BE OPEN FIGHT BY "MODERNISTS"

Cleveland, O., May 25.—The trial on the charge of heresy of William M. Brown, retired bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, to be here next Tuesday, will, if the bishop can so arrange it, be an out and out fight between modernist and fundamentalist theological conceptions, supporters of the churchman said here tonight.

One of the bishop's attorneys, Edward Bushnell of Cleveland, today made a demand upon Bishop John Gardner Murray of Baltimore, president of the trial court of nine bishops, that he summon a group of modernists to testify regarding their doctrinal beliefs. This group includes Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, Dr. Leighton Parks, Dr. Karl Reiland, and the Rev. William Guthrie, New York; Dr. Elwood Worcester, Boston, and the Rev. Truman Heminway, Providence, R. I.

Bishop Brown's alleged heresy hangs upon interpretation of the Bible, he says.

Elmer Loses Some of His Aerial Pals

But Dials Still Bring Him Many Tuneful Lays.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

It is now 10 o'clock. The last tones of Sigmund's Love Song by the Drake Concert ensemble have died down. Turning the dials yields nothing but silence—dead, dead silence.

Wonder if mere words can resuscitate something of the past?

Saturday night looked too promising to keep this eavesdropper from listening in.

Tuning in WMAQ at 9:25—"Tom Brown and his mighty band of thirty saxophones, the largest saxophone aggregation ever brought together in the history of saxophone playing." Sells-Floto and Barnum & Bailey never had anything on that announcer! Was wondering how the microphone would take to them. They got across in fine style.

A few minutes later stumbled on to the Indiana Society of Chicago running wild with a guaranteed harmless "Hoosier Chautauqua" circus at the Congress hotel. Just shows you never know what the receiver is going to bring in. And this Hoosier society—you never know what they'll spring either.

Tried several times to get WQJ on the phone to find out who at 10:25 so amusingly sang "What Has Become of Hinkey Dink; He Parlez Vous," but like the story that "Sen" repeated of the boy on hearing the code, I got the busy signal.

A minute later while Chapman's dance orchestra was playing, a German police dog was brought into the room. Slipped the phones on his ears, but evidently not "hearing his master's voice," he shook his head in vigorous disapproval. Then on John Herrick's ears—"That's great stuff; that's a great thing for the farmers." Then followed "The Barnyard Rag" by the Harmony Girls. Some coincidence!

I don't know exactly why, but somehow the sacred concert given by St. Paul's Presbyterian church choir of Hammond, Ind., Sunday, at WLS, from 7 to 8, came across so homelike, so comfortably enjoyable—well, I wish they were to be there next Sunday, the next, the next, and so on indefinitely.

In this happy mood, turned to the artist series concert at W-G-N. Stayed with them in the same happy mood, for it was unusually enjoyable. Believe I'll do what the artists would do if they heard our applause—throw them a kiss. Asked Ben Garretson if Genevieve Brown, the cellist, is as pretty as her picture—"She sure is! She's a beauty!" O, my!

Am beginning to feel sad again. It's the last night of the Sunday Evening club services. There's going to be a silence, an uncanny silence at a certain spot on that dial until Oct. 5. Well, Edgar Nelson, Mrs. Herdien, Mrs. Gannon, John Miller, Stanley Martin, and the nearest to the celestial choir I know of, I wish you liked to sing so well you'd sing for us all summer; for we shall miss you, we shall miss you!

There's a suffocating silence.

The Ideal Furniture Polish

JOHNSON'S Liquid Wax is the ideal furniture polish. It cleans, polishes, preserves and protects—all in one operation. It rejuvenates the varnish and gives a delightful air of immaculate cleanliness wherever used. It imparts a beautiful, hard, dry, glass-like polish which will not gather dust and lint or show finger prints. Johnson's Polishing Wax takes all the drudgery from dusting. It is easy to apply and polish.

JOHNSON'S LIQUID WAX

WAX all of your floors and linoleum. It will make them beautiful—easy to care for—they won't be slippery—and will not heel print. And WAX is, by far, the most economical floor finish—a 1 lb. (85c) can of Johnson's Wax being sufficient for 300 sq. ft.—one coat.

With waxed floors expensive refinishing is never necessary, for worn places can be easily re-waxed as they appear without going over the entire floor.

INQUEST FAILS TO NAME HERRIN SLAYING SUSPECT

Witnesses in Young Case Reluctant.

Herrin, Ill., May 25.—Jack Skelcher, alleged gangster killed in a revolver fight with constabulary here yesterday, and suspected of having been one of three or four men who tried Friday night to assassinate S. Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan liquor raider, met death from "gunshots by parties unknown," a coroner's jury decided today.

The case will be brought before the next grand jury, and it is believed indictments will be returned.

More than a score of witnesses testified at the inquest, but all appeared reluctant to identify those who participated in the revolver fight.

One Tells of Shooting.

Roy Eldridge testified he fired one shot into the back of Skelcher's car and also three at Skelcher's fleeing companion, who was wounded. Eldridge said the men in the car fired first.

The jury did not press the inquiry as to whether Eldridge actually had hit either of the two men. About thirty shots were fired in all, it was testified.

Albert Jones, a Herrin police officer and an alleged klansman, testified he had deputized ten or twelve men to "investigate suspicious characters, but he refused to name the men.

Sheriff Galligan is reported to be in Chicago. Skelcher's companion, who gave his name as "Brown," remained in the Herrin hospital today. He still refused to make a statement.

Mrs. Young Loses Sight of One Eye.

Belleville, Ill., May 25.—Mrs. S. Glenn Young, wounded Friday night when three men fired on her husband, Ku Klux Klan liquor raider, has lost the sight of her right eye. While oculists offer "some encouragement," they will be able to save the vision of the left eye, Dr. C. H. Starkel, in charge of the case, announced today.

Mrs. Young, who is in St. Elizabeth's hospital here, was struck in the face and head by about twenty buckshot.

Young is recovering from a bullet wound in the right leg, Dr. Starkel said, but the knowledge of his wife's condition has result in an extreme nervous condition.

Woman Saves Another, Aged 80, from Fire

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. George F. Neill, 80, alone in her apartment on the top floor of a smoke filled, seven story building, was rescued today when Mrs. Margaret Cummings, another tenant, ran the automatic elevator to Mrs. Neill's floor and carried the aged woman, half conscious, to safety. Another top floor tenant, William C. Bowers, 58, aided his wife and two sons to crawl along a cornice to an adjoining building.

WOMAN DRIVER HELD FOR FATAL INJURY OF CHILD

Mrs. Bonnie Gatter, 1177 Des Plaines avenue, Des Plaines, Ill., was held for questioning by the Irving Park police yesterday after an automobile she was driving had run down and fatally injured Ralph White, 5 years old, 3947 North Sacramento avenue, at California avenue and Irving Park boulevard.

The boy is said to have been crossing the street in heavy traffic when he was struck. He died at the Mortrose hospital.

H. L. Gaut, 63 years old, 2547 Aubert street, a bridgetender, was instantly killed as he was crossing the street at Lincoln avenue and Grace street by a machine driven by Charles Kuhlman, 2558 Montrose avenue. A second machine also ran over Gaut. It speeded away without stopping. Kuhlman was held for assault with an automobile.

Elsie Voegeli, 8 years old, 1145 North Franklin street, was struck near Division and Franklin streets by an automobile driven by William Cockle, colored, 1332 Mohawk street. The child was taken to the Henrotin hospital and Cockle was locked up at the Chicago avenue station.

BOUND, GAGGED, ROBBED OF $135.

Two men forced Axel Wausliff, 2529 West 46th street, to enter an alley at the rear of 4616 South Western avenue late Saturday night, bound and gagged him, and robbed him of $135.

MAN SHOT DEAD; WOMAN SMOKING BY BODY SEIZED

New York, May 25.—Samuel Brown, 30, garage manager, was shot and killed in a lower Broadway hotel early today and a woman who gave the name of Dorothy Brown, 24, was arrested charged with his murder. The police found her seated on the bed in the room in which she and Brown had lived, smoking a cigaret and contemplating the body at her feet. She displayed no emotion when arrested, and stoically refused to discuss the shooting.

Brown left a widow and five small children.

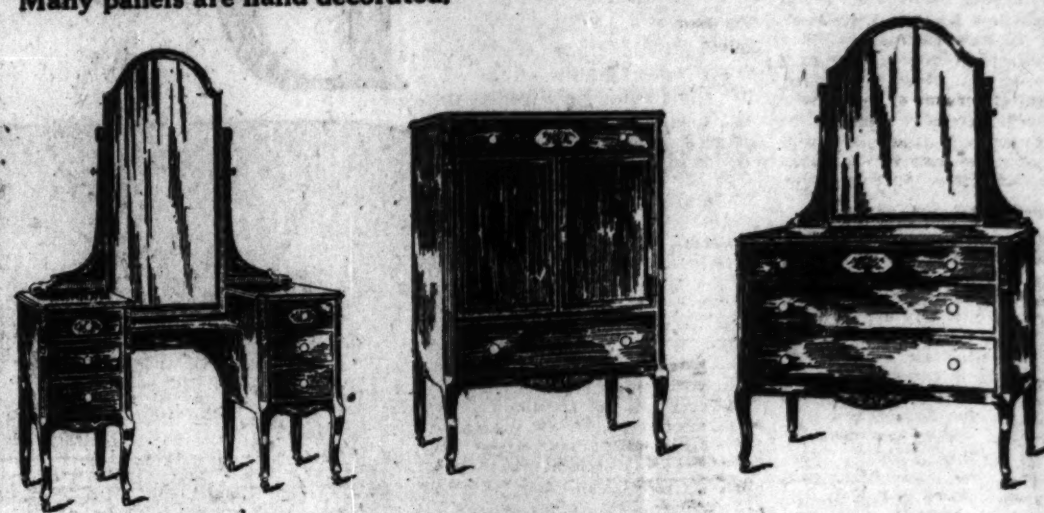
Enameled and Decorated Furniture

THE vogue of painted furniture is ever increasing and we have a large assortment of it for the living room, bedroom and sun room. This furniture is graceful in proportion and is shown both in bold and delicate colors. Many panels are hand decorated.



Decorated Louis XVI. Bedroom Suite, Ten Pieces, $557

THE motif of this suite is found in furniture made early in the Louis Sixteenth period, just at the time of the transition from the flowing lines of the Louis Fifteenth to the straighter lines which are generally considered characteristic of the Louis Sixteenth period. It is in black and gold lacquer and ornamented with dull gold, giving an effect of ormolu mounts. The floral decorations suggested in the illustration are hand painted. Besides the dresser, chifforette and vanity dresser shown, there are twin beds, a night stand, desk, chair, rocker and bench. Although the price for the ten pieces is only $557, it is just as effective as furniture that is much more expensive. Other examples of our painted bedroom furniture are:

Fawn Gray Enameled Suite with hand-painted floral decorations. Dresser, bow-end twin beds, chifforette, vanity dresser, night stand, chair, rocker and bench, priced at	$379
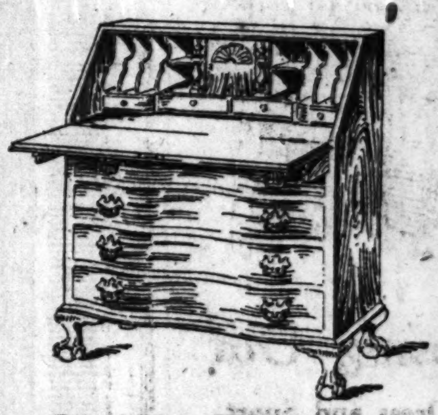
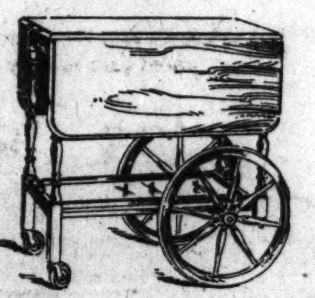
Eight-Piece Suite in silver gray enamel with striking floral decorations. 48-inch dresser, bed, chiffonier with portable mirror, large toilet table, stand, chair, rocker and bench	$506
Golden Iridescent Walnut Suite, a new finish in which bronze powder is rubbed into the pores of the wood, giving an iridescent sheen; 9 pieces	861

Governor Winthrop Desk $98



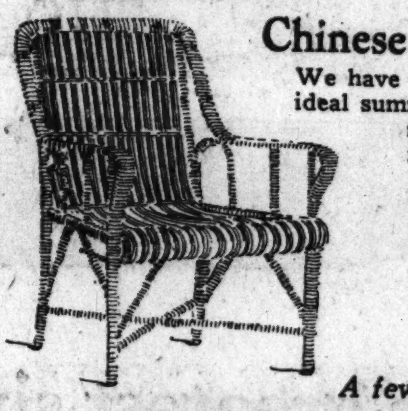
This is an exact reproduction, in mahogany, of Governor Winthrop's old Chippendale desk. It is 38 inches wide with four large drawers and a roomy writing bed. The price of $98 is unusually low for this desk.



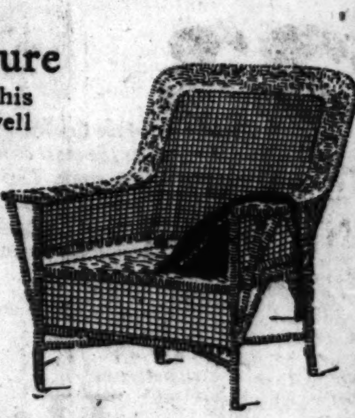
Drop Leaf Tea Wagon $25

This is a large size tea cart. The top measuring 27x36 inches when open. It is equipped with rubber-tired wheels, removable glass tray, fitted to the lower shelf, and a small drawer. Walnut or mahogany top.

Chinese Rattan Furniture



We have a large collection of this ideal summer furniture. It is well made of strong, flexible peel cane in the natural color with patterns woven in black cane in some cases, making an interesting contrast.



A few of the pieces are:

Hong Kong Chair $13.75

Large Arm Chair $15.50

Large Extension Arm Chair	$32.50
Peacock Chair	41.00
Peacock Lounge	77.00

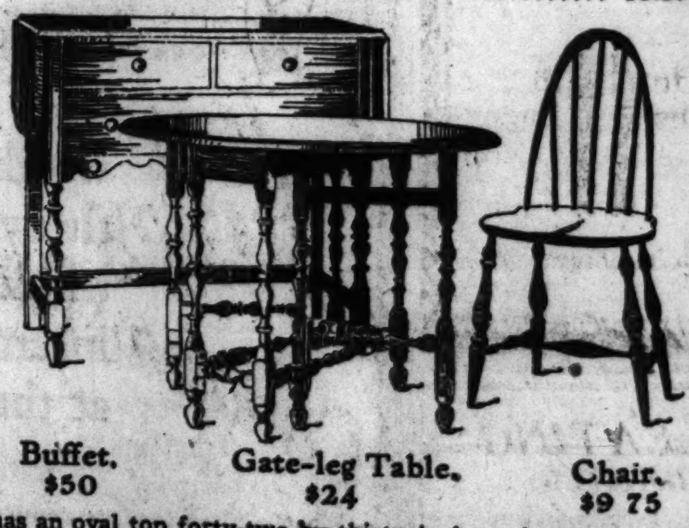
An Interesting Set for the Small Dining Room or Breakfast Room



Buffet, $50
Gate-leg Table, $24
Chair, $9 75

This set was inspired by antiques from New England and is finished in the mellow brown color that age gives to mahogany. The turnings are especially interesting and faithful to the period. The drop-leaf table has an oval top forty-two by thirty inches when open, and there is a small drawer at one end. The Windsor chair is an interesting pattern with a full saddle seat. The buffet has a drop-leaf at each end, and there are three drawers. A cupboard buffet to match is $84, and an extension gate-leg table is $64.

Sets like this are very good in the living room that is also used as a dining room. We are showing several styles, some of them with drop-leaf tables and some with extension tables. Many are hand decorated.

FREEDMAN HOME, FOR FOLKS ONCE RICH, DEDICATED

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—The most remarkable philanthropic institution in the world—the new $1,000,000 Andrew Freedman home—was dedicated today on the Grand concourse in the Bronx. It was established under the will of the late Andrew Freedman, formerly of the New York Giants, and the man responsible for the digging of the first subway in New York City, for the benefit of persons of refinement and wealth who have lost their money and face poverty in their old age. Husbands and wives may live together there amid luxurious surroundings.

Planned Home for Years.

Mr. Freedman always felt, he said, that the fate of refined and cultured persons who had lost their money was the saddest thing in life. For years before he died in 1915 he had planned to leave his fortune of $5,000,000 to alleviate their lot. Under the terms of the will one-half was set aside for the home. The remainder is now held in trust for his sister, Mrs. Isabella Freedman. Upon her death it will revert to the institution.

The building has been furnished with high taste. There is a large living room, library, billiard room, and dining room on the first floor.

Home Is Nonsectarian.

The home is nonsectarian and persons between the ages of 60 and 80 will be admitted without regard to race or religion. Husbands and wives are to be kept together for the remainder of their lives, and provision is made for the survivor. Under no circumstances are they to be separated. That is the dominant note of the benefaction.

HOUSE, BY SPEED, MIGHT GET SOME RAIL BILLS OUT

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—If the house of representatives should develop as much speed as the senate in the passage of legislation affecting the railroads, a number of bills might become law within the next two weeks.

In the last week the senate passed the Gooding long-and-short-haul bill, prohibiting railroads from meeting water competition by charging less for the longer than the shorter haul; the Robinson bill, making unlawul the collection of the 50 per cent surcharge on travel in sleeping and parlor cars, and a bill requiring common carriers to use sanitary steel cars in baggage and express service for the protection and convenience of express and baggage employés.

Adjournment of congress, however, probably will put these bills over for consideration until the December session, because the legislative situation in the house is not favorable to as speedy action as obtained in the senate.

The Howell-Barkley railway labor bill abolishing the railroad labor board and substituting therefor adjustment boards—mediation and conciliation and arbitration—appears to be doomed so far as this session is concerned.

LAWYER GOES TO WASHINGTON FOR PHIL GROSSMAN

Attorney Robert A. Milroy left yesterday for Washington where he will appear today before the United States Supreme court and ask for a writ of habeas corpus for the release from the Bridewell of Phillip Grossman, former west side saloonkeeper. Grossman was sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Landis in 1921 but was pardoned by President Coolidge. It is understood that Attorney Milroy will argue the pardon deprived Grossman of his constitutional right of a trial by jury since it prevented appeal of his case.

2 ITALIAN BOYS CONFESS MURDER OF WEALTHY MAN

Charge Woman Planned Robbery for Them.

Nick Guido, 1150 Taylor street, and Tony Damico, 744 De Koven street, 21 year old Italians, yesterday confessed to police that they had taken part in the murder of James H. Burks, wealthy rooming house keeper, found strangled to death in his home, 1921 Sedgwick street, May 19.

Implicating a third man, known only to police as "Dago Tony," Guido broke down under intensive police grilling and said the robbery, which ended in murder, was planned by his 23 year old sweetheart, Mrs. Margaret Marks, wife of a taxi chauffeur, who lived in Burks' rooming house on Sedgwick street.

Tells of Meetings.

Guido said he met Mrs. Marks, who has been under arrest with her husband, Harry Marks, since the day of the murder, following a flirtation which started in the Morals court. She invited him to take her to a show and later asked him to accompany her to her home, she said. After several visits, Guido said Mrs. Marks suggested robbery as a means of obtaining funds for a prolonged trip "out of town" and Guido asserts he agreed to get two friends to help him if Mrs. Marks would watch Burks closely and tip them off when an opportunity came.

The night of the murder, Guido said he acted as lookout while Damico and "Dago Tony" went into the home. Damico admitted that he held Burks' arms while his accomplice twisted a curtain around his head. They did not know they had killed him until the following day, both declared.

Traced Through Check.

Working in conjunction with Capt. William Peters of the Hudson avenue station, Lieut. Alex Jensen's squad assisted in tracing a check stolen from Burks. It was through this check that both Guido and his companion were arrested.

Mrs. Marks, confronted with both men, denied that she was implicated in the murder. She knew Guido, she said, but denied that she had ever suggested robbery to him.

JAMES HOWARD OF CHICAGO ON WATERWAY TRIP

Ottawa, Ont., May 25.—[Special.]—James R. Howard of Chicago is one of several American officials who, at the suggestion of President Coolidge, will make an inspection of the St. Lawrence, especially with respect to prospective hydro development. Prescott and other river ports are preparing to entertain the American delegation, June 13 to 15. They will consider the whole project, it being the President's desire that they should inquire into economic and national aspects. If their judgment is favorable, the committee is to report to the President and to formulate plans and recommendations on a prospective international agreement relative to finance administration.

Peddler Stabs Chauffeur During Drunken Brawl

Louis Kankusch, 2715 Wallace street, a chauffeur, was stabbed in the left lung with an eight inch knife yesterday by Charles Hendricks, 645 West 26th street, a peddler, during a drunken brawl at 26th street and Lowe avenue. Kankusch was taken to the People's hospital, where it is said he may die. Hendricks was locked up.

2 Killed in Auto Crash; 1 Dies at Sight of Wreck

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—Three men died when an automobile rolled over a ten foot embankment and caught fire three miles west of South St. Paul, on the Jefferson highway, today. Two of the victims were in the auto. Herman Abram, 52, a farmer, who went to their assistance, dropped dead when he viewed the wreck.

HOUSE APPROVAL OF TAX MEASURE CERTAIN TODAY

estimated last fall. Those who favor the signing of the pending bill point out that this amount alone is more than sufficient to finance the bonus for two years in case no back taxes were collected and the $138,000,000 surplus was largely used up by additional expenditures outside the budget.

That the tax bill will in no way interfere with the program for the retirement of the public debt is indicated. Payments on principal and interest on the British and other foreign debts are being applied on the sinking fund for the retirement of the debt, in addition to the 2½ per cent sinking fund set aside regularly out of other funds. The estimates indicate that more than $500,000,000 will be applied on the retirement of the public debt annually, or sufficient to pay off the debt in something like forty-five years.

Would Delay Paying Off Debt.

Some members of congress hold that the debt is being paid off more rapidly than necessary and that it might be desirable to make possible still further tax reduction by diverting the payments from the British government, amounting to somewhat less than $200,000,000 annually, for other use.

If President Coolidge is satisfied as to the effect of the tax bill on revenues, the only other possible grounds for a veto would be the failure to reduce the higher surtax brackets applying on incomes of $100,000 and over to the level of the Mellon plan, the publicity provisions of the bill, and the increased estate tax rates.

It is regarded as out of the question for the President to veto the bill on the ground that it does not reduce the taxes on huge incomes sufficiently.

As to the publicity provisions, sentiment for the abandonment of secrecy in the adjustment of tax cases has been steadily increasing, and the President's political advisers doubt if a veto on the ground that these settlements by officials of the internal revenue bureau ought not to be subjected to public scrutiny would be advisable in campaign year.

ROBBERS GET CASH AND RING.

Talk Is at a Discount! Advertising at a Premium!

Salesmen need help. Talk alone is proving ineffective. Dealers still resist.

Two, three or four per cent more discount to retailers helps salesmen little in closing orders. But this would pay for an advertising campaign that will help. Because advertising makes PUBLIC PREFERENCE. The fact that public preference is behind a product interests the dealer. It is the salesman's biggest leverage—best help.

For 20 years this advertising agency has had an unusual clientele because we have given our best thought to the practical application of advertising to actual business conditions. The modern, common sense business man cannot be interested on any other basis. We welcome inquiry.

HERE'S TABLE TO AID VETERANS IN FIGURING BONUS

Director Hines Gives Out Set of Instructions.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Owing to the fact that various interpretations have been placed on the method by which the world war veteran can compute the amount of his paid up twenty years endowment insurance purchased by the adjusted service credit under the provisions of the adjusted compensation act, Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans' bureau, today released a statement of factors and instruction which will clarify this situation.

He called attention to the fact that the 25 per cent increase to be added to the adjusted service credit has already been incorporated in the factor and should not be added to the adjusted service credit before multiplying by the factor.

Table of Factors.

The table of factors and instructions follow:

Instructions.

Allow $1 per day for each day of home service and $1.25 per day for each day of foreign service. Deduct $60 from this sum. Multiply this remainder by the factor opposite the age nearest birthday to date certificate is issued. The factor includes the 25 per cent increase, and this increase should not be added to the adjusted service credit before multiplying by the factor. Example:

Age at date of issue	33 years
Home service	180 days
Overseas service	160 days
[180-60]X$1	$120
100X$125	125
Adjusted service credit	$245

Multiply this by 2.513—factor at age 33—to get adjusted service certificate, which in this case is $615.

MINERS TO HAVE FIGHT OVER KLAN, IS PREDICTION

Peoria, Ill., May 25.—[By the Associated Press.]—Resolutions demanding expulsion of any miner who gives aid or comfort to the Ku Klux Klan, or reads any of its literature, will offer a bit of excitement for the concluding sessions of the Illinois miners' convention, it was predicted here tonight. Sessions will last through Tuesday and maybe Wednesday.

Shooting of Glenn Young will add fire to the debate, it is thought. Although the miners' constitution forbids any member to belong to the klan, it is well known that many miners in Williamson county ignore that rule.

Other major problems yet to be acted on include the proposal of thirty-one locals that the district executive board be abolished and that the subdistrict presidents act in its place.

Twenty-five locals are backing a proposal to abolish subdistrict organizations.

Another proposal would increase the miners' initiation fee from $10 to a maximum of $250, to keep farmers and other workers out of the industry.

SEE UNCLE SAM WITH 150,000,000 FAMILY IN 1950

He'll Need 38 Million More Food Acres.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.] — Statisticians have estimated that the population of the United States, by its natural increase alone and without any addition from immigration, will amount to 150,000,000 people shortly after 1950. If there is any large immigration in the next quarter of a century the 150,000,000 mark may be reached even earlier, although the influence of immigration on population is obscure, because immigration apparently retards the increase of native population.

But since in any case the country is headed for a population of 150,000,000 probably within thirty years economists in the department of agriculture have attempted to estimate roughly what crop and pasture and forest land will be required to support such a population.

Need 38,000,000 More Crop Acres.

They calculate that if consumption remains on the same per calpta basis and production per acre is not increased considerably more land will be needed than is available. This conclusion, however, need cause no alarm, because consumption habits will certainly undergo some change, and the average yield per acre of crop and pasture land will undoubtedly be increased. Assuming that some modifications will be made in consumption habits and production methods, it is figured that only about 38,000,000 acres need be added to the present actual crop land to support 150,000,000 persons.

That addition woud suffice for domestic consumption, moreover, and still leave us half the present acreage to devote to production for export. The experts figure that the total area of land needed to sustain a population of 150,000,000 with no greater relative dependence on imports than exists now would be 403,000,000 acres. An addition of a little more than a million acres a year until 1955 would bring crop land acreage to that point.

See Consumption Changes.

Some changes in consumption would be necessary to make this area suffice. In food consumption it is thought the principal change would be in the use of live stock products. Consumption of cereals and dairy products probably would not decrease materially. A very large decrease is reckoned on in the consumption of forest products.

There are available a little more than 600,000,000 acres of potential crop land from which to choose the additional 33,000,000 acres of crop land estimated to be required for a population of 150,000,000. Allowing for an area of forest land equal to the present forest area, there remains nearly 400,000,000 acres of potential crop land.

In the forested regions of the eastern half of the country it is estimated there are at least 220,000,000 acres capable of use for crops without drainage or irrigation. It should be possible, by careful selection, to get much of the required new crop acreage either from the heavy land of the cut over region, from the best of the 162,000,000 acres of available medium textured soils, or from land suitable for dry farming.

MARTIN TELLS HOW MIRAGES WRECKED PLANE

other than the concentrates which were carried in three thermos bottles. One of the bottles, containing hot coffee, had burst.

Maj. Martin's eyes were afflicted by the snow glare the first two days and Sergt. Harvey's eyes suffered a similar attack for the next three days. Traveling became impossible, and on the evening of May 7, when they came upon John S. Johnson's trapping cabin west of Moller bay, both men were verging on collapse, Sergt. Harvey said. They rested there for three days, during which a heavy snowstorm raged.

On May 10 they left the cabin and walked to the bay and sighted the wireless station and the stacks of the Moller cannery.

Wife Meets Flyer.

Maj. Martin was joined by Mrs. Martin and their son, Robert, who went on board the Catherine from a specially chartered tug two hours before the flyers arrived in Bellingham. Maj. Martin received instructions by wire this morning to return to Washington, D. C., for temporary duty. Sergt. Harvey was ordered to Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., and departed for Seattle en route to Rantoul this afternoon. Maj. Martin is scheduled to leave for Washington tomorrow.

OFFER BRITISH AID

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOKIO, May 25.—Commander Abbott of the forty-third destroyer division, which is here assisting the American round the world flyers, and Commander Hulings, naval attaché of the American embassy, called today on Col. Broome, who is awaiting A. Stuart MacLaren, the British round the world flyer. They expressed their sympathy in connection with news from Burma that Lieut. MacLaren had had a crash.

Commander Abbott offered all help in his power and suggested that he dispatch an American destroyer from Yokohama to Hakodate, where a Vickers machine with a Vickers expert is waiting, taking on the machine and transporting it to Hongkong. American destroyers are under orders at Hongkong to carry supplies to the American flyers at Calcutta, and thus Lieut. MacLaren would be able to secure a new machine at the earliest possible moment and resume his flight.

Praises U. S. Sportsmanship.

Col. Broome thanked the Americans heartily, stating that he was awaiting instructions.

"This remarkable evidence of sympathy and grand sportsmanship is the one bright spot," the British colonel said. He is much disheartened at the news of Lieut. MacLaren's accident.

MAJOR MARTIN OF WORLD FLIGHT TO BE CITY'S GUEST

An official welcome by the city will be extended Maj. Frederick L. Martin, original commander of the round-the-world flight, when he arrives in Chicago Thursday morning. He will be the guest of the Adventurers' club.

As yet no plans have been made for a parade or formal reception of the returning airman and his mechanician, Sergt. Alva Harvey, other than that their automobile—the car of President Samuel E. Felton of the Chicago Great Western railroad—will be escorted for a distance of about 100 miles into Chicago by a fleet of planes.

The planes probably will arrive tomorrow and there is a possibility that mail planes also will take part in the air procession.

More than 800 tickets have been reserved for the banquet to the major and the sergeant at the Hotel La Salle in the evening. Preparations have been made to accommodate 2,000. Maj. George F. Lee, president of the Adventurers' club, will preside, and, most important of all, the flyer's mother, Mrs. Nancy Martin, is coming from Liberty, Ind.

Why May Coal-Buying Pays

You get all the best of it

EVERY experienced theatre-goer, football or baseball fan knows the wisdom of buying tickets in advance. And except in emergency you'd never plan a trip without making your reservations in advance.

For two reasons: Better accommodations, and the comfort of knowing you'll have a good lower berth—good seats—or pleasant hotel rooms—when the time comes that you need them.

The same sound reasoning leads any careful buyer to put his coal in now for next winter. And, in addition, buying in May means being pretty certain that you've taken advantage of the year's best prices on coal. Nine years out of ten this is absolutely true.

Get These Prices

As Coal experts we recommend that you put in your coal now. Or at least get our May prices now. They're very favorable — and the reason for that is simply this:

The big winter rush of coal buying plus unfavorable weather conditions make it impossible to mine, ship, sell and deliver coal as efficiently and economically during cold weather as is possible now,

If you had heating trouble last winter, perhaps one of our heating experts could make some good suggestions. They'll be glad to talk it over with you, any time. This service is rendered without charge—whether or not you are a Consumers Company customer.

We can give you better service. In the winter it is impossible to get coal as clean—despite all efforts—as it is in spring and summer. For during cold weather, dust and dirt are frozen to the coal—and cannot be completely removed even by careful re-screening and re-forking.

This is a big reason for May coal-buying in itself. Favorable price is another. Then there's still a third. And that is the pleasant knowledge you'll have all summer—that your heat and comfort for next winter are already provided for.

A Chicago Tradition

Consumers Company—to tens of thousands of Chicago coal users—is more than just a place to buy coal and other commodities. In its own way it is as much an institution as the City Hall or the Federal Building. It stands for a big community benefit.

Because we sell heating efficiency—comfort—rather than coal to the home-owner. Or power plant efficiency to the big steam-coal users. No order is too large for us to handle, or too small for us to appreciate. Our success has been built on the idea that we not only provide the fuel—but must exert ourselves in practical ways to see that it burns economically.

Doing business on a large scale—and we handle one-fifth of Chicago's retail coal business—we are able to have coal experts at mines. They inspect coal, make laboratory tests, to see that we get the best coal mined—at all times.

Then we keep experts at our 45 local fuel yards. They inspect coal again when it comes in. Great pains are taken in preparing your coal for delivery—so that it is clean. Every one of our customers, every one of our employes knows that Consumers Company insists upon full, honest weight in every load of coal we deliver.

And we back this up with a guarantee that absolutely protects you—insures coal satisfaction. It's reproduced below. Read it.

Think this over today. Talk it over at dinner. Then phone us—Franklin 6400—any time up to 9:00 p. m. Get prices, or any other information you want. Remember—

BOLSHEVIK RULE IN CUBA SEIZES YANKS' PROPERTY

Robs Americans of Coin, Goods and Realty.

BY LARRY RUE.

(Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.)

HAVANA, May 25.—Cuba has just celebrated the twenty-second anniversary of its independence and the close of another successful open season on Americans. No matter where one goes among the American colony one is overwhelmed with the tale of personal grievances due to the confiscation of property, corruption of legal machinery, and general mismanagement of the government.

"To some there is the question whether the United States did not give Cuba independence before she was ready for it," one American said. "The government employés are getting immensely rich from the palace down."

Joke to Europeans.

A Canadian remarked, if Cuba tried to do to the English or the French what it does every day to Americans the United States would be forced to intervene to preserve the Monroe doctrine.

"The United States would not permit England and France to treat its subjects like it will the Latin-Americans," he said. "America is leaning backwards in trying to let these countries rule themselves in an effort to win the good faith of Latin-American, but only the European realizes how such a policy, instead of obtaining prestige, arouses contempt, which explains why these countries are considerably more careful in dealing with the Europeans than with the Americans."

The only intervention America made here recently was to preserve the régime, which is frankly anti-American, a régime which, after promising to initiate the thirteen reforms presented by Gen. Crowder in return for a $50,000,000 loan, waited until it got the money in its hands and then left every point unfulfilled.

Praises Recent Revolt.

A prominent wealthy Cuban celebrated for his honesty told THE TRIBUNE "instead of helping the recent revolt, the United States took the opposite stand, placed an embargo on arms and intervened thus in behalf of President Zayas, who fought the Platt amendment which gave the United States the right to intervene to protect American lives and property and who has made political capital of his anti-American sentiment.

"The revolution is not finished; it is merely postponed. Everybody knows the extent of the graft and corruption. There is no secret about President Zayas entering office three years ago and now being worth $5,000,000. If in the history of Latin-America there was an honest uprising against graft and corruption and maladministration, the last outbreak was just that."

There are several cases of confiscation of American titles to property yet owing to delays in court they cannot get a settlement after many years.

There are many others who have legitimate receipted bills for goods sold the government, but the officials who have grown prosperous during office refuse to pay them unless special consideration is paid.

An oldtime American here, Walter Smith, owned some property where the Yacht club now stands. He refused to sell it. A company developing that section took forceful possession of the premises when Smith was away, ejected his family, razed the house and sold part of the land to the Yacht club. This happened three years ago, and he has not yet received any settlement.

J. E. Barlow, a real estate man here for twenty-two years and one of the signers of the Taft report on Cuba, has numerous complaints which have been brought to the attention of the state department. He owned half of forty acres of land in the center of Havana, now worth $4,000,000, on a deed dating back to the seventeenth century and reaffirmed under the law promulgated by Gen. Wood, but despite this Gomez Mena, a powerful politician, is holding up development for six years, although he has put up no claim approved by the court."

Robbery of Property.

Besides this the Cuban Consolidating Advertising company became the possessor of all Mr. Barlow's billboards, etc., estimated at $160,000. Mr. Barlow obtained criminal conviction, but the Cuban was released on the intervention of a senator. The Cuban is now free collecting money from Mr. Barlow's boards. The court is constantly postponing the case which has been going on for five years.

The government took over the water mains and sewers in the Mariano district which cost Mr. Barlow $162,000. The government admits the claim, but no payment is made, though this is more than five years old.

"I sold the son of President Zayas a house one time for $8,000," Mr. Barlow said. "The lawyers representing themselves as speaking in behalf of Zayas demanded that the bill be reduced $1,000. I for a second did not believe Zayas would stoop to this and refused point blank. The attorneys threatened that unless I made the reduction it would cause me to lose more. It seems that it has, for since then I have been persecuted by the government."

GERMANY CRIES FOR CREDITS; 'NO' —REICHSBANK

Dawes Plan Must Prevail, Schacht Asserts.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, May 25.—Every business man in Germany is clamoring for ready cash and credits. Other business men express fear and distrust of the plans suggested in the Dawes reparations report. But Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German reichsbank, today stood up in Hamburg before hundreds of dissatisfied important business men of his country, announcing that "the government will not issue new credits. The Dawes report is the only possible solution for the difficulties of Europe and Germany."

Dr. Schacht insisted that many business houses are keeping back their stock, hoping for a better market, although they realize that German prices are far above the world market prices. He strongly urged them to sell now, instead of storing goods and paying the tremendous interest demanded by the bankers.

Credits for Farmers.

"The government will not give the business men credits to help them to get exorbitant prices," Dr. Schacht said, "but it will try to grant the German agriculturists long term loans to enable them to produce food which the country needs."

The government's new strenuous efforts to develop the agriculture of the country beyond the pre-war productivity, while of little importance in the sales of American grain and cattle to Germany this year, may prove an important factor in the next two or three years.

"German industry cannot hope for long term credits until the Dawes report is materialized," he continued. "It will lead to general financial stabilization. The Dawes suggestions are the only possible means of stabilizing European finances. It is the first post-war mounmental document recognizing the international relationship between the economic systems of the different countries.

Pleads for Colonies.

"We believe that the logical consequence of the discovery of international relationship should be a realization that Germany cannot remain an economical asset without colonies and colonial economic possibilities. They form an important part of the international work of all countries."

"Genteel bankruptcy is the best description of the present financial situation of the average business man in Germany," Herman A. Metz, former comptroller of New York, said today when interviewed. He arrived here for important conferences with leading business men in the chemical industry.

FARMS BILLS TO GIVE CONGRESS BUSY 2 WEEKS

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.] — Agricultural relief legislation will be the storm center in the deliberations of both houses of congress during the two weeks remaining before the tentative date of adjournment.

The farm bloc leaders threaten to prevent adjournment unless the McNary-Haugen agricultural export corporation bill or some other measure is enacted into law.

The McNary-Haugen bill after being before the house for the past week is now considered by its opponents and by some of its friends as being more or less on the rocks. Owing to inability to bring it to a final vote yesterday, as first planned, its sponsors have been forced to lay it aside until the latter part of this week after appropriation bills and other pressing measures are disposed of.

Defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill would be followed by an attempt by the radicals to force the passage of the Norris-Sinclair bill, which creates a $100,000,000 corporation to buy and sell farm products but which does not attempt to assess losses back on the domestic production.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Mayonnaise was originally called mahonnaise by its inventor, Cardinal Richelieu's cook,

Delightfully pungent, it enhances, but does not overpower, the food to which it is added,

And thus proves an ideal dressing for the delicious salads served at CHILDS.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, May 25.—Gen. Percin, a close friend of M. Herriot, today outlined the army reforms which the radical socialist government must undertake.

Cutting the military training from eighteen months to ten months and a reduction in proportion of artillery with regard to the infantry are the principal changes.

Gen. Percin points out that the excessive development of artillery as a result of the great war resulted in infantry divisions being unable to be relieved when desired because the roads were choked with ordnance supplies, and thousands of men available as infantry were used by the artillery.

A column seven miles long on an ordinary road composed of a mile and a half of infantry and five and a half miles of artillery permitted the enemy, armed with machine guns, to pounce on the column and capture or destroy the artillery because the guns were insufficiently guarded.

Gen. Percin demands the suppression of courts martial with capital punishment.

Talk on Syria Policy.

Gen. von Weygand is proceeding to Lyons tonight, where he will confer with M. Herriot tomorrow, and then will continue to Marseilles, embarking for Beirut on Wednesday. The French press today reiterates the official statement that there is no trouble with the Syrians, insisting that Gen. von Weygand's hurried return to his post is due to the fact that he wishes to witness the sports of the soldiers on June 6 at Beirut.

LYONS, France, May 25.—[United News.]—Good faith toward Germany, plans for the evacuation of the Ruhr, and a desire to give the world "real peace," are among the policies of Edouard Herriot, leader of the radical group in France and most prominently mentioned as the next prime minister.

In an interview at his home here today M. Herriot outlined his views on international affairs, which he hopes to enforce should he succeed M. Poincare.

"Go Straight Forward."

"If I assume power and succeed in giving the world real peace, including the security of France, my work will be sufficiently great. I will consent to a rest without regret," M. Herriot said. "Generally speaking I will go straight forward; I think loyalty is the best of abilities.

"First, I must settle the difficulties which have arisen over the experts' report, then study the conditions for the evacuation of the Ruhr. Also, I hope to reinforce the league of nations and promote more amicable international relations."

M. Herriot's declaration for increased French support of the league of nations is considered important, for under the Poincare régime France's attitude toward the league has frequently been an indifferent one. The radical leader emphasized that France's good will toward Germany must be reciprocal and warned that any German tendencies toward reaction would hamper friendly Franco-German relations.

Berlin to Be Judge.

"If the Germans return to imperialism and refuse to pay reparations," M. Herriot said, "negotiations would be most difficult. My policy toward Germany will be one of good faith, provided it is reciprocal. Otherwise such a policy would be fruitless."

M. Herriot said he wanted to "help all democracies fight all imperialisms."

The present low state of the franc, he said, was the result of a reactionary maneuver, adding:

"If I take power I will show no mercy to the financial defeatists, no matter how highly placed they are."

Good "L" Service Developed City's Many Shopping Centers

Merchants and Manufacturers Profit by the Speed and Reliability of the Rapid Transit Lines

CHICAGO'S "Loop" district is known as one of the greatest business and shopping centers in the world. The Elevated Lines, by girdling it with fast and reliable transportation service, have been the most potent factor in its phenomenal development.

"Shoppers' Specials", operating from the outlying sections of the city and suburbs at a speed of from 20 to 25 miles an hour, bring distant homes close to the shopping and business center.

But it is not the Loop alone that is benefited by rapid transit service. Miles distant from the heart of the city, great business centers have developed in close proximity to the Elevated Lines. Factories and industrial plants have located within easy reach of the rapid transit lines, which have linked them to the homes of the men and women workers in those establishments. Managers of industrial plants testify to the reliability of "L" service in all seasons of the year in the matter of workers being on time.

As surely as trade follows the flag, industries and homes follow the routes of the rapid transit lines. Property adjacent to the "L" lines increases in value much faster than in sections of the city not having convenient rapid transit service. Good transportation transforms barren wastes into populous centers in a few years.

Chicago is destined to become the greatest city in the country. To fulfill its destiny, it must have adequate transportation facilities, and these must be supplied by the extension and development of its rapid transit system.

IMPORTANT NOTES ON CANNING

PACK the vegetables loosely in clean, tested jars to within one-half inch of the top, or one inch if corn is being canned. Shake the jars lightly but do not press down the vegetables with a spoon.

Pack the fruit firmly in clean, tested jars to within one-half inch of the top. Pack pitted, stoned or cored fruits with the cavities toward the center of the jar. Fill the jars with boiling sirup or hot water.

Store jars in a cool place.

—From the new Butterick Cook Book.

EVERY jar rubber must do two important things if it is to make an air-tight seal. It must first stretch and then it must "set."

It must stretch enough to pass easily over the neck of the jar. Too much stretch, however, robs the rubber of the ability to come back into place—to "set."

Only if the rubber will "set" firmly when it is once in place and closely grip the neck of the jar, can you be sure of a permanent, air-tight seal.

"U. S." Jar Rubbers already tested for you

"U. S." Jar Rubbers come to you tested for stretch and "set."

Back of every "U. S." Jar Rubber is the rich experience of the largest rubber organization in the world—the United States Rubber Company.

From its own plantations in Sumatra comes the high grade rubber used in "U. S." Jar Rubbers. In the company's great experimental laboratories, "U. S." Jar Rubbers are developed by experts and subjected to severe tests to insure the qualities necessary to meet successfully all the demands of modern canning methods.

"U. S." Jar Rubbers are made to give you the close, snug seal which will safely keep your precious fruit from spoiling—no matter what method of canning you use.

SENATOR GLASS SECOND CHOICE IF M'ADOO FAILS

Effort Seen to Swing Votes if Necessary.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—United States Senator Carter Glass of Virginia will be the reserve candidate of the McAdoo forces in the Democratic national convention and an effort to swing the McAdoo delegates to him will probably be made if the attempt to nominate Mr. McAdoo fails, according to information received by supporters of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Believing that at least half the 1,098 delegates will be opposed to the nomination of Mr. McAdoo, Smith's friends are inclined to view the candidacy of Senator Glass as a menace, although they expect to be able to block his nomination.

It was admitted, however, that the Virginia senator would have great strength as a candidate. He will probably start with little more than the votes of Virginia and the swing of delegates to him would not be expected until a drive for Mr. McAdoo had been made and failed.

Intimate Friend of Wilson.

Some of the most influential of Mr. McAdoo's supporters were said to favor Senator Glass if it should become apparent that Mr. McAdoo could not be nominated. Senator Glass was known as one of the closest friends of the late President Wilson and has a distinguished public record both as senator and as secretary of the treasury.

Col. Edward M. House, Bernard Baruch, and Thomas L. Chadbourne, are said to be among the McAdoo supporters inclined to Senator Glass as "second choice."

Other "Second Choices."

The quest of Gov. Smith's friends for "second choice" votes among the delegates has revealed that many of the so-called "dark horses" or "favorite son" candidates have been doing the same thing.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas was said to be another candidate who might be in a position to get many of the McAdoo delegates.

Homer S. Cummings and Senator Samuel M. Ralston are among others.

Al Smith Will Be Next President, Mack Insists

Youngstown, O., May 25.—A prediction that Gov. Al Smith of New York will be the next president of the United States was made here today by Norman E. Mack, Democratic national committeeman of Buffalo.

"The eastern states are for Smith and they are not willing to give him up, even for a compromise," Mack declared. "Smith will have nearly 300 votes on the first ballot."

BOYS ROUND UP FOR RODEO OF PLAYGROUNDS

The first playground rodeo ever staged in Chicago will be held at the various district playgrounds on June 7, under the supervision of the Saddle and Sirloin club at the stockyards, and C. H. Inglish, supervisor of the bureau of recreation of the board of education.

Boys are rigging themselves out in cowboy outfits and hurling lariats at wooden pegs. A team of three will represent each playground. Each contestant must be able to rope a still object at 15 feet and a moving object 10 feet away. The third test will be to spin the rope around his body and keep the rope going.

EIGHT TAKEN IN VICE RAID.

Four men and four women, charged with being inmates of a disorderly house, were arrested by deputy sheriffs early yesterday in a raid on the Justice tavern in Justice Park. They were arraigned before Police Magistrate Paul R. Witt and their hearing set for May 28.

THE SEA WALL

By Eleanor Mercein Kelly

Blue Ribbon Fiction

SYNOPSIS.

On a neck of woodland sticking out into the Chesapeake and separated from the mainland by swamp and water lives a wreck of a man known throughout the Tidewater community as the hermit. A lovely young daughter, Rhoda, lives there with him. Father and daughter are thought to belong to the poor white colony known as "Ginney folk" by the gentry, but the Ginney people, with the exception of their leader, known as Chief Doane, know nothing about them. Doane supplies the hermit and his daughter with food and other necessities. He is their only visitor.

When Rhoda is 13 she saves the life of young Will Shepard of the gentry side of Tidewater, whose boat is being pounded to pieces on the rocks off the point. Rhoda and her father go to the rescue and bring the boy back to their shack. Will lives with his cousin, old Miss Folly Shepard, in the great house called Shepard's Lee. After his rescue by Rhoda, Miss Folly interests herself in the child. A strong attachment develops between Will and Rhoda. After her father dies, Doane sends Rhoda to school in Boston, where she remains for five years. When she returns she is a beautiful young woman and takes the male population of Tidewater by storm. She is not popular with the women of the community. When Will Shepard returns from college he falls in love with her.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

WILL IS JEALOUS OF DOANE.

So, though Rhoda continued as stated intervals to be asked to Shepard's Lee, where she was treated with perfect kindness, she never succeeded in getting beyond the ramparts of Miss Folly's impregnable courtesy. However, she had ceased to hold either lady or mansion in awe. Rather exceptional opportunities, thanks to a gift for friendship, her marked talent, and possibly to the unlimited expense money Doane placed at her disposal, had widened her horizon, enlarged her acquaintance with fine houses and fine people, without in the least lessening her appreciation of Shepard's Lee.

It troubled Rhoda to see the changes that were slowly taking place at Shepard's Lee. Miss Folly no longer held her dancing class because, she explained, of a touch of gout. It is an odd bit of psychology that people who are quite willing to admit to gout, with all its implications, aristocratic and otherwise, will sternly deny the presence of the more vulgar but quite innocent rheumatism. She had given up her other classes in the arts as well; or it is just possible they had given her up, now that poker work and china painting were going somewhat out of fashion. The war, Miss Folly intimated, left little time for the cultivation of the graces. As a result, Rhoda missed more than one bit of furniture from its accustomed place, even one or two of the portraits had disappeared—"to be revarnished," said Miss Folly. The worst of these disappearances was that of Thomas. Rhoda asked rather grimly whether he, too, had gone to be revarnished.

"Like a shot!"

"O, no, my dear"—Miss Folly was not blessed or cursed with a sense of humor. "But since I've disposed of the roans, which were getting too fat and lazy from disuse, I had really so little for a man servant to do. Good butlers are so scarce nowadays that I felt I had no right to deprive a larger household of his services. So I have given Thomas to the Dinwiddies." She spoke as if Thomas, like his forbears, were hers to dispose of at will; a supposition which the old Negro would have been the last to dispute.

Rhoda spoke unhappily of these changes to her lover. "Can't you do something?" she insisted. "Miss Folly's too old to try to run that great place all alone."

He frowned. "I know. It's absurd! I'm afraid Aunt Folly is really quite poor. And we used to think Shepard's Lee was going to be such a grand inheritance!"

Rhoda's eyes widened oddly. "Don't you still think so?

He laughed. "O, I dare say—what's left of it."

She misunderstood. "The sea wall would save it. Look here, Will, why don't you ask Doanie to build that for you? He loves Shepard's Lee, too; I believe he'd be glad of the chance."

He gave her a knowing little grin. "So I hear! And he'll get his chance, I suppose—but not while Aunt Folly lives, I hope. I believe it would kill her to give up the place."

"Of course it would," said Rhoda simply. "Why should she give up the place?"

He laughed again. "Well—mortgages are expensive luxuries to keep up, too rich for my blood, at any rate. Like sea walls. No, no, I've no idea of throwing any more good money after bad. There's nothing for a fellow to do here anyway but farm, and I'm no farmer. Why, I'll be glad if I get enough out of Shepard's Lee to buy my ticket—and yours—back to Iowa!"

The girl drew away from him, unconsciously. "Will! You mean—you would sell Shepard's Lee? O, you couldn't!"

"Couldn't I, just? Like a shot! Ever since I came down I've been urging Aunt Folly to accept an offer she's had from some New York capitalist who wants to shoot ducks here—about all the place is good for, now. But she seems to think I'm joking—a poor sort of joke at that."

In every artist there are two persons, the doer and the looker-on. The looker-on in Rhoda seemed to hear the voice of the man she loved as from a great distance; and she tried in vain to visualize him without the background of misty water and tall, columned house—in such a background, for instance, as she had found once on a visit in the middle west, where the sharp edges of things, the brisk, vigorous air, a landscape as distinct and unmodulated as the people's voices, had given her at the time an impression of vague familiarity. She knew now of what that place had reminded her—of Will Shepard.

He felt her instinctive recoil, and his arm tightened around her.

"I know how you love Virginia," he said regretfully. "So do I—so do most Americans, I think. It's like a favorite historical picture book. But we have outgrown picture books—or at least we can't afford 'em any more, not in this family. Why, Rhoda, I've no idea of being the third generation to be ruined by this vampire of a place. Shepard's Lee has been eating its head off ever since the civil war. Poor Charles Shepard realized it, and tried to get hold of money enough to save it; went up to New York and did his best. Imagine one of these Tidewater men, an innocent dreamy scholar like that, trying to buck the stock market! Pitiful! He had a sort of obsession about the sea wall, they say; always exhorting his neighbors about it. Twice he got almost enough money together to start the thing, but lost it trying to make more. Then he got drowned, and left Aunt Folly with the bag to hold. And here she is, practically starving herself to keep the property for me, who don't want it. Ridiculous, isn't it? And awful, too. Why, think of it! I let the old girl put me through college."

Something both manly and boyish in the young fellow's helplessness touched Rhoda deeply, and she made quick amends for her moment of withdrawal. There was silence a while on the enchanted island; then Will said awkwardly:

"There's another reason I want to take you away from here, to a place where people aren't so damned exclusive, where persons are appreciated for themselves, not for what their fathers used to be. And then—I want to get you away from that man Doane."

Rhoda lifted her head in astonishment. "From Doanie?"

"Yes—not that I don't think him one of the finest ever—he makes most of the men round here look foolish. I know you think of him as a sort of father, too. But, darling, he's not your father. I must confess, it—it gets my goat to see you cuddling up to him, sitting on his knee—a rough, common old fellow like that!"

Rhoda stared. "Will Shepard," she asked slowly, "aren't you one of those who appreciate people for themselves, not what their fathers used to be?"

He kissed her in quick remorse. "Why, of course I am! Forgive me, darling! Only it makes me jealous as the devil to think of your being—kissed by any man but me."

The girl laughed softly. Jealousy was a fault that she, like most women, could find it in her heart to condone.

"It just happens, goose," she said, surprised herself to realize the fact, "that Doanie has never kissed me in my life."

Miss Folly's affairs were so on Rhoda's mind that she spoke of them shortly to Doane.

"Did you know," she asked, "that Shepard's Lee had a mortgage on it?"

She spoke as if a mortgage were some sort of cancerous growth—and indeed the two are not dissimilar. The Ginneyman smiled.

"I reckon there are mighty few of the old places round here that ain't got an incumbrance on 'em, honey. They'd feel sort of naked without their mortgages, I expect."

"'Haven't,' not 'ain't got,' dear," corrected Rhoda from force of habit. She had undertaken to bring Doane's language up to the level of his letters, a process to which he submitted tolerantly, much as a great dog submits to being taught tricks. "But this is such a big mortgage that Will thinks he will have to sell the place because of it!"

Hmn! Does he? It's not his to sell, quite yet. But look here"—he hesitated, glancing away from her delicately—"I ain't—I mean I am not—aiming to poke and pry into other folks' affairs, but—ain't you two fixing to get married some time? And if so, when?"

Rhoda blushed and laughed. "How subtly you put it! The day he gets back from the war, Doanie."

The man gave a great sigh. "Well, I'm glad that's fixed. Then you may just tell your young fellow not to trouble his head any more about mortgages—O, yes, there's two of 'em, and then some. But—his wife will be holding them."

"Doanie? Not me?"

He grinned, slyly. "Whose language is queer now? Yes, you. You see, that's how I invested your money."

The girl's utter lack of interest in material affairs, her vagueness about finance, were family traits which he had long recognized and profited by. But now a shrewdness came into her eyes which he had noted occasionally before, and rather dreaded. She put both hands on his shoulders.

"My money?" she repeated. "Doanie, have I any money, really? Looking back, it seems to me papa and I were poor, about the poorest people I ever saw. What had he to leave me?"

Good Morning!

It IS a good morning when I can sit right down and tell you about a picture that will be a real treat to you! So—let's be about the pleasant business! SEE Mary Pickford in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall"!

The picture has charm and quaintness and romance and adventure. It has humor. It has beautiful costumes and scenery. The sets are all that could be desired. So is the direction. The acting is so good you forget it is acting.

After which pæan of praise it remains to be said that the picture is from the romance by Charles Major, and if the author ever saw the picture he'd know he'd written a bookful!

Miss Pickford is cast as a lovely and rebellious lady who will not permit even a queen to dictate as to whom she shall wed. She storms and wheedles and smiles the heart out of you!

Alan Forrest, as THE BELOVED, has your entire hatred. Clare Eames, as Queen Elizabeth, makes you want your mother. Marc MacDermott, as "the other man," will get a hiss from any sophisticated movie optience. And so it goes.

No use talking, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" will meander down through cinema history as one of the most delightful of film costume pictures.

Trumpet and flowers, and fun and flare;
Duels and intrigue and sabers bare;
Ladies and villains, and pouts and prayer,
Tears and kisses—all are there.

CLOSEUPS

Mrs. Harold Lloyd (Mildred Davis) will resume her station as a film luminary in a few months, it is said. Meanwhile Harold and Mildred are still seeking a name for the baby girl born last Wednesday. The story which is likely to be adapted for Miss Davis' return to the screen is said to be "Alice in Wonderland."

Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor continue to be inseparable. The stories of their engagement continue to be printed in Los Angeles, and they are seen in each other's company daily.

100,000 Led by King George Pray for British Empire

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, May 25. — "Empire Thanksgiving day" was impressively celebrated today in the world's largest stadium, Wembley Park, in the presence of King George and Queen Mary and other members of the royal family. Scenes unprecedented in the history of the British empire were enacted when 100,000 citizens joined in the solemn rendering of thanks for the empire builders of the past and prayer for the guidance of the empire builders of the present and future.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the Anglican church, conducted the religious service, an impressive moment of which was two minutes of silence at the commencement for thanks and prayer for the constructors of the empire. Massed choirs of more than 3,000 voices sang hymns, accompanied by massed military bands.

The archbishop's address was carried to every part of the mammoth stadium by amplifiers. The prelate, speaking from the royal dais where sat the king and queen, reminded his hearers that they were taking part in "the largest religious service the world has ever seen."

T. Marshall for Peace if He Has to Fight

Former Vice President Is No Pacifist, However.

Thomas R. Marshall, former Vice President of the United States, speaking at the Memorial Sunday meeting of the Sunday Evening club, last night, at which members of the G. A. R. were guests of honor, compared the pacifists of today with those in the north before the civil war, who said "Let the erring brethren go their way."

"If the pacifists had had their way then, the black man would probably be in slavery today," Mr. Marshall said. "I am for every proposition for preventing war, league of nations, Harding, Coolidge, Pepper or Lodge court. But in spite of this yellow streak, I am not a pacifist.

"I don't want to sit quietly here and see every battleship destroyed and every regiment disbanded and invite the world to come and take the property of the American people. I want peace, but I want America to be in a position to preserve her institutions, homes, civilization, and rights.

"The trouble with America today is there are too many preachers legislating and too few legislators praying. Treaties, documents, constitution, and conventions will not bring peace. Our democracy rests upon the high thinking, fine living judgment and conscience of our men and women. Get right with God and help other people to do so the same and there will be no war in the world.

"The model citizen today is the man who can successfully evade the most laws. We didn't have as many laws when we started the government as we have now. I'd like to operate on the body politic and remove several hundred thousand laws and leave only the ten commandments and the golden rule that we started with."

Mr. Marshall declared that the old fashioned home is disappearing and in its place young people start housekeeping with a flat and a flivver.

This-and-That of the Actors and the Plays

Guy Bates Post is going ahead with his plans to appear next season as Mephisto in "Faust," and sends word that he has engaged Wilfred Buckland for the title-part. . . . Mr. Post's Australian tour will begin at Eastertide.

Miss Irene Castle, on her way back to Chicago, tells the New-York reporters that she has not abandoned her plan to dance in a few performances of "Sitting Pretty" down there, but that she is unable to start this week, as at first announced.

Miss Gilda Gray is shaking by-bye to her loving public in America, and is going to dance in London, Paris, and Berlin. When she comes back, she says, she will go in for drama.

Eddie Cantor is providing sketches for performance in the 1924 edition of the Greenwich Village Follies and in next season's Music-Box Revue. . . . Miss Winnie Lightner, Lester Allen, and Tom Patricola, who were recently here in the 1923 Scandals, are to be in the 1924 issue.

Mr. Hennessy, secretary of the Hull-House Players, sends a reminder that "The Deluge," to be put on June 8 in the Cort, was acted last November by those resident players, under the direction of the late Laura Dainty Pelham, and implies that THE TRIBUNE erred a week since in saying that the play will be new here when given in the Cort. . . . Of course, the point was that it will be new in the "professional" or mercantile sense. Other plays have been acted in Hull-House previously to representation in Chicago by professionals. "Justice" was one: it was staged by Mrs. Pelham more than six years before John Barrymore acted it in Powers'. "The Silver Box" was another.

Just as interesting, if of smaller value as datum, is a note from the management of "Leah Kleschna" to say that "the play was Mrs. Fiske's first starring-vehicle." The difficulty is that Mrs. Fiske, when "Leah Kleschna" was staged in 1904, had been a star more than twenty years.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Albert Baker, St. Anne, Ill., route No. 4, was awarded $5.

The Question.

If King Tut were to come to life today, what would surprise him most?

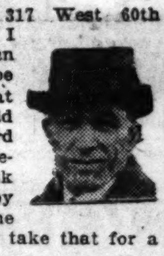
Where Asked.

Oak street beach.

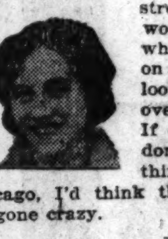
The Answers.

Walter H. Drexler, 3853 North Western avenue, printer—I suppose the fact that women were still wearing the styles of his day. By gosh, I'd bet he'd faint if he saw that today. And automobiles, he'd probably walk clear around them to see where the oxen were.

Miss Lillian Pagni, 926 Sergwick street, bindery worker—If I were King Tut and I woke up, I think I would be most surprised to see the same fashions in style. I think next I'd want to know how they discovered my tomb; and next I'd want to know what became of my chariot.



Frank J. Miller, 317 West 60th street, machinist — I know if I had been dead that long I'd be very much surprised at the changes. I'm afraid you'd have a hard time making me believe you could talk across the ocean by wireless radio. The airplane, I'd probably take that for a big bird.



Miss Marie de Salvo, 930 Sedgwick street, clerk — That would depend upon where I woke up. If on a desert, suppose I'd look for a camel and overlook automobiles. If on an ocean liner I don't know what I'd think. If here in Chicago, I'd think the busy world had gone crazy.

Howard Thompson, 7001 Clyde avenue, student—Believe I'd be most surprised at being alive. Might also be curious about all the King Tut signs. Might want to get into an auto and see how fast those queer things could go. Anyhow, I'd have all kinds of experiences for a while.

Civic Opera Subscriptions, Giving Lower Rate, June 1

The subscription department of the Chicago Civic Opera company will be thrown open for the coming season on June 1. By purchasing subscriptions patrons are not only assured seats for eleven performances, but they save 10 per cent over box office prices. The lowest subscription price, $10, gives the right to subscribers to sit in the upper gallery for eleven performances—a cost of less than $1 a performance. Main floor subscribers pay $5.45 for a seat for which they would have to pay $6 at the box office.

Big Gathering in Dublin Celebrates "Empire Day"

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

DUBLIN, May 25.—Empire day was celebrated in Dublin last night by the members of the St. George society. This was the first celebration held in Dublin for some years, although Empire day owes its establishment to the Irish peer, the Earl of Meath. Maj. Cuthem Whewell presided over the supper at which guests were present from all parts of the empire.

Women Urge World Court, Both Parties

Voters' League Submits Platform Planks.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Entrance of the United States into the world court, federal child labor laws, enforcement of the merit system in office, increased appropriations for the women's bureau, children's bureau and bureau of home economics, and equalization of educational opportunity throughout the nation are among the "planks" to be presented by the National League of Women Voters to the Republican and Democratic conventions for incorporation in the platforms of both parties, according to a statement issued at the league headquarters here today.

The full strength of the organization is lined up for the world court, which is the main objective of the league's campaign for international coöperation to prevent war.

"We support the proposal for the entry of the United States into the permanent court of international justice and urge on members of the senate the action necessary to such entry as an important step in substituting law for force in the settlement of international disputes.

"We heartily advocate a policy of participation in international conferences and of coöperation with international agencies, both for the elimination of the causes of war and for humanitarian purposes. We urge that such coöperation already begun shall be made official."

Removal of legal discriminations against women "by specific measures not prejudicial to women's labor laws or to special welfare legislation," also is to be urged by the women voters.

The league purposes an intensive drive to obtain incorporation of its ideas in the platforms. Copies of the suggested planks will be sent to all convention delegates, and presidents of state leagues have been requested to arrange deputations in favor of the planks to delegates before they leave home.

"In 1920," it is stated, "all of the league's requests were included in the prohibition platform, all except one in the Democratic platform, five in the Republican platform and three in the Farmer-Labor platform. It is also interesting to note that more than half of the requests embodied in the planks presented the party conventions have been carried out during the 1920-1924 period."

Several members of the national board will be in attendance at both conventions in addition to the chairmen of the league's official delegations, Mrs. Richard Edwards of Peru, Ind., and Mrs. Solon R. Jacobs of Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Edwards will be in charge at the Republican convention and Mrs. Jacobs at the Democratic convention.

Adelaide Berkman Gives Second Piano Recital

Adelaide Berkman gave her second piano recital of the season at the Playhouse yesterday afternoon, being one of only a few Chicago artists, and more particularly young artists, to make more than one appearance in a year. An interesting item on her program was a set of variations on an original theme by the Chicago pedagogue and pianist, Heniot Levy. They furnished a good example of modern technique, from the point of view of both the composer and the performer, and had musical merit besides. Miss Berkman played them fluently, energetically, and with personality, as, indeed, she did the Bach-Busoni Chaconne, Mendelssohn's "Scotch" Sonata, and the other numbers on her program.

It's a Dangerous Thing—

—To tell a doting mother that her boy is to blame.
—To trust a man who promises more than 10 per cent dividends.
—To put a cigaret smoker in charge of a kindergarten.
—To try to settle a neighborhood quarrel.
—To think that life is only sunshine.
—To give your daughter expensive tastes and no earning capacity.
—To keep all our religion in our wife's name.

Inexpensive Cocoa Cake.

There is nothing that really takes the place of cake, while cake (with a sauce perhaps) make take the place of puddings and other desserts and be an excellent substitute for candy. It is a great resource in the family larder, especially in families, whose members are inclined to overeat of candy, and of the ice creams with sirups.

Of all the cakes, chocolate seems to be the favorite with both men and children, and there are no end of simple recipes for making cakes of this flavor In making the following, by slightly melting the shortening, we shorten the process and labor, and since we do not demand that the simple cakes be of perfect texture this is quite justifiable:

Sift together two tablespoons of cocoa, one and a half cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of baking powder, and one-half teaspoon of baking soda. Beat one egg with a pinch of salt, and add to it one cup of sour milk and beat them together well. Beat into this one cup of sugar, and then a third of a cup, or two tablespoons will do, of just melted butter. Fold in the sifted and dry mixture and flavor with a scant teaspoon of vanilla or use spices if to taste.

This may be baked in various ways. It will make three ample layers in medium sized layer cake tins, and these put together with a boiled icing make a quite delicious cake. Or bake as cup cakes and serve with whipped cream. Or bake in a sheet and serve squares of it in the same way.

Players to Be Cordon Guests.

Miss Lucille La Verne and Eugene Lockhart of the "Sun Up" company will be the guests of the Cordon at luncheon at 12:30 o'clock today. Miss La Verne will speak in the lounge after lunch on "The Illiterates of the South," and Mr. Lockhart will give some humorous sketches.

Shedding Some Light on the Behavior of Suitors in Company

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Numerous letters reach me from girls complaining of the indifferent treatment of their male escorts when out in company. When alone with the same young men, the girls say their conduct is much more gratifying to their vanity. They tell them many things girls like to hear, and ferquently the sweet old story all about love and the girl. But when others are present the young men estrange themselves from any such flattering remarks. Sometimes, the girls tell me, they are taken to a party, and until it is time to go home ,they never hold a word of conversation with their escort.

For a time I was under the impression that perhaps the girls were too exacting—that they expected the youth to ignore every other girl and "show the world" his affections were centered on one young woman. But that did not seem to explain the constant repetition of the familiar accusation.

Finally I sent out a plea to young men for an explanation. Among those volunteered is D. A.'s:

"Most men of my experience with the fair sex, which has not been a limited one, disregard their sweethearts when in company. They do this not through a laxity of love, but through unselfishness. They want others to share in the joy of companionship with the one they love best. They want those present to see what an amiable companion they have had the good fortune to win. For my part, I would look upon it as bad manners to monopolize the one young woman for the entire evening."

The Sheik writes: "Men act that way in the company of girls for the reason that we all know—if you hang round after a girl all the time she gets sick of you. Furthermore, I have known them to get mad and call you down if you stand in the way of their meeting and making a hit with other fellows. I believe you have to keep a girl guessing if you want to hold her interest. I understand you give that advice to the girls. And it is not lost on us, either."

C. W. G. says the young man who makes love to the girl at home and treats her indifferently when they are at a party does not care to be talked about. He does not want people remaking that he is the girl's intended husband, for that may not be in his mind.

We would like to interrupt with the obvious comment on the unfairness of making love when there is no intent to marry.

Bill has a more pleasing explanation in: "When a man is deeply attached to a girl, it may make him extremely reticent in conduct and speech—particularly before strangers. Men are bashful when they are in love. They do not parade their feelings. I don't say all women parade theirs, but women are more inclined to want to show off when they are in love."

Says Buster, with tongue in cheek, undoubtedly: "Well, love in man's life is a thing apart. And when he is out in a social gathering he realizes that 'now is the time for all men to come to the aid of the party.'"

So, there you are girls! Five explanations from which you may take your choice! I note a unanimous lack of intent to change their course in all the letters received. So, it looks as though you will have to accept your suitors as you do life—change it if you can, and if you cannot resign yourself philosophically to current conditions.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Know Better Next Time.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are two friends who met two boys recently. They have called on us a few times and expressed their love for us, but when it comes to keeping an appointment they are not in sight. Tell us what to do as we love these boys dearly and can't keep them off our minds.

"A. AND R."

The next time boys you have known such a short time start telling you about being in love with you, take it with a proverbial grain of salt, as love seldom develops so quickly, my dear. They take love no more seriously than their appointments, do they?

Always in the Way.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17. I am going with a fellow one year my senior. I love him dearly and I know by his actions he cares for me. But there is always some other girl in the way. When I am alone with him I can get along nicely, but just as soon as this girl comes around I can't agree with him. I don't think he cares for her, but you never can tell. Please advise me what to do when she is around.

BRIGHT EYES."

Bright Eyes, unless you can arrange to get along with him when others are around, in the same manner as when you are alone, I am afraid you will soon be in the same boat as you feel the other lady is now. It looks to me as though the green eyed monster must cast a spell over you when you feel there is competition, but you must not let it do so, my dear. This has broken up many friendships, so be careful.

White Gloves for Night Driving.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Every automobile driver who sees this picture will involuntarily depress his right foot. As every one knows, the man in the car is signaling for a stop or a turn. And the reason you can see him is because he has been thoughtful enough to don white gloves for night driving. We recommend that other motorists do likewise.

In case any one is wondering how this suggestion strays into the fashion department, we are glad to point out that it is tremendously stylish to be alive these days. Nothing gets behind the times as quickly as a corpse.

The glove industry has discovered that the chief cause of a large number of motor accidents at night is that the man behind cannot tell when the man ahead is slowing down or is going to turn.

Manufacturers have figured that they can benefit themselves as well as save lives by advocating that the motorist wear white gloves while driving at night. In other words, the more white gloves the motorist buys and wears, the longer he will live to buy more white gloves.

The idea sounds eminently sensible to us, and we pass it along for serious consideration. As white buckskin is rather a dressy glove, chamois or chamoisette is recommended. There will doubtless be attractive and inexpensive white gloves put on the market. They should be washable and comfortable.

O, yes, one thing more—when you have purchased your white gloves, and donned them for night driving, don't forget to put out your hand when slowing, turning, or stopping.

Pinned in Place.

After pressing my coat, which had an inverted plait down the back, I carefully fastened the fold with two rows of huge safety pins.

Next morning I gaily tripped down to the car with no thought of the safety pins. I heard snickers as I walked from one end of the car to the other, but I couldn't imagine what caused them until I sat down, when a couple of the open pins pricked me. The evident amusement of the other passengers certainly didn't lessen my embarrassment as I plucked those seemingly endless rows.

No more safety pins for me!

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

BUSINESS GIRL: YES, THE QUESTION of exercise to a business girl is a vital one. Sitting in one position a whole morning, or a whole day, and day after day, has a most deteriorating effect on the muscles and on the organs, which depend upon good circulation for their health. Headaches, nervous breakdowns, pallid skin, troubles of constipation are not the result of working indoors but of not offsetting the indoor work by some form of daily exercise. Unless one wants to develop into a sickly, overwrought business woman who is not an asset to herself or the office of her employment, she must get in her daily walk, morning, noon, or night, or else some form of daily exercise, such as are incorporated in a set I have prepared especially for the business girl. It is in illustrated form, and you are welcome to it in return for a stamped, addressed envelope.

WHITEY: THE AMMONIA EMployed in bleaching the superfluous hairs is ordinary household ammonia. The electrical treatment in the hands of an expert physician is the only known permanent measure for removing them, except the X-ray treatment, of course, which is naturally confined to the office of medical men, and which requires the most skilled practice to prevent burning of the skin.

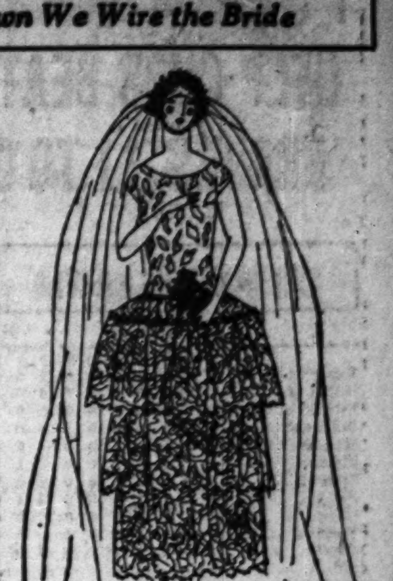
In This Wedding Gown We Wire the Bride

by Corinne Lowe



NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Neither short circuiting nor short skirting will afflict the bride who wears this period bride frock shown today. As to the former plight, insurance is taken out against that in the form of a wire which holds out the first tier of her lace skirt. As to the latter, the period wedding frock always demands a greater length of skirt than its rival, the tubular gown. Indeed, this frock may quite properly be dropped a few inches below the line indicated here without losing any of its essential charm. Quite the reverse.

In its detail this model, designed for the youthful bride, is faithful to the traditions of our grandmothers and great grandmothers. Here is the snug little bodice of white brocade with its rounded neckline and its short sleeves and here is the full skirt with its three tiers of lace. That alone would establish its character, even without the wire hooping which I have mentioned. The wire is followed by a circle of single orange blossoms, and this ritualistic flower blooms again at the corsage in an old fashioned nosegay trailing one delicate strand half way down the skirt. The slippers of white satin are ornamented with a square piece of lace decked with more orange blossoms, and the cap again takes up the flower song. This cap, by the way, is bound under the chin with a fold of its tulle.

As I have frequently remarked lately, many a wedding gown of today is achieved without a single touch of lace. But, while often slighted by the star of the wedding processional, lace seems more than ever in favor with bridesmaids. Speaking of these attendants, it is interesting to note that at a recent Long Island wedding all of the maids wore sleeveless gowns of ecru Roma crêpe trimmed with matching lace, matching slippers and stockings and poke bonnets of ecru straw combined with the lace. Only the maid of honor relieved the neutral situation by her frock of powder blue.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With an attack that had both power and speed and a defense equally as effective, Killefer's Cubs throttled the Braves in the final of the series yesterday, 11 to 0, thereby keeping right on the heels of the pace making Giants.

The attack not only was powerful but dazzling. Thirteen blows, ranging from a homer down to a flock of singles, were notched and the dazzling part came in the shape of seven stolen bases that left Catcher Mickey O'Neil both pop eyed and arm weary.

And, just as if all those hits and steals weren't enough to distress the Braves for one day, Elmer Jacobs made it worse by toying with them for nine rounds and allowing only five safeties that were too widely scattered even to give the visitors a real chance.

Cliff Steals Home.

Honors for the occasion were fairly well distributed, but Cliff Heathcote came in for a man's sized share. At bat he treated his average to a single, double and triple, but his prize contribution was a clean steal of home in the seventh inning. He also frisked one other bag and scored two other runs. Not a bad day's work.

The Cubs reserved most of their fireworks for the closing chapters. During the first five rounds they were fairly easy on one Yeargin, getting to him for only three runs, one of which was promoted by Heathcote's double and Hartnett's single in the second and the other two on a homer by Grimes into the left field seats with Statz on base in the third.

When the sixth arrived the Bruins started their wild hitting and wilder running. They chased Yeargin in that round with three runs. Then Cooney tried a rescue stunt, but his southpaw foolers didn't fool and he was stung for five hits and as many tallies in the seventh and eighth.

Only Two Reach Third.

Jacobs had the Braves so thoroughly subdued that only two of them had a chance to view the scenery from third base. One of these was Padgett, who walked to start the third inning and moved up a peg on a scratch hit by O'Neil. Jacobs then fanned Yeargin, personally tossed out Bancroft, on which the runners advanced, and ended the inning by nailing Powell on a grounder to Grantham. That was the only round in which more than one Brave was on the paths at the same time.

The other third base adventurer was Cunningham. He smote a double to right with one gone in the ninth and McInnis' infield out sent him to third, where he died when Friberg grabbed Tierney's liner for the final play.

Incidentally, the success of Big Jake was due in no small way to his support, particularly around the keystone sack, where Hollocher and Grantham were doing business. Sixteen chances fell to this pair.

Pull Double Steal.

Friberg started to make the game a rough house in the sixth by singling. After Grigsby's demise, Heathcote singled and with Friberg worked a twin steal of second and third. The Braves decided to pass Hartnett for a possible double play on Jacobs, but the strategy didn't work. Big Jake fanned and Statz then singled Friberg and Heathcote across. Cooney relieved Yeargin at this stage and he whiffed Hollocher, but before this Statz and Hartnett pulled off another double steal, on which the latter tallied.

Grantham inaugurated the seventh with a pass off Cooney. Grimes couldn't produce, but Friberg spanked a double to center and Grantham sauntered home. Then, after Grigsby had lofted out, Heathcote by sheer speed made three bases on a liner to right, Friberg counting. A moment later Heathcote broke for the plate and slid safely under O'Neil. A pass with three more hits counted the two other runs in the eighth.

NOTES OF THE SOX

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—One more game here, tomorrow, will end the series, after which the Sox move on to Cleveland for four games in three days, a double-header being booked for Wednesday.

Clark Griffith has a swell new concrete bleacher this year, seating about 6,000. It is to be used on special occasions such as Sundays and holidays. Today was Sunday. Forty-three persons [actual count] sat in it.

Boss Collins offered quite an argument when the umpire called a balk on Robertson in the second; but as always it did no good.

A long distance telephone talk took place last night between Eddie Collins and Johnny Evers. The fact that Johnny was able to do that indicates he's pretty strong. He said he was getting on perfectly.

It was Schalk's fifteen hundredth game and brought him bad luck. Peck's foul tip in the fourth damaged a finger so badly Ray had to quit for repairs.

Schalk Catches 1500th Game as Sox Beat Senators, 10 to 9

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—It required a lot of strategy and a lot of base hits to beat the Washington Senators today, but the White Sox had an abundance of both and went out in a long struggle that ended just before dark with the count in their favor, 10 to 9.

This wasn't anything like the first game when old Walter Johnson returned to his 1908 form and blanked the Sox with only one hit. This game was strictly modern. The Sox made fifteen hits and the Senators thirteen, and each side had three pitchers in the fray.

It was a see saw affair, though the Senators did get a commanding lead in the fifth inning when they ripped the Sox defense into bits and scored four runs. That made the count 6 to 1 in their favor and the game seemed to be all sewed up and put away on the shelf, but the Sox are game and filled with fighting spirit, and jumped right into a stampede in the sixth round, scoring six runs and taking the lead, 7 to 6.

Sox Come Through.

In the seventh the Senators broke loose again and with the good end of a close decision at the plate counted three runs. They would have made only one without that decision. This gave them a lead of two runs, and again it looked hopeless for Chicago.

But Eddie Collins and his men staged another rally in the eighth and tore loose for three runs without the help of any decisions. They got them by simply socking the old ball. This gave the Sox a one run lead, and by turning out a splendid defense in the last two rounds they were able to come out victorious.

Charley Robertson attempted to stage a comeback stunt as pitcher for the Sox, but after geeting through four rounds and into the fifth he apparently lost his stuff, for the Senators began hitting the ball to distant walls, and he was yanked and Ted Blankenship came forth.

Sox Soak Martina.

Ted pitched the boys out of that mess and went through the sixth nicely but was so badly abused in that eighth after the close decision went against him that he was yanked and George Connally summoned to hurl the last two rounds. George saved the game in great style, allowing only one hit.

Joe Martina, the veteran rookie, was the hurler who started for the Senators, and he was quite a man for five innings, holding the bounding Sox to one run. But in the sixth, after he had a five run lead, he apparently lost everything but his glove and Collins' boys put over the rally that put the Sox back in the fight and drove old Mr. Martina to cover.

Sheely began it with a single which seemed harmless but up came Falk and Kamm with two baggers. French rolled out and Burns fanned, but Blankenship walked, after which Mr. Archdeacon, who had replaced Mostil, rammed a triple to right center and Mr. Martina found he had only one run lead.

He was yanked and Marberry called in.

Hooper got an infield hit immediately that put Archdeacon home with the tying run, then Hooper stole second and went on to third on the catcher's bad peg. Collins walked and then Eddie and Harry staged a smart double steal and the Sox were ahead.

It was singles by Archdeacon, Hooper, and Sheely with a pass to Collins and a fly by Falk that put over the winning stuff in the eighth.

Ray Schalk had to leave the battle before any of the real fun occurred, a foul tip in the fourth injuring a finger. It was celebration day for him, too, it being his fifteen hundredth big league game. Anyway it was a victory.

TIGERS KNOCK YANKS FLAT IN TORRID GAME

New York, May 25.—Detroit defeated the Yankees 6 to 5 today in a turbulent game. Hitting by Manush in the late innings along with Cobb's first home run of the season gave the Tigers' their victory. McNally, substituting at second base for Ward, had a fist fight with Blue and both were put out of the game. Substitute Infielder Johnson and Coach O'Leary of the Yankees were put off the field earlier.

SING SING IS HAPPY; ITS STAR PITCHER IS BACK FOR 7 YEARS

OSSINING, N. Y., May 25.—Sing Sing prison's baseball team, known as the Mutual Welfare League club, may shortly return to winning form, which is something they have not shown since Joe Ryan, star pitcher, was released several weeks ago.

For Joe is back in Sing Sing and baseball players and fans among the convicts, probably not excluding Joe, are happy again. The team has not won a game since its crack moundsman and convicted cracksman was freed.

Ryan will fortify the prison team for quite a while, from all indications, for his new sentence, on which he started yesterday, is good for seven years. He violated his parole by carrying a loaded revolver. Joe will likely pitch next Saturday or Sunday.

CARL WEILMAN DIES IN OHIO

Hamilton, O., May 25.—Carl E. Wellenmann, better known in baseball circles as Carl Weilman, former pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, died suddenly in a hospital here today. He was taken ill at Bay City, Mich., last Sunday. Returning to his home here he entered the hospital Friday, when complications developed.

Injuries received in 1921 prevented Wellenmann's returning to the mound. Since then he has been a scout for the Browns.

ST. MICHAELS WINS.

Fifteen hundred shivering fans watched St. Michaels maul the Chicago Giants, 10 to 1, on Michaels field yesterday. Giants managed to put one run across the pan in the first inning but were unable to find Sullivan's puzzling curves after that round.

BOB CANNEFAX WINS WORLD'S CUE TITLE

Detroit, Mich., May 25.—[Special.]—Robert Cannefax, Detroit representative in the National Three Cushion Billiard league, became world's champion tonight where he defeated Johnny Layton of St. Louis in the title tournament playoff, 60 to 51, in 61 innings.

It was one of the most bitterly contested games ever played here. Cannefax assumed an early lead but was overtaken and then rallied to snatch his victory.

When the four cornered series for the title, formerly held by Denton of Kansas City, closed Saturday night, Layton and Cannefax were tied at 7 games won and 4 lost.

Cannefax had a high run of 9, while Layton's best was a 4.

LOCAL POLOISTS LOOK TO RECORD BREAKING YEAR

With enough polo ponies to mount a dozen teams, Chicago will have more polo this year than ever before. All the teams here have begun practice. There are enough players at Onwentsia for four teams and in addition there are the Grasmere, North Shore, Fort Sheridan, and Spur and Saddle clubs, making it possible for quite a tournament play in this section without outside teams.

The great difficulty in the growth of polo here in the past has been the lack of suitable fields. This handicap will be considerably overcome this year, as the North Shore field is now in fine condition, while the Fort Sheridan field has had a lot of work done on it and can be whipped into good shape.

The Spur and Saddle club, newly organized last winter, has a field large enough for practice, but not big enough for tournament play, but with the Onwentsia, North Shore, and Army fields open for play the poloists will get a lot more action this summer than ever before.

NIESENS TUMBLE BEFORE CANTON AGAIN, 7 TO 3

Canton made it two straight over Niesens in the Midwest league yesterday, 7 to 3, at the loser's park. Herche slow balled the home team to a standstill, allowing six bingles. He drove in five of the winners' scores, poling a double and home run. "Buster" Caton featured in the field, handling twelve chances without an error.

The same teams play today at 3 p. m. Score:

EXPERTS GIVE GEORGES CHANCE AFTER WORKOUT

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

Michigan City, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—We got a good slant at Georges Carpentier, stripped for action, this afternoon in a series of training bouts at the armory here and we must say that we were very much surprised with the general appearance of the French boxer as he glided through his tricks with his sparring mates.

Thin of face but with a body as strong looking as Jack Dempsey's, the Frenchman looked to be at least twenty pounds heavier than the day he went down to defeat three years ago in Jersey City at the hands of Dempsey. He might not be as speedy as he was on that occasion, but he is much bigger and stronger looking all around.

Weighing 184 pounds in his light street clothes today will make his fighting weight probably 175 pounds, or eight pounds more than on the day he engaged Dempsey.

Experts Are Surprised.

The Frenchman was just as graceful as ever. His waist line is much stouter than in former days, but there does not appear to be any superfluous flesh. Altogether his appearance caused a general surprise among the experts present.

He was hitting like a fiend even though his opponents were far from being first rate subjects. As a starter they tossed in a novice by the name of Taylor from Chicago and the Frenchman knocked him silly in less than a round. Then they gave him Bartolomey Mollnero, a French-Italian middleweight, and Carpentier did as he pleased with him for two rounds. Then followed a whirl at rope skipping and a long session of calisthenics, at which Carpentier probably is the most graceful performer in the ring.

It was announced that Carpentier would perform in private for the rest of his training campaign, but that the press would be admitted to see him do his stuff. Jack Curley blew into town and no doubt was responsible for Carpentier changing his opinion about excluding the scribes from the show.

Is Going to Trouble Tom.

To sum up the situation today we must admit that we were compelled to revise our opinion immediately upon seeing Carpentier work. He is going to make a lot of trouble for Tom Gibbons. That old right hand bank of his was working in absolute accord with every step he took yesterday, and if he ever lays in one of those wallops on the St. Paul battler it is going to make an awful difference on the outcome of the contest.

It may be that this extra weight, which makes Carpentier look so much bigger and stronger will prove a handicap to him when he gets under way in an actual battle, but today he surely looked good against those sparring companions, even if they were a collection of eggs.

HIGH HURDLES BIG EVENT OF WESTERN MEET

When the western conference track and field games are held on Stagg field, June 6 and 7, the 120 yard hurdle race is expected to be one of the most important and interesting on the program. The event will bring together Kinsey and Johnson of Illinois, Snyder of Ohio State, Towler of Minnesota and Crawford of Iowa in addition to several others of note.

Entries close tomorrow with Secretary Joseph McNab of the graduate managing committee which has charge of the games. Aside from the ten colleges in the conference, entries have been received from twelve nonconference institutions.

OFFER DOBSON TRAINING POST.

Richmond, Va., May 24.—Frank M. Dobson, athletic director of the University of Richmond, has been asked by Col. Robert M. Thompson, chairman of the American Olympic committee, to accept a position as assistant supervisor of the training quarters of the American athletes in Paris.

NAME DICKERSON TO REFEREE BIG BATTLE

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Edward W. Dickerson of Grand Rapids, who has been the third man in the ring at many important boxing matches, was named yesterday afternoon to referee the Georges Carpentier-Tom Gibbons ten round contest at Michigan City on Saturday afternoon.

Matt Hinkle of Cleveland, who was named along with Tom McGinty of the same city as one of the possibilities, was ill, according to Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, and could not accept. While McGinty was acceptable to both boxers, the mayor of Michigan City and the commander of the John Franklin post of the American Legion selected Dickerson.

Dickerson worked in the Michigan City arena last year and also officiated at bouts held in Benton Harbor, Mich.

Gibbons Entertains Here.

Tom Gibbons entertained a large crowd yesterday at White City park where he did everything but box. Before he stepped on the platform, Tom told some of his friends he would rather don the mitts than go through the routine of the many forms of exercise characteristic of the boxer in training. Gibbons looked in splendid condition and will need but little work to fit him for the important international match.

According to present plans, Tom will do his last boxing on Thursday when he will step a couple of round swith Sammy Mandell. Tomorrow and Wednesday he will work with Andre Anderson and Tillie "Kid" Herman. Following the Thursday workout he will start to dry out and Friday will be an almost complete day of rest.

Gibbons will be the guest of the advertising post of the American Legion at a luncheon in the Tiger room of the Hotel Sherman at noon today.

$200,000 Advance Sale.

Joe Coffey, president of the Arena Boxing and A. C. and Secretary and Treasurer Harry Parker will go to Michigan City this morning to make final arrangements for handling the crowd.

Treasurer Harry Parker announced the advance sale has passed the $200,000 mark and if favorable weather prevails on the week-end, a capacity crowd will see the contest.

Jayhawker Tennis Stars Sweep Valley Tournament

Lincoln, Neb., May 25.—Rogers and Glaskin, University of Kansas tennis stars, made a clean sweep of the Missouri valley conference tennis tournament in both singles and doubles in final matches on University of Nebraska courts today. The Kansans defeated Paige and Young, Iowa State college, for the doubles title, in straight sets, 9—7 and 6—4. Rogers defeated Glaskin in the singles finals, 6—2 and 6—4.

CURRY'S FATE UP TO BATTLE WITH TAYLOR IN AURORA TONIGHT

WHETHER Connie Curry of Cedar Rapids, Ia., must be considered seriously in the bantamweight class will be determined tonight, when the little Hawkeye clashes with the aggressive Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., in the main bout of Jim Mullen's show at Aurora.

Curry has made a couple of good fights at East Chicago and has won many admirers. He is fast and aggressive and can punch fairly hard with his right hand. If he can take the punishment which Taylor is almost certain to dole out only tonight's go will decide.

Joe O'Hara, who is angling for a match with Harry Greb for the middleweight title, will be put to the test by meeting Anthony Downey of Columbus. It will be a ten round contest and the weight will be 158 pounds.

Willie Ames, the hard hitting featherweight from Akron, O., and Frankie Garcia of Memphis will furnish the fireworks in one of the eight round struggles, Ames gave Featherweight Champion Johnny Dundee a lacing in Canton, O., recently.

Frankie Schaeffer, local 132 pounder, and Billy McCann of Cleveland will clash in another eight rounder, while a lot of interest centers around the professional debut of Ed Garvey, the former Notre Dame football player, who takes on Soldier Lee of Omaha in a four round engagement.

In the other two four rounders, Tommy Herman will meet Nick Di Sylvester at 118 pounds and George Dusczman and Dannie Fisher, local 124 pounders, clash.

Special trains will leave over the Elgin and Aurora electric from the Wells street terminal at 6:40 and 7 o'clock this evening, daylight saving time.

Following his bout with Curry at Aurora tonight, Taylor will journey to Indianapolis, where he is slated to meet Tommy Ryan of McKeesport, Pa., in the main event of Steve Harter's show on Thursday night.

Kid Howard will hold his regular amateur boxing tournament tomorrow night at the Arcade gym. Mattio Caruso, the little west side amateur bantamweight boxer who was the runnerup in the Olympic finals held in Boston last week, is scheduled to appear against some worthy opponent. In addition to this bout there will be others in the various divisions.

YALE ATHLETE MARRIED.

Decatur, Ill., May 24.—Phillip H. Cruikshank, 23, for three years a member of the Yale football and track teams, and Miss Gertrude Parke, both of this city, were married here today. The couple left for White Sulphur Springs, Va., on their honeymoon.

Yank Olympic Soccer Team Spills Esthonians by 1 to 0

BY DON SKENE.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, May 25.—Before a hostile crowd of 15,000, of which several thousand booed, hissed, and whistled derisively against them, the American soccer players won their opening battle in the Olympic Games' association football tournament by beating Esthonia, 1 goal to 0, in a hard fought contest in Pershing stadium.

The lone score which brought the American victory came after ten minutes of play in the first half, when Andrew Stradan of Philadelphia, stellar center forward, shot a beautifully placed kick into the upper left hand corner of the net, past the finger tips of the desperately lunging Esthonian goalkeeper, Lass, who played a sensational game throughout.

Yankee Defense Brilliant.

The Esthonians played a fine game, combining a dashing attack with a splendid defense, and except for an unlucky break when an Esthonian accidentally touched the ball with his hand inside the fatal eighteen penalty area, allowing the Americans a penalty kick, the Baltic republic's team had the edge over the Americans.

The American defense was brilliant, but the forward line lacked punch when a scoring opportunity appeared.

In the first half the teams seesawed back and forth the length of the field on even terms, but in the second half the Esthonians kept the ball in American territory nearly all the time. Only the superb defensive tactics of the American goalkeeper, Douglas, who broke up many plays with smashing methods, saved America from being dented a dozen times.

Esthonians Miss Chance.

The Esthonians lost a golden opportunity to score midway in the second half. They were granted a penalty kick, which the center forward, Ellman, missed with a wild boot over the crossbar. The Belgian referee, Putz, however, ruled that Ellman had kicked before he blew the whistle and granted him another try. Ellman missed again, although the ball hit the crossbar and bounded back into the field.

In the last half the Esthonians tried hard to score, but were unable to pierce the American defense.

Throughout the game the same sort of rowdy elements which gave French sportsmanship a black eye during the rugby matches booed and whistled against the Americans. Although a great majority of the spectators did not know whether Esthonia is the name of a brand of tooth paste or a new make of automobile, the entire sympathy of the crowd was plainly with the Esthonians.

Mob Dashes on Field.

When the final whistle ended the game thousands of spectators rushed to the field and surrounded the American team, which had locked arms and was giving a yell for Esthonia. Police hastened around the Americans, and the crowd apparently lacked a leader to start a rough house. The American flag was then hoisted amid silence.

In the other soccer matches today Italy beat Spain, 1 to 0; Czecho-Slovakia beat Turkey, 5 to 2, and Switzerland beat Lithuania, 9 to 0. Thirteen teams now remain in the running.

ZBY TO WIND UP DRILL TODAY FOR LEWIS MAT BOUT

Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polish grappler, matched to meet World's Champion Ed ["Strangler"] Lewis for the title at the Coliseum on Wednesday night, will finish training today by working in public at the Arcade, according to Promoter John ["Doc"] Krone.

The Pole, who is a former world's champion, intends to retire from the game if he is unsuccessful in regaining the crown. In order to secure the match Stanislaus has put up $2,500 of his own money to meet the guarantee of $10,000 demanded by Lewis.

Lewis is expected in Chicago today or tomorrow morning at the latest. The champion defeated Dick Daviscourt in Winnipeg, Man., last Saturday and is on his way to Chicago, according to the promoter. The titleholder will appear at one of the local gymnasiums for at least one workout before the big event.

Two other bourts will support the main event, which will go on at 10 o'clock. Promoter Krone announces a large demand for tickets, which are on sale at the usual places.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

LAKE GENEVA GEESE LIKE MILITARY MUSIC.

A FLOCK of wild geese provided a little excitement a few days ago on the grounds of the Northwestern Military academy at Lake Geneva, according to Col. Royal P. Davidson.

The colonel said that geese have been extremely numerous this spring, as the cold weather up north, along with so much ice on the lakes and streams, have kept the birds from pushing on to their nesting grounds. About two weeks ago the cadets of the academy gave their first battalion parade, the ceremony being in full dress, with white duck trousers. The adjutant's call sounded, the band started to play, and the companies with their white trousered cadets swung into their positions.

The geese, hearing the noise and the call "to action," rose from Lake Geneva by the thousand, and, seeing these white moving figures, headed at once for the parade ground. Flying very low, they swung around in much confusion over the heads of the moving figures, and then formed and passed on to their feeding grounds.

The colonel says that he has decided to take a cadet band and several companies in full dress on his goose hunt this fall, as they seem to be good decoys.

HARRY IS SUSPE ON PRO CHA

New York, May 25.—Harry Kaskey of Chicago, a member of the American Olympic ice skating team, was today indefinitely suspended by the International Skating Union of America when charges of professionalism brought against him were sustained at a special meeting of the union.

William Steinmetz of Chicago, Richard Donovan of Johnson City, N. Y., and Joe Moore of New York City were brought up on similar charges but they were exonerated.

It was charged that Kaskey demanded excessive expenses for his trip to St. John, New Brunswick; Lake Placid and Saranac Lake for skating meets. Kaskey is expected to put in an application for a rehearing of his case, which will be granted, President Joseph K. Savage said today.

Seven American records, established within the last year, were recognized by the union. These include:

MANY, MANY THANKS

THE TRIBUNE A. A. wishes to extend its hearty thanks to the West Park officials and the capable police under Capt. William Stocker, Lieut. Jay, and Sergts. Hannah, Shanahan, and Burke for their part in assisting THE TRIBUNE A. A. in conducting the bicycle Derby at Humboldt park yesterday. To the officials, who worked under the adverse weather conditions without faltering to the end of the program, THE TRIBUNE A. A. owes its hearty thanks and good will.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

In spite of rain which soaked the riders and made the track slippery and hard to pedal, six of the seven races in the third annual bicycle derby of THE TRIBUNE A. A. were staged yesterday in Humboldt park. Keen competition resulted in spite of the adverse weather conditions, and five of the events were won by narrow margins. The twenty-two mile handicap, the feature event of the program, was postponed until June 8.

Topping the day's performances was the victory of Francis Allen of the Austin-Columbia A. A., in the four and two-fifths mile race for class A riders. It was the second victory of the season in a TRIBUNE athletic carnival for Allen, for Francis stepped out last January and won this paper's Senior Silver Skates Derby held in Garfield park.

Noses Out Merkner.

In winning the class A race Allen just nosed out Edward R. Merkner of the South Chicago Wheelmen by a bare two feet. Coming into the stretch the racers were riding side by side and it was only by a fast finish that Allen pulled his wheel over the line the victor. Last Sunday Allen placed among the first fifteen time men in the midwest Olympic bicycle trials and he leaves next week for Paterson, N. J., to compete in the national Olympic trials.

The Austin-Columbia A. A. star rode a great race. With the water from the heavy downpour staying in pools all along the track spurting up into the faces of the racers, Allen set the pace on the first time around the oval. On the second lap he dropped back and let Merkner and Jules Arens of the Belgian-American Cycle club, who finished third, set the pace until the last 200 yards, when he started his winning sprint. Allen's time was 10:47 2-5.

Gerald Kulp Is Fourth.

Fourth place honors went to Gerald Kulp of the Franklin Skating and A. C., while Roy McWhirter of the Northwest Skating club finished in fifth position.

The class B four and two-fifths miles race was won by Walter Lindgren of the Franklin Skating and A. C., who beat Alphonse Vertenten of the Belgian-American Cycle club across the finish line by a length. His time was 11:39 and the race was ridden in the heaviest kind of a chill, soaking rain.

Jimmy Anderson, riding under the colors of the Antlers Sportsmen's club, took the class C race at 4 2-5 miles. Andy defeated Eugene Meyers, a teammate, by the closest kind of a margin, Meyers' front wheel being just even with the front fork of Anderson's bike as they flashed across the line. Thomas T. Todaro of the Franklin club, Tom Waght of the Edgewater Cylcle club, and Edward L. Clesius followed in order. The time was 10:51 1-5.

Miss Littlejohn Wins.

First honors in the novice class, a 2 1-5 mile event, went to Albert Waldack of the Belgian-Americans. Henry Nelson of the Norwegian-American A. A. was second, while Joe Jacks of Belding playground came across the line third. Waldack finished the race in 5:14 under the best riding conditions of the day.

Stuart Platzer of the Franklin Skating and Athletic club won the 2 1-5 mile race for boys under 16, with Charles Smessaert of the Belgian-American Cycle club second. The time was 5:55. Lois Littlejohn, Northwest Skating club, was winner in the 2 1-5 mile girls' race, with Marian Ryan, who rode unattached, second and Julia Kwak of Pulaski park third. Miss Littlejohn's time was 6:47 1-5.

The program was started promptly at 9 o'clock in a light drizzle of rain, which increased with each race. The boys' and girls' events, the last two of the program, were run in a heavy downpour that sent the fans scurrying for shelter and immediately at the conclusion of the girls' race the rain became so heavy that the riders asked a postponement of the handicap event, and Referee Arthur Gardner and Starter Julian T. Fitzgerald agreed.

Handicap Is Feature.

The handicap always has been the feature of THE TRIBUNE's bicycle Derby, and rather than have the event marred by spills and poor racing conditions the event was held over until June 8. The conditions for the race remain the same, with the same entries and same prizes to the winners.

Drop in and get one of the guides. They are guaranteed as one of the best remedies so far devised for chronic copper troubles.

New and highly improved maps showing the new county and state road numbering systems, the Cook county forest preserves and golf courses, main and secondary roads and valuable motoring data are coming off the press this week for the Cook county highway department. These excellent maps will be widely distributed both in and out of Chicago. The public service bureau will have them for free distribution as soon as the highway department makes them available.

Ways and means of better road building in the south will be discussed at the two day convention of the Dixie Highway association which opens today at Savannah, Ga. W. G. Edens and Richard J. Finnegan, commissioners of the highway in Illinois, have compiled a detailed report and recommendations for the betterment of the important highway in this state. The Dixie in Illinois is all paved now, but widening improvements and repairs are badly needed at several points, according to the report.

15,000 STAND IN RAIN AT TRIB BIKE DERBY

J. Pluve won the decision over the twenty-two mile handicap race on the program of the third annual Derby of THE TRIBUNE A. A. at Humboldt park yesterday, but he wasted considerable of his choicest raindrops before he won the verdict over the bike fans.

Some 15,000 racing enthusiasts, estimates being given by police officials, turned out for the day's sport, and it wasn't until the handicap was officially postponed that the majority of them departed.

"Had it been a good day you would have had 30,000 people out to the races," Julian Fitzgerald, western representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America and starter of the meet, declared.

CENTRAL STATES BIKE RACES ON WEDNESDAY CARD

The Central States amateur bicycle roller championships will be held on Wednesday night at the Merry Gardens ballroom under the auspices of the Western board of the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

WILLIE RITOLA SETS WORLD RECORD IN 10,000 METER RUN

HELSINGFORS, Finland, May 25.—In the elimination competition for the Olympic games at Paris, Willie Ritola, who came here from America to run as a member of the Finnish Olympic team, today established a new world's record for the 10,000 meters, covering the distance in 30 minutes 35 2-5 seconds. A heavy rain was falling at the time.

LOTT SERVES TENNIS TOO HOT FOR NORTON

George Lott served up some sizzling hot tennis before a shivering crowd yesterday afternoon at Skokie, playing the leading rôle in two successful attacks against Brian C. Norton, joint holder with Bill Tilden of the National Doubles championship.

With Axel Gravem, his team mate for the season, he defeated Norton and Wray Brown, St. Louis and Missouri Valley titleholder, in a doubles exhibition, 8—10, 7—5, 6—0, and in single combat he defeated the curley headed, ruddy cheeked South African titleholder, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3.

Second Set a Thriller.

The second set of the doubles match was the thriller of the afternoon with Lott and Gravem's brilliant rallies offsetting the dazzling change of pace which Norton and Brown exhibited. Seasoned veterans of the game declared they had never watched faster tennis.

Lott started to pitch no-hit tennis in the singles encounter and ran up four games on the doubles champ before he could get started. George did not play so showy a game as did Norton but he succeeded in dumping the ball into the empty parts of the court, and waited until Norton whipped it out of bounds.

Lott in Great Form.

Norton had the ball obeying his commands perfectly in the second set and ran Lott all over the court. In the decisive set, however, the high school boy had the sphere doing squads right and left, and although many of the games went to deuce, he came out victor. So happy was he to defeat the man who conquered R. N. Williams II and Watson Washburn in the national singles last year that he leaped in the air and with a mighty swipe sent the tennis ball in his hand in the general direction of the forest preserve.

PLAY FINALS IN BIG TEN TENNIS TOURNEY TODAY

Champions, both singles and doubles, will be crowned in the Big Ten conference tennis meet, which will wind up at the University of Chicago today.

The play will get under way at 10 a. m., when the singles semi-finals will be run off. After the singles both finals will be staged. The pairings:

Semi-final singles — Wilson, Chicago, vs. Donovan, Notre Dame; Sogolowsky, Butler, vs. Goodwillie, Illinois.

TILDEN'S INJURED KNEE IS BETTER

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—William T. Tilden II., national tennis champion, was greatly improved tonight from the wrench he gave his knee yesterday while chasing the drives of Vincent Richards in the George M. Church cup tournament. The champion, who slipped on a rain soaked court, dislocated the cartilage under the knee cap.

Tilden said tonight the cartilage had slipped back into place and that he might be able to play tomorrow.

FARM and GARDEN

BY FRANK RIDGWAY

CORN BORER NOT FAR FROM ILLINOIS STATE LINE.

CORN growers in Illinois are about two jumps ahead of the corn borer, the pest that has caused so much trouble among eastern producers. It has already advanced as far west as Ohio and is only a short day's ride for the automobile tourist from the Illinois state line.

A recent conference was held by growers and scientists at Toledo, O., to reinforce the campaign to drive out the corn borer in that section, which is now considered the worst infested region of the corn belt.

The federal government is taking a hand in the clean-up work to prevent the borer from spreading eventually to the entire corn growing sections of the middle west. It is within about 200 miles of the eatern border of this state, according to J. C. Hackleman of the State Agricultural college.

The corn borer was found in Ohio in 1921 in small numbers. It has spread until it is estimated that 1 per cent of the corn in the infested townships of eleven counties of northern eastern Ohio was damaged last year. The damage ran as high as 17 per cent of the plants in some fields. Suspicious looking insects should be sent to W. P. Flint, state entomologist, Urbana, Ill. The borer is about an inch long and bores into all parts of the stalks, ears, and tassels of the corn plant. It may feed on the leaves, but not the roots.

RAIN-WIND PUT CRIMP ON TOURNEY PRACTICE

A soaking rain and chill winds yesterday morning kept the golf stars who will compete in the western section of the qualifying play for the national open title from practicing over the Oak Park course. Many limbered up a bit while others who were more patient got in a few practice holes during the afternoon.

Even should the weather turn fair today, the last practice days before the opening pair of qualifiers tee off tomorrow morning, practice condition will be far from satisfactory. The course will be heavy and the greens slow, for yesterday's rain soaked the course deeply.

Most of the 156 players entered for the western half of the qualifying play at the Oak Park course are on the ground and ready to start. The field represents one of the best that ever started in the qualifying play and thirty-nine players are to qualify for the final round, which will be played over the Oakland Hills Country club course at Birmingham, Mich., on June 4 and 5.

EASTERN GOLFERS READY

Worcester, Mass., May 25.—One hundred and sixty golfers, representing the leading talent of the east, were preparing today for the eastern qualifying tournament for the national open golf championship at the Worcester Country club Tuesday and Wednesday.

HANDICAP MEN WIN SLEIPNER TEN MILE RACE

With a handicap of 2:30, J. Hosse of the Unique A. C. yesterday ran away with the Sleipner A. C. ten mile road race which was held over the streets of the northwest side. The other race, a three mile novice event, was captured by J. Vaciulis, representing Palmer park.

Hosse led the pack to the finish of the long grind in 53:20. Second, third, fourth, and fifth places also went to handicap runners, Olcott Coller of the I. A. C. being the first scratch man to cross the finish mark. L. McNeil, another Unique A. C. entry, who was seventh, and the only other scratch runner to end up among the first ten. The summary:

10 mile race—J. Hosse, Unique A. C.; D. Farmer, I. A. C.; T. Lapins, N. W. Parks; F. Rayman, Swedish-American A. A.; F. Gillespie, Commodore council, K. of C.; O. Coller, I. A. C.; L. SMITH AND LOOS TAKE OLYMPIC FUND MATCH

Battling over a wind swept course made slow by the morning rain, MacDonald Smith of San Francisco and Eddie Loos of the Lake Shore club defeated Jock Hutchison of Glen View and Laurie Ayton of Evanston, 1 up, in their Olympic fund match at the Wilmette Golf club yesterday.

In spite of the morning downpour there was little casual water, but as temporary greens were in use at several of the holes the putting was uncertain, even from a few feet. They played winter rules. Despite these drawbacks, MacDonald Smith topped the quartet with a card of 36—36—72, one over par.

One of the spectacular holes of the match was the first, 395 yards, at which all four players had putts ranging from thirty-five to forty feet. Hutchison hit the cup, Ayton holed for a birdie three and the other two came close. Cards:

Hutchison—Out	444	544	365—39

For the first time in its twenty-one years of competition the Midlothian Derby had to be called off yesterday because of rain. Some of the boys got away early, but before they had finished the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six hole finals, the downpour was so heavy a halt was called. Because of the interruption the main prizes were impounded and will be fought for in 1925. J. H. Johnson, who had low net for members in Saturday's play with 84—10—74, was given his trophy, but George W. Young of Beverly, 94—18—76, and W. W. Ahlschlager, Evanston, 80—4—76, who tied for low net guest's prize, will have to wait until next year to play it off.

Charge-Customer-Coverage Regardless of Residence Location

Coverage of the Daily St. Louis Newspapers Among All the Charge Customers of a Large St. Louis Department Store

Only 60% read the first evening paper.
(Owing to duplication of circulation, the Daily St. Louis Globe-Democrat alone gives 6% more coverage than the two largest evening papers combined!)

Coverage of the Sunday St. Louis Newspapers Among All the Charge Customers of a Large St. Louis Department Store

76% of all the charge customers read the Sunday Globe-Democrat.
Only 57% read the other Sunday paper.
(Owing to duplication of circulation the combined coverage of both Sunday St. Louis papers is only 21% more than the coverage of the Sunday Globe-Democrat alone!)

How a Big Department Store Measured the Purchasing-Power-Coverage of the St. Louis Newspapers

One of St. Louis' largest department stores has measured the purchasing-power-coverage of the St. Louis newspapers.

It has supplied the answer to the question so often asked by advertisers—

> "Which St. Louis newspaper most effectively reaches the families who represent the real buying power of the St. Louis market?"

This department store wanted facts. To obtain them it made a far-reaching investigation among its charge customers—the families representing mass-class purchasing power.

Which St. Louis Newspapers Do 31,870 Charge Customers Read?

On January 3, 1924, questionnaires were sent to 31,870 of the store's charge customers to learn which St. Louis newspapers these people read. Replies were received from 14,878—practically 50%.

The results, tabulated by certified public accountants, show that the Globe-Democrat most effectively reaches the families with purchasing power in the St. Louis market—both Daily and Sunday!

The Largest Number of These Charge Customers Read the Globe-Democrat

The Globe-Democrat's complete dominance among the department store's charge customers, classified according to residence location, is graphically pictured in the charts that follow. They show that the Globe-Democrat has—

> Greater coverage, both Daily and Sunday, in Metropolitan St. Louis.
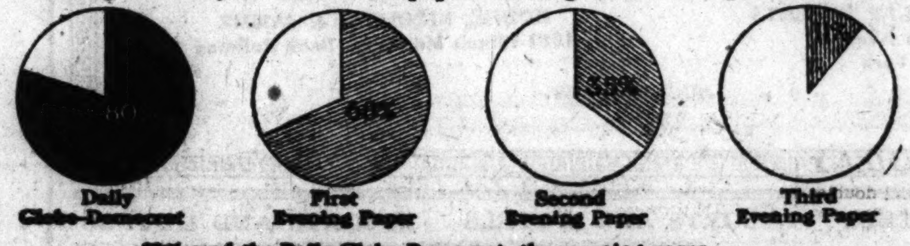
> Greater coverage, both Daily and Sunday in the 49th State outside of Metropolitan St. Louis. The 49th State is that great naturally concentrated market defined by a circle, radius 150 miles, of which St. Louis is the natural trading center.

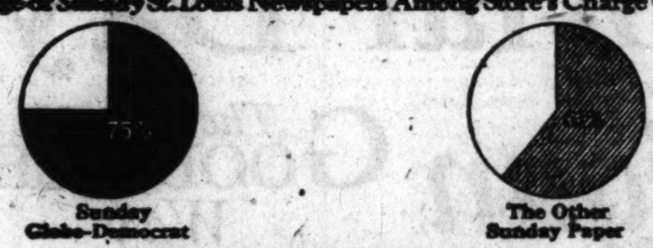
In Metropolitan St. Louis

Coverage of Daily St. Louis Newspapers Among Store's Charge Customers



80% read the Daily Globe-Democrat, the morning paper.
Only 60% read the first evening paper.

Coverage of Sunday St. Louis Newspapers Among Store's Charge Customers



75% read the Sunday Globe-Democrat.
Only 61% read the other Sunday paper.

In the 49th State Outside St. Louis

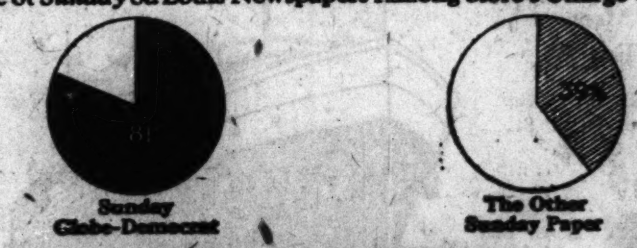
77% read the Daily Globe-Democrat.
Only 29% read the first evening paper.

Coverage of Sunday St. Louis Newspapers Among Store's Charge Customers



81% read the Sunday Globe-Democrat.
Only 39% read the other Sunday paper.

The certified results of the department store's investigation among its charge customers residing in Metropolitan St. Louis verify the results of The St. Louis Newspaper Survey—one of the most comprehensive newspaper investigations ever conducted—which revealed that—

> More copies of the Daily and Sunday Globe-Democrat are read by families living in the high ranking mass-class section of Metropolitan St. Louis, in proportion to total city circulation, than of any other St. Louis newspaper!

83% of the store's charge customers who live in Metropolitan St. Louis reside in the high ranking mass-class section.

The Largest Daily in One of America's Greatest Markets

The Globe-Democrat is the largest daily in the St. Louis market—an area popularly known as the 49th State—one of the greatest markets in America. One pointed to by economic authorities for its exceptional stability.

Unusual opportunities for those whose products are already nationally known, but where greater volume depends upon the intensive development of specific markets.

A profitable territory for those who are building logically toward national demand and distribution by first establishing themselves in certain markets where newspaper coverage is thorough and advertising costs are low.

Sell to the 49th State!

The 49th State has the buyers for your product! The Globe-Democrat reaches them!

Ask a Globe-Democrat representative to call and give in detail the enlightening facts about this big responsive market—the valuable service which the Service and Promotion Department and Research Division of the Globe-Democrat can render in helping you to sell it—and the complete results of the department store's investigation among its charge customers.

HERE IS PICTURE OF 1950 THROUGH INDUSTRIAL LENS

BY SCRUTATOR.

Chicago, meet "Area A."

That is the name picked by the power survey committee of the National Electric Light association for us and our neighbors, in its forecast of what we will probably look like in 1950.

The forecast covers the region between Toledo, Indianapolis, Peoria and Milwaukee. It assumes that this territory will be electrically linked on all sides to areas similarly developed, but because of its advantages it will probably constitute a denser nucleus of manufacture and traffic.

Some of the outstanding features of this survey, made public Saturday, have been under discussion for a long time. But the entire study is worth the attention and consideration of financiers and industrialists. It should have a place in the office files of every live business institution.

Not that it is by any means complete, final or even positive. It should in fact prove an incentive to even more detailed studies and estimates of our future growth.

It is at once inspiring and sobering. It is based on facts, not visions. It assumes that our progress will not be accelerated by any revolutionary discovery or invention, and will not be paralyzed by political and popular decadence.

When 1950 rolls around, the picture it presents may appear grotesque, but considering the remarkable fulfillment of other scientific forecasts of the last half century, it is probable that most of its bold outlines will still be recognizable.

It gives warrant to the sanest optimism and invites fighters and doers to bet their brains and capital on an abundant harvest—as certain as anything human can be. At the same time, by calling attention to existing limitations it should exert a salutary influence on financing, and prevent the capitalization of hopes, which are not yet based on pregnant realities.

The forecast derives its rates of growth and change from those trends which are now in evidence.

It assumes that population will increase and that the ratio of industrial power will continue to increase relative to population.

Translated into every day life this means that people are going to live better, and in a quarter of a century will be approximately 87 per cent better off than at present as regards the capacity of their industries.

They will, of course, be much better off in respect to permanent improvements, such as highways, parks, reforestation, buildings, housing and other facilities of a lasting nature, which do not correspond so directly to the ratio of mechanical power to population, as do the varieties and quantities of more perishable consumption goods available to a people.

The forecast assumes greater fuel economies and more economical mining, hence it makes but a small allowance for increased use of power by mines in this region.

It forecasts this region tremendous building activities, and the increasing use of masonry in construction.

It assumes the gradual electrification of steam railroads, division by division, from the congested terminals which now carry dense freight traffic or must accomodate suburban passenger traffic. It takes into consideration the fact that the economies of electrification are not so great in a flat country as among mountain gradients.

Its map of the probable distribution of the 13,000,000 people of this region in 1950 should prove of intense interest to real estate men. It mirrors the general belief of electrical men that a considerable decentralization of population is in prospect. Present centers of population will increase, but outlying and especially detached centers are expected to grow more rapidly.

Especially interesting are the paragraphs showing how the centers of power generation must remain near the lake shore or on the banks of three or four streams, as the supply of water for condensing is not sufficient elsewhere for the kind of power plants that will be built hereafter.

United Light and Power.

C. M.—The United Light and Power company controls and operates properties furnishing a diversified public utility service in ninety-seven communities in the middle west, principally in Iowa and Illinois, having a combined population of over 600,000. The company is issuing $1,000,000 of 6½ per cent debentures. These are the direct obligation of the company, but not secured by any mortgage. Consolidated net earnings for the twelve months ended March 31, 1924, were over twice the annual interest charges on the entire funded indebtedness, including this issue and all prior charges. After deducting all annual prior interest charges the balance available for interest on these debentures was over ten times their annual interest requirements. These debentures are followed by preferred and common stocks which, at the present market, represent an equity of over $20,000,000. The common stock is paying dividends at the rate of $1.60 per annum and extras. These debentures are a suitable investment for a business man's funds.

Brief Answers.

I. N. S., Battle Creek, Mich.—The Colt's Patent Firearms Manufacturing company capital stock is $25 par value. It is paying dividends at the rate of $2 per annum. It is a high grade stock.

L. F. J., Des Moines, Ia.—The Iroquois Iron company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds are due annually to Dec. 1, 1929. They are a sound investment.

H. R., Cedar Rapids, Ia.—The Bridgeport Gas Light company first mortgage 4s of 1952 are a sound investment.

Grain Traffic Lightest So Far This Year at Primaries

Primary receipts of grain last week were the lightest of the year, 9,463,000 bu, a loss of 1,035,000 bu for the week, but a gain of 309,000 bu over last year. As compared with the five year average there was a loss of 2,076,000 bu. Wheat receipts increased for the week, and corn increased over last year, but in all other grains there were decreases for the week as well as from last year.

Chicago received 1,823,000 bu of grain for the week, or 591,000 bu less than the previous week, and 77,000 bu more than last year, but there were heavier reductions as compared with previous years. Oat receipts were the smallest in over five years, and wheat showed the smallest in four years with the exception of last year.

Office Space to Meet All Demands of Most Exacting Tenants

There is a wealth of splendid office space in Chicago, but none to duplicate that in Tribune Tower.

Even before it is built Tribune Tower is known in every civilized nation as one of the world's most distinctive and artistic structures.

The $100,000 architectural competition was conducted to secure supreme beauty of design. With this beauty of design are being combined all that science and engineering can offer to create the utmost in utility for tenants.

An interior worthy of the exterior is the aim of the builders of Tribune Tower. Every detail of construction, equipment and service must meet the very highest standards.

Eleven floors (13 to 23) are now being rented to desirable tenants for occupancy May 1, 1925. These floors will be served by a special bank of express elevators apart from those used by The Tribune.

All space offered to tenants in Tribune Tower is equally desirable. There is no court. There are no inferior locations. Every office commands an inspiring view over lake or loop.

The New York Times.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—It hardly will be disputed by any one familiar with the ways of American finance, that the situation passed through a highly interesting test last week, and that the outcome was significant.

All of the markets had come to a complete halt. That is apt to mean that they are awaiting some one event to which their hopes or apprehensions have been pinned but concerning which they are absolutely in doubt.

A week ago today most people probably believed that the sustaining of the President's bonus bill veto by the senate would be the signal for recovery in the market and the overriding of the veto would turn the market's inertia into a disorderly and continuous break of prices.

Public Mind Retains Stability.

The professional Wall street experts, who make it their business to anticipate such movements in the stock market, offered down prices two or three points on the first transactions after the overnight news of the vote. But only an hour or two was needed to show that this break in prices instead of starting the financial public into panicy selling of stocks brought in buying orders. Within two or three days the market was selling above its prices of the day before the "bonus vote."

This episode is reasonably convincing proof that the public mind is not seriously apprehensive over the perplexing business situation, or even the perplexing political situation.

The basis for such composure concerning the business outlook probably is that the present curtailment of production represents correction of a maladjusted position; that it is not a result of suddenly reduced consumption; that, on the contrary, distribution and consumption of goods, although less than a year ago, are of more than usual magnitude; that stocks of goods in merchants' hands are light, and that the situation is therefore exceptionally free from the customary dangers of a trade reaction.

Voters Appear Conservative.

The basis for the attitude of calmness towards the political outlook probably is the striking lack, either in the primary voting or in the preliminary political discussions of a drift away from conservative conditions and principles.

The fact that the markets are not seriously disturbed about the industrial or political future does not necessarily mean that they are confident of an early turn for the better. Nobody professes ability to see ahead with any great clearness. Usually restoration of the balance between supply and balance in general trade is foreshadowed in the steel industry, but last week's trade estimates were that the mills had reduced their output 5 per cent from the week before and 10 per cent from the first week of May. The federal reserve board's latest "index of production" in all basic industries was 16 per cent above the 1919 average and exceeded that of all other corresponding dates since wartime except for 1923, but it was down 3½ per cent from the earlier months of 1914 and would undoubtedly be lower today.

Commodity Prices Lower.

The average of American commodity prices stood last week at the year's lowest and more than 6 per cent below the high point of February. The decline, so far as it affected manufactured products, has reflected the high rate of production earlier in the year and the consumer's policy of placing orders only for immediate requirements; but the point is that no change in the equilibrium of the markets is yet indicated and that the season of normal dullness in trade is now approaching.

With the two nominating conventions now only a few weeks away, it is hardly to be supposed that the policy of cautious waiting, familiar at such times, will be abandoned.

The action of presidential conventions has sometimes been influenced by political accidents, sometimes by the discovery of unsuspected political forces.

NEW FINANCING OF $90,000,000 DURING WEEK

New York, May 25.—The total of last week's new financing exceeded $90,000,000, compared with less than $25,000,000 in the preceding week.

An early start on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad's refunding program is foreshadowed by an application to the interstate commerce commission to issue $5,570,000 6 per cent general mortgage bonds and smaller loans for several subsidiary companies. In banking circles it was intimated that an offering of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 might be made next week, although there is a possibility that it may be deferred until June.

Reports that negotiations were about to be concluded for Hungarian and Mexican loans again were circulated in the financial district, but were not confirmed. Cable advices from abroad indicated that the Hungarian loan commission had received J. P. Morgan's assurance of support and preparations were under way in London for flotation of a loan of about $50,000,000 in June.

An issue of $1,800,000 Sanitary District of Chicago 4 per cent bonds maturing serially between 1934 and 1944 will be offered tomorrow at prices to yield 4¼ per cent. An issue of $3,000,000 Los Angeles 4¾ per cent bonds will be offered at prices to yield from 4 to 4.55 per cent, according to maturity. An issue of $1,500,000 First Carolinas Joint Stock Land Bank 5 per cent bonds will be offered at par.

WEATHER HURTS WHEAT GROWTH; RAISES PRICES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There is the most interesting wheat situation that the traders have known. Indications are that it will become more interesting unless weather conditions over practically the entire country are materially changed in the near future.

There is no surplus moisture in parts of the west, especially Nebraska. Scattered complaints of moderate deterioration are coming from parts of Kansas. In the middle west conditions are spotted. The north Pacific coast has been dry all season and prospects are for a smaller crop than last year.

In the northwest there is a deficit of moisture, although crop conditions are not alarming at present, but perfect weather conditions are necessary to bring the spring wheat crop through with a good yield.

Winnipeg Leads Advance.

Winnipeg wheat futures have led the advance of late, May working from 13c under Chicago to 1½c over and is up 3⅝c for the week, while July gained 2⅝c, as against 1⅜@1¼c in Chicago.

All of the wheat markets have hardened and the readjustment of values, which has been on for nearly two months, gradually is working out a more healthy condition. It is the impression of most observers that wheat prices in Chicago have been held at a basis that gradually is bringing a readjustment of values the world over. These values, they say, have been entirely too low.

Big Reduction in Stocks.

Wheat stocks are decreasing at a good rate and are expected to continue to do so for the next thirty days.

The Canadian visible supply has decreased nearly 30,000,000 bu of late, while Fort William and Port Arthur stocks have been cut down 37,000,000 bu in a little more than a month. The movement of Canadian wheat has been phenomenal. Receipts from Sept. 1, 1923, to May 2, 1924, at Fort William and Port Arthur were 245,282,000 but and at Vancouver 42,618,000 bu. These compared with 219,885,000 bu at Fort William and Port Arthur and 14,944,000 bu at Vancouver for the same time the previous year.

Stocks at Fort William and Port Arthur on April 18 were practically 53,000,000 bu, while now they are 14,389,000 bu, indicating a phenomenal movement. In the first two weeks of lake navigation this season shipments from Fort William and Port Arthur were 30,500,000 bu of wheat and 4,600,000 bu of other grains, or a total of 35,100,000 bu.

Deliveries on May contracts so far this month have been 10,170,000 bu, and indications are that they will be about 11,000,000 bu by the end of the month.

May wheat in Chicago closed Saturday at $1.05⅝, up 1⅜c for the week. July $1.08¼; September, $1.09⅛@1.09¼; and December, $1.11½. Prices for the week follow:

New Factors Needed in Corn.

New influences are needed in corn to attract increased buying both for futures and cash grain to make a good bull market, and buying of wheat and selling of corn is regarded as likely to be a good spread for a time. This, however, might be changed should there be a general lack of moisture all over the corn belt which some are predicting.

The trade is looking for an increased movement from the country, as is usual at this season in the last of May and first of June after corn is planted, but the extent of the movement is likely to be governed by the crop prospects and the price. All indications are that consumption on the farms the balance of the season will be lessened, as there are 11 per cent fewer brood sows and 5 per cent less cattle on feed and on farms than last year. Cash premiums have receded despite light receipts. Deliveries on May contracts so far this month have been 3,230,000 bu, and 1,000,000 bu more are expected.

May corn closed at 78@78⅛c; July, 76⅞@76⅝c; September, 75⅝@75¾c; and December, 68⅝c, showing gains of ⅛@1⅜c for the week, with May leading. Week's prices follow:

May Oats Are Lower.

May oats lost ½c last week, while other months closed ⅛c higher. Cash premiums have dropped materially, with the demand limited, and receipts were a good average, while primary shipments exceeded the arrivals. The crop is doing fairly. Deliveries on May contracts so far this month aggregate 3,639,000 bu. Indications are that May deliveries will wind up without any excitement.

DOLLAR LAST WEEK WORTH 69.1 CENTS UPON 1913 BASIS

In terms of wholesale prices of 200 representative commodities the purchasing power of a dollar last week averaged 69.1 cents, compared with what it would have brought in 1913. For March its purchasing power averaged 67.2 pre-war cents and for the first quarter of 1924 it was 66.4. The commodity prices averaged 144.8 per cent of pre-war level during the week, 148.7 during March, and 150.5 during the quarter.

1913	100	100
1920 May [peak of prices]	247	40.5
1923 yearly average	157.7	63.4
1924 January average	151.4	66.1
1924 February average	153.4	65.2

1924 week ended March 22	149.2	67.1
1924 week ended March 29	146.9	68.1
1924 week ended April 5	146.2	68.4
1924 week ended April 12	146	68.2
1924 week ended April 19	145.6	68.7
1924 week ended April 26	145.8	68.6

1924 week ended May 10	145	69
1924 week ended May 17	145.2	68.9

The price quotations are taken by Prof. Fisher from Dun's weekly review and the weights from the war industries board's report.

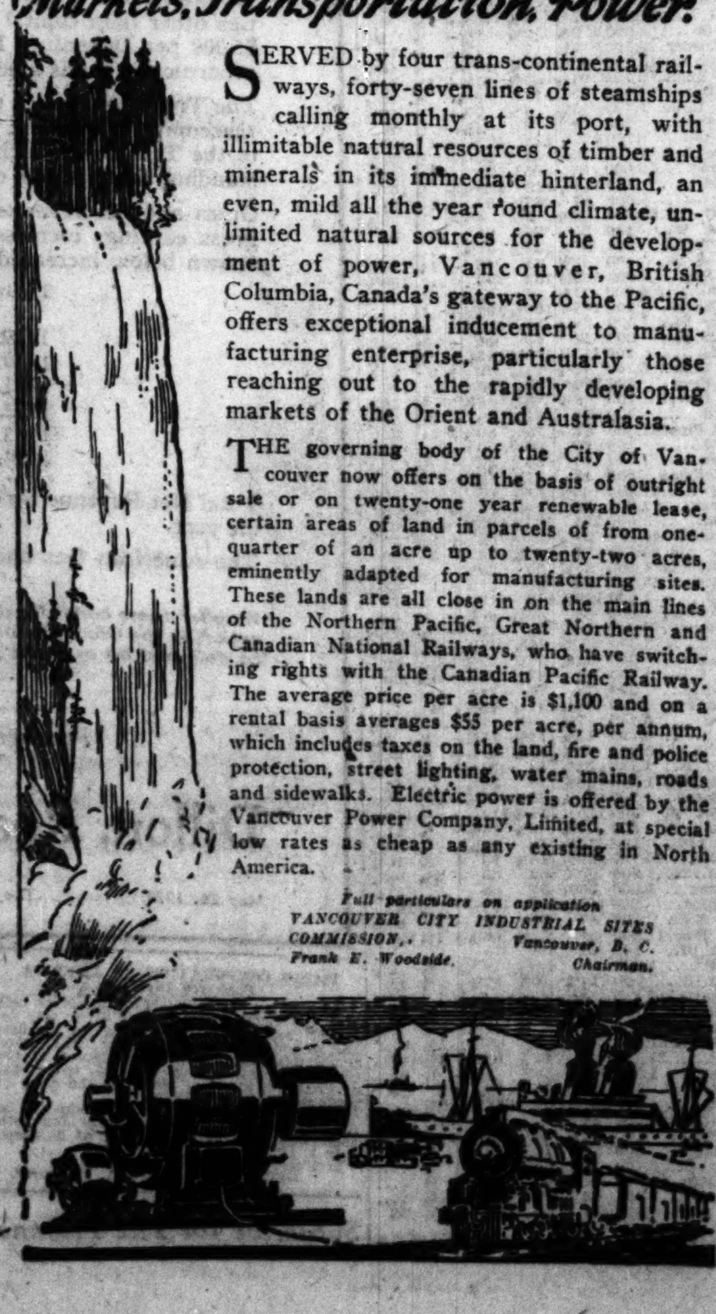
DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1924: Fairchild News Service.]

COHOES, N. Y.—Unless there is a marked increase immediately in orders for heavy underwear, mills in the Hudson and Mohawk valleys will have to curtail operations still further, according to reports from operators. It is said there is a buyers' resistance which cannot be broken down and which already has put the mills in an awkward position. The operators are trying to keep their plants operating as long as possible to prevent an unemployment crisis.

NEW YORK.—Week-end trading in gray goods disclosed the fact that the market was strong and active and that prices were either holding firm or going up, the latter being the case in the majority of instances. There was considerable speculation as to whether the buying was for actual consumption or for speculative purposes, but in any event the demand resulted in a busier session than has been recorded in some time. The 60x60, 5.35 yards to the pound, were in such strong demand at 9 cents that most houses advanced their price ⅛c and even refused to commit themselves for late June or July deliveries at this price. A quarter was also heard from some of the mills. The 68x72, 4.75 yards to the pound, strengthened to a point where 10¼c was the lowest price heard. The 72x76, 4.25 yards to the pound, moved from 11½ to 11⅝c and finally went up to 12c as the buying continued. The 80 squares were 13½c for spots and ¼c less for contracts.

NEW YORK.—There was a slight increase in the Fairchild cotton goods average price and index number for the week just ended, the number being 15.673 against 15.661 for the preceding week. This is only the second time this year that the index number has moved ahead, all other weeks showing declines. The average price of spot cotton showed a sharp advance for the week, the average being 32.23c against 31.59c. Cotton is now higher than it has been since Feb. 16. The low weekly average for the year was 27.27c for the week ending March 29.



VANCOUVER BRITISH COLUMBIA
Invites Industries
Markets, Transportation, Power

SERVED by four trans-continental railways, forty-seven lines of steamships calling monthly at its port, with illimitable natural resources of timber and minerals in its immediate hinterland, an even, mild all the year round climate, unlimited natural sources for the development of power, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada's gateway to the Pacific, offers exceptional inducement to manufacturing enterprise, particularly those reaching out to the rapidly developing markets of the Orient and Australasia.

THE governing body of the City of Vancouver now offers on the basis of outright sale or on twenty-one year renewable lease, certain areas of land in parcels of from one-quarter of an acre up to twenty-two acres, eminently adapted for manufacturing sites. These areas all lie close in on the main lines of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Canadian National Railways, who have switching rights with the Canadian Pacific Railway. The average price per acre is $1,100 and on a rental basis averages $55 per acre, per annum, which includes taxes on the land, fire and police protection, street lighting, water mains, roads and sidewalks. Electric power is offered by the Vancouver Power Company, Limited, at special low rates as cheap as any existing in North America.

EUROPE POLITICS MAKE LONDON'S STOCKS TORPID

BY ROBERT STEELE.

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 24.—The London markets passed a rather humdrum week, business being very restricted, partly owing to the uncertainty of the continental political outlook and partly to the settlement being in progress.

Prices for the most part maintained a fairly steady appearance. The chief feature of interest was the fresh relapse in the French franc, but that had no great influence on London sentiment.

In the gilt edged section there was a continued steady demand for first class securities. British funds improved moderately in consequence. The chief difficulty with traders in this section has been to find stocks with which to supply their clients' demands at remunerative prices.

Foreign Bonds Slow.

There was little doing in the foreign bond market, the tedium only being relieved by the beginning of dealings in the new Czech loan. French rentes, of course, slipped back with the franc and Chinese tended to recover further and Mexicans again were lower on the balance.

Home rails were out of favor. Foreign rails were not interesting, although United of Havas was a good shot on confident dividend anticipations.

Industrials were sound, textiles were sought by investors, some tobaccos were marked up, and steels remained quiescent, rather depressed under the influence of Vickers' report.

Business in leading oils continues very restricted, although there was a good investment in the buying of Anglo-Persian, ordinary attention being called to the excellent prospects of the company.

Lobitos had another bump, Shell was stagnant, Phoenix enjoyed a good recovery on influential buying, and Trinidad was better on the market.

Mining Shares Dull.

Mines were rather off color, Kaffirs being upset by reports of labor difficulties in the government areas. In the end prices tended to harden. Several descriptions in the Canadian and American section were better on the balance. Rhodesians generally were harder. Tins rallied after an initial depression.

Rubbers were steady on a moderate recovery of the price of the commodity.

Heavy Frost Disastrous to Edgar County Crops

Paris, Ill., May 25.—[Special.]—A heavy, killing frost fell on Edgar county, killing garden plants, early corn, and strawberry beds. In some places market gardeners saved their crops by building heavy smoke screens.

Title Insurance Protects Against "Unknown Facts"

A Chicago business man died in 1918, leaving a half million dollar estate—and no will.

The only known heir was an insane sister, to whom the Court awarded the entire property.

The Conservators for the insane sister sold some of the real estate under decrees of the Probate Court. So far as the records disclosed, the title was clear.

But there arose one of the "unknown facts" in the person of a mysterious woman claiming to be the rich man's only daughter.

The purchasers at the Conservator's sales might have sustained heavy losses but for the fortunate fact that their titles had been insured by this company.

Want Ads Work Wonders in Springtime!

THE mantle of Spring descends on a winter-weary world. Nature and Environment conspire to renew the youth of every living thing. People turn once more to the great Out-of-Doors. Every phase of human activity is stimulated by the tonic of Springtime--people need new cars, new homes or new apartments, the house needs a new coat of paint, Dad needs new golf sticks, there is truly no end to the lists of needs.

For this reason advertising is most effective in Springtime. The Tribune prints its greatest volume of Want Ads in the Spring, and Tribune Want Ads are now paying better than ever before, for two reasons. One, The Tribune's enormous circulation of 580,000 daily and 970,000 Sunday. Two, because the peak of buying is reached in the Springtime, and the market is, therefore, exceptionally good.

If you have real estate to sell, sell it now. If you want to sell a car or a radio, furniture, antiques, or anything, take advantage of this peak of buying activity and sell it now. Get in touch with prospects through Tribune Want Ads. Bring your Want Ad to the Want Ad Store, Dearborn and Madison Sts., or

Phone CENtral 0100 and ask for an "Adtaker"

A Tremendous Treasure is often found through the medium of a Want Ad. We quote below a remark overheard by our correspondent on the veranda at White Sulphur Springs—"For how can one expect to find an intelligent servant except by advertising in a medium that is read by intelligent servants."

Now It Can Be sold—family furnishings, fribbles and folderols quickly outlive their novelty and become a source of acrimonious comment from Pop, watch-dog of the family shekel hoard. The prudent housewife decides that then the time is ripe to sell them (Tribune Want Ads) and amity is restored to the parental rooftree.

When Betty, seeking a career, decides to knock the business world for a row of loops, as the quaint adage has it, she quickly secures a profitable position through a Tribune Want Ad. Go thou, O seekers of Success, and do it in like manner.

Does Madam fret for fresher frocks, of price prohibitive, perhaps? And does the Mawster, on the tenth of every month, indulge in strange mutterings at his meals that might easily be soft, sibilant swearings? Spare his bank account, Madam. Through Tribune Want Ads sell two old frocks that are slightly a-mode, and buy one new one with the receipts.

If Claude is clever at the clavichord, why not surprise him some time? Get rid of the old pianoforte gainfully (Tribune Want Ad) and place the proceeds as first payment upon a small grand. (Cheerfully, Claude will meet the other installments.)

A Pestilential pet should not be permitted to pester Pater. Sell him—Tribune Want Ad.

It Is as Easy now, Mr. Realtor, to sell reasonable residences as it would be to peddle Pilsener in Hades. The populace is land-thirsty. Tribune Want Ads are the connecting link between buyers and sellers of real estate

O Thou— swift harbinger of celestial harmony," sang a famous poet many years ago. Surely he must have meant the Radio. Clever chap, and rather far-sighted, too. But then, so are lots of people who use Want Ads to sell the old radio and then buy a better one.

"A Room, a room, my entire weekly stipend for a room, both clean and quiet," is the wail of a whole city of care-worn toilers. And why not rent a room, Madam (and cut the apartment rent in two)? Merely advertise it in The Tribune.

"Autos, Autos everywhere, but not a car for me." Perhaps you, too, gentle reader, have oft repeated these words to yourself while ambulating across a trafficked thoroughfare fraught with democratic danger. But there is a car for you, there is a car for every pocketbook, in the automobile columns of The Tribune Want Ad Section. That's where owners advertise them for quick sales.

SALESMEN AND SALESMANAGERS—

A QUESTION.

Can I, in a new vocation, without experience, make

$100 PER WEEK OR MORE?

QUESTION: Could you verify the fact that NEW men without experience went to work for you and earned BIG money QUICKLY?

LISTEN.

J. H. B., with no experience, had earned and was paid $925 in 7 weeks' time.
E. A., three weeks with us, earned $1,025.
T. A. W., in 5 weeks, earned and was paid $560.
J. M. E., with no experience, started with us and within two weeks earned and was paid $502.50, and several others who have earned similar amounts can be verified on request.

What they have done, you can do. Their success was due to the fact that they engaged in a line of business in which there is a tremendous demand.

But without the splendid co-operation we extend to our beginners they would no doubt have failed.

Come in and if we have confidence in your ability to succeed we will extend the same helpful assistance to you we have to others.

30 N. Dearborn-st.

Cash In on Millions of Dollars' Worth of Advertising

No office building ever received such tremendous international advance publicity as was won for The Tribune Tower by the architectural competition for $100,000 in prizes.

This publicity has continued because of the surpassing beauty of the design which won first prize and which is now taking shape in steel and stone, in marble and mahogany, on N. Michigan-blvd. Furthermore, upward of a million dollars a year will be spent by The Tribune and its subsidiaries in advertising themselves and, therefore, this location.

Eleven floors [13 to 23] are now being rented to desirable tenants for occupancy May 1st, 1925. These floors will be served by a special bank of high speed express elevators, apart from those used by The Tribune.

HOWARD ST. AND KOSTNER
NORTHWESTERN "L" EXTENSION.

From a rolling prairie to a veritable gold mine in a few short months. Vice-President B. J. Fallon of the Rapid Transit Co. predicts trains will run by January 1, 1925. Elevated extension sows the seeds from which big bustling communities grow. Only a few short months ago the new North Side Elevated Extension was a prairie of waving sun flowers but it was a foregone conclusion that the first North Side Elevated Extension in 16 years would change all that. History is bound to repeat itself. What happened in the Wilson-av. territory, what happened at Howard-st and Albany Park is now being duplicated along the line of the new Elevated Extension. Will you participate in this growing wealth? Will you invest at bottom prices and rise with the development? This property is one block from Kostner-av. station, and a few hundred dollars will start you. Fill out the coupon and mail. Address T T 547, Tribune.

IF YOU LET THIS OPPORTUNITY PASS
DON'T SAY YOU DIDN'T HAVE IT.

Do you realize that the eyes of the whole city of Chicago are watching the new Northwestern L extension linking Chicago with Niles Center? You and your family sit down in a cold blooded business manner. Just think what happened at Wilson-av., what has happened at Howard-st.; also what happened at the Ravenswood terminal and at Logan Square. This is positively no gamble. We have property right on the L; two stations right on our property. Only a few hundred dollars down, small monthly payments, take care of the balance. Choice business and apartment sites available at this time, so get busy and answer this at once for plats and full particulars. Address S N 306, Tribune.
